BLANTON AND STAPLES CITED AS BURLINGAME FOES IN DEFENSE CASE

Captain's Attorney Raises "Smoke Screen," Says Police Prosecutor.

CHARGE HELD RESULT OF "SPITE AND VENOM"

SIXTEEN WITNESSES APPEAR FOR VETERAN

Leahy Ready to Close, but May Call One More to Stand at Tuesday Session.

The defense of Capt. Guy E. Burlingame, the grizzled suspended commander of the Second Police Precinct, against the accusation of being the "heartsore daddy" of a middle-aged, henna-haired "dream girl" in the person of Mrs. Helen F. Blalock, erstwhile palmist of his precinct, came to an end yesterday amid a burst of oratorical fireworks.

The whole defense was nothing but a "smoke screen" designed to confuse and mislead the trial board, William W. Bride, corporation counsel and prosecutor of the charges against Burlingame, told the trial board.

But William E. Leahy, of defense counsel, replied that the whole case against the veteran captain was the "spite, venom, or vengeance" of a woman who had been persuaded to turn against her friend and protector by the sworn and publicly avowed enemies of the police captain.

Staples' Case Stirs Counsel.

The contrasting pictures were drawn by opposing counsel just before adjournment of the trial when Leahy proposed to read into the record quotations from the record of the trial of former Policeman Orville Staples, dismissed on the recommendation of a board of which Burlingame was a member. Bride, it was learned later, has summoned Staples to his office for a conference this morning. Staples declares that he is able to prove alibis for each occasion he is alleged to have been watching Mrs. Blalock's house. He says he has kept a diary of each day since his dismissal from the police force.

Throughout the course of the presentation of the defense Leahy and Henry P. Woodard, associated with him in the defense, have insisted that back of the attack on Burlingame was the determined unrelenting and effective animosity of the captain's personal enemies in the forefront of whom were former Representative Tom Blanton, of Texas, and Staples, for whom Blanton acted as attorney in the trial which resulted in his dismissal from the police force.

"We are willing to have the defense counsel show whatever he may show that is pertinent to this case," Bride told the extraordinary trial board. "There has been no effort on our part to clog the presentation of any possible explanation the defense might have against these charges. But this simply is in line with other things which we have permitted and, in fact, the whole defense is nothing but a smoke screen rasied in an effort to divert and deceive the trial board."

Leahy Charges Animosity.

Leahy declared that the defense was entitled to put into the record anything and everything which might show the animus behind the charges against Burlingame and he intended to do just that.

"We have made this woman who has accused the captain repudiate her statements in her affidavit made before Representative Blanton in Abilene, Tex., Leahy roared. "We have ripped this affidavit to pieces just as we have ripped to pieces other testimony of this woman.

"Now, I maintain, we are justified in presenting to this board such facts as will show the animosity and venom and the desire for vengeance which prompted this whole proceeding and without which there would have been no proceeding."

Quotations Are Admitted.

Maj. D. A. Davison, chairman of the trial board, who has throughout the trial taken the position that the proceeding was not bound by the narrow rules of a court but that his was a board of inquiry seeking and wanting to get all of the facts involved, overruled the objection of the prosecution and Leahy read into the record quotations from the transcript of the Staples trial, formally presented the day before by Dr. William Tindall from the files of the District Government, to show Blanton had approved Burlingame's appointment as member of the Staples trial board and subsequently had declared "that's all right, I'll tend to the captain later."

Leahy sought to show that Mrs. Blalock had not produced various pertinent papers before the board because those papers were in a trunk in the possession of Blanton, but Bride insisted that there was not a scintilla of evidence in the record to show that but on the contrary Mrs. Blalock had said that the trunk to which she referred was in Chicago.

"You must admit, Mr. Leahy, too," Bride declared, "that the date of the letters, which the captain admits were

Eielson Is Awarded Harmon Air Trophy

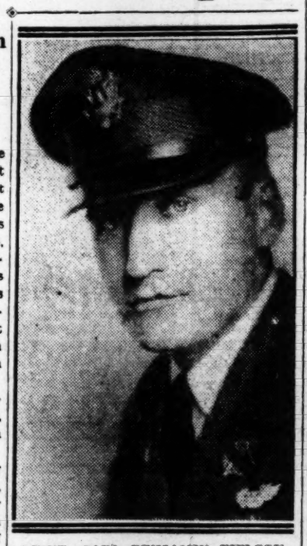
North Pole Flier Given Coveted Prize; Five Others Honored.

Lieut Carl Benjamin Eielson, native of Hatton, N. Dak., former guard at the House Office Building here and at present an airplane inspector for the Department of Commerce, yesterday was awarded the Harmon trophy for 1928, which is given annually to the individual pilot who best demonstrates the reliability of the airplane as a means of transportation. Eielson's contribution was piloting Capt. George Hubert Wilkins on his flight over the North Pole, traversing the Arctic wastes from Point Barrow to Spitzbergen.

With the award of the trophy, Eielson finds himself in select company, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh having been awarded the medal for 1927.

Announcement of Eielson's honor came from William P. MacCracken, jr., Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics, acting for the American section of the International League of Aviators.

No announcement was made as to when the trophy would be awarded Department of Commerce aeronautics experts, however, pointed out that Lindbergh received the 1927 trophy only recently while in Washington. That presentation was made by President Coolidge, and department officials presume that President Hoover will bestow the 1928 trophy on Eielson soon.



LIEUT. CARL BENJAMIN EIELSON.

Eielson is at present on leave of absence from his duties as Department of Commerce inspector. He has been flying since March, 1919. After being dis-

HOOVER VISIONS DRY INQUIRY AS BROAD LAW AID

Holds Survey Will Cover Proper Enforcement of All Statutes.

LAMONT ATTITUDE STIRS CONTROVERSY

Pessimism Invades Ranks of Wets; Challenges Seen as Remote.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

Secretary of Commerce Lamont yesterday found himself in the midst of a prohibition controversy just as President Hoover was working out his plans for a commission to study not only prohibition but law enforcement generally.

Besieged by newspaper men as he left his first Cabinet conference, the new Secretary, hardly warmed to his seat, explained his directorship in the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, but insisted that he had now resigned.

He made it very plain that regardless of his past attitude he is "playing the game with this administration." A friend had requested him to join the association some time ago, he said, explaining that "we all do some things for friendship."

But he had agreed, he said, because the prohibition situation was "intolerable," and for that matter the lawless conditions existing under it still exist.

It seemed that the Secretary was getting along all right in the interview until the question came up as to what he planned to do now. He said that he had submitted his resignation, but when pressed as to whom he had submitted it, he said "a friend down in Florida whose name I can not recall."

Subsequently, association headquarters here said that it had not been received either by H. H. Curran, president; Maj. W. H. Stayton, vice president, or Emmett Dougherty, secretary. It was said, too, that these were the proper men to whom a resignation should be submitted.

Disclosure a few days ago that Mr. Lamont was identified with the militant wet organization caused a ripple in political circles, more of amusement, of course, than anything else. It is not that there have not been wets in other Cabinets. The Coolidge Cabinet had only a few dry spots. And certainly the holdover, Secretary Mellon, did not undergo a change in his attitude toward prohibition overnight.

May Use Influence.

But Mr. Lamont bobbed up as the wet mind in what has been hailed as a new dry era. It is unlikely that Mr Hoover gave any thought to this phase of him in selecting him for the Cabinet. He has nothing to do with prohibition enforcement. It is pointed out, but then the drys maybe will begrudge the time he sits in with Mr. Hoover's official family. It is conceivable that he might put in a good word for the wets, or seek to influence Mr. Hoover in their behalf.

It is recalled in this connection, though, that Mr. Hoover recognized in his inaugural address the right of the wets to work for the repeal of prohibition. In so far as he is concerned, he apparently has not the slightest intention now of giving them any encouragement.

He discussed his forthcoming investigation at the press conference yesterday in reply to questions and under his policy of permitting direct quotations on as many discussions as posible. And again he laid emphasis on the fact that his inquiry will be with a view to tightening up law enforcement, including the prohibition laws, rather than looking to any modification of them.

To Consider Whole Question.

"The purpose and scope of the law enforcement commission," he said, "as stated in my inaugural address, is to critically consider the entire Federal machinery of justice, the redistribution of its functions, the simplification of its procedure, the provision of additional special tribunals, the better se-

MENTAL PHASE RETARDS KING'S FULL RECOVERY

George V in Possession of All His Faculties Only Briefly.

NAMING OF PRINCE AS REGENT OPPOSED

Doctors Are Not Confident if Royal Illness Will Be Finally Overcome.

London, March 8 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Although it is premature to talk of the appointment of the Prince of Wales as regent, the mental phase of King George's illness is a mater of extreme anxiety in court and governmental circles, which can not much longer be concealed from the British public.

The king is improing physically, eating and sleeping well—this morning he slept until 11—but only for brief periods during the day is he in full possession of his normal faculties. Although there is no warrant for suggesting, the facts are even more painful.

The most embarrasing feature of the situation, unparalleled for several reigns, is that the doctors are unable to tell whether complete recovery is to be expected. They are hopeful, but not confident, and so long as hope persists, a strong influence will be brought to bear against the appointment of the prince as regent for obvious reasons, personal and political.

Expected Progress Fails.

The progress hoped for by the sea at Bognor has not been realized, despite the surrounding of the monarch with his intimate possessions from home, including his collection of phonograph records, most of them jazz tunes. Plans are being made to take him to Sandringham, his country estate, as soon as his health permits. It is hoped that in his walks amid familiar surroundings he may be fully restored.

It is remarkable that the full significance of the bulletin issued last Saturday by Lord Dawson and Sir Stanley Hewitt was not generally recognized. This said that the king "is now able to read and apply his mind for short periods of time," and ended with the remark that complete recovery was "still some months distant."

Lord Dawson had written this communique at Bognor, but in view of its serious character, instead of giving it out through the equerry at Bognor as usual, he took it to London and submitted it to Premier Baldwin and the Prince of Wales. They gave it their sanction before it was published.

Still Extremely Weak.

Doctors hope that as soon as his bodily strength has increased sufficiently the king will be able to take short walks in the garden of Craigwell House and brief motor rides to relieve the dull monotony of sitting day after day at the bedroom window. As it is, he is still so weak that when he walks from the bed to the window or to the adjoining sunroom he is supported by two nurses and uses a stick.

He sees the queen and other members of the royal family for only a few minutes daily. When, during the course of the day, the nurses find him in a mood for visitors, they summon the queen or any other member of the family there.

Yesterday, when the Duke of York went to see the king from London, the newspapers reported he had had a long conversation, but in reality he had talked only seven minutes. This situation accounts in part at least for the fact that the Prince of Wales has been at Craigwell House only once since the king was taken there.

It is also understood to be the reason why neither Lord Lascelles nor the Duchess of York have been to see the king.

Opposes Word "Official."

The best time in the king's day is usually just after 6 in the evening, when he frequently has a brief talk with his equerries and Sir Stanley Hewitt, who lives in Craigwell House. Then he is often shown the news-

Bullets Hit in El Paso; Baby Is Killed and Boy Wounded.

300 FEDERALS CROSS RIVER; ARE INTERNED

Remainder Believed to Have Joined Revolt; Brave Struggle Put Up.

El Paso, Tex., March 8 (A.P.).—Three hundred Mexican federals were interned at Fort Bliss tonight in the carrying out of the truce terms under which the federals surrendered the City of Juarez.

The men were stationed in barracks and in a riding hall at the fort, under guard until their disposition can be decided by the United States Government. The interment was under the direction of Brig. Gen Van Horn Moseley, commandant at Fort Bliss.

There were some comic moments during the interment. A huge truckload of supplies for the interned men was sent across the international bridge bound for the fort. From the side lines it appeared packed largely with brilliant boxes bearing the inscription "red hot chile."

The federal army in Juarez this morning was variously estimated at from 450 to 600, with most reports placing the force at the larger number. Where the balance above the 300 who were interned are is not known, but it is believed they have gone over to the rebellion.

Fight Rages in Street.

Juarez, Chihuahua, March 8 (A.P.).—Revolters against the Mexican government carried their battle cry to the Rio Grande today with fierce fighting through the streets of this battle-scarred border city and tonight were in complete possession of the prized railroad center.

Descending on the city after a machine-gun barrage, the rebels, 2,000 strong, fought back the resistance of some 600 federal soldiers, captured in quick succession the seven places of fortification they had set up and forced a truce a few hours afterward, with the federals in full retreat on the banks of the Rio Grande.

American artillery lined the American banks of the river, that borders Mexico and Texas, presenting a steady reminder to the fighting forces that no menace to American life and property would be countenanced.

One American fatality, however, was reported on the Texas side of the river.

Lydia Roberta, 2 years old, whose parents are American citizens, was fatally shot by a stray bullet from the embattled city.

Louis Chavez, 6 years old, was struck in the leg by a large Mauser bullet and is in a hospital here, where his condition is serious.

Another American, Teddy Barnes, was found dead in Juarez after the battle. His body lay beneath several slain soldiers near federal headquarters at the Rio Bravo Hotel. Barnes was a bartender in the Mint Cafe.

The battle began just after dawn and by noon the federals were ready to quit.

Mexican War Delays Army Panaman Hop

(Associated Press.)

Capt. Ira C. Eaker's proposed dawn-to-dusk flight from Brownsville, Tex., to Panama, has been indefinitely postponed because of complications arising out of the Mexican revolution.

Assistant Secretary Davison of the War Department announced the postponement of the flight after he had been in conference with officials of the State Department for several hours. While Mr. Davison declined to give any reasons for the flight's postponement, it was understood that the uncertainty of air travel through the regions affected by the revolt forced the decision.

Capt. Eaker has been instructed to "stand by" at San Antonio, Tex., to await further instructions on the flight. It is understood that he will carry out the proposed good-will flight to Panama, making several stops for refueling en route, just as soon as conditions are favorable.

The flight to Panama was planned by the Army Air Corps to test the efficiency of its newest pursuit plane.

Endurance Flight Is Ended by Snow

Stinson and Page Land After Eleven Hours as the Storm Rises.

Bay City, Mich., March 8 (A.P.).—The endurance airplane flight of Eddie Stinson and Randolph G. Page ended after approximately eleven hours of flight tonight when they landed on the ice of Saginaw Bay at 9:50 o'clock. Heavy snow and a strong wind forced the landing, Stinson said.

The two veteran Detroit pilots took off from their ice runway on the bay here at 10:40:15 o'clock this morning, planning to stay aloft 80 hours. Their motor was functioning perfectly, they said, but the driving snow which came with nightfall and a gale sweeping in from Lake Huron made flying conditions dangerous.

Stinson, who twice has held the endurance record only to see it surpassed, said after landing that he did not know whether the Sally Sovereign, his plane, would be used in another attempt to regain the honor. The time of landing was not official.

LEAGUE ACTS TODAY ON ROOT COURT PLAN

Powers of Jurists' Committee Broadened to Clear Way for Consideration.

AMERICAN SEES SUCCESS

Geneva, March 8 (A.P.).—Negotiations conducted by Elihu Root for American adherence to the World Court have been the occasion of touching manifestations of friendship and cooperation between Latin-America and the United States.

Mr. Root especially requested an opportunity to explain his World Court formula to the Latin-American members of the league council This meeting was held today in the office of Juan Antonio Buerao, of Uruguay, legal adviser to the league, and brought forth not only expressions of the warmest approval of American initiative and hopes for its success, but also glowing appreciation of Mr. Root's high moral standard as a representative of American idealism.

Mr. Root did not fail to note portraits of Presidents Yrigoyen, Wilson and Harding on the walls as he entered the office.

Mr. Root said that up to now the difficulty had been that on its side the American Senate thought the court might render an opinion which would be adverse to American interests and that the league feared the United States might take action which would cripple its procedure for peace.

He declared his conviction that neither side consciously would make any effort to do that. Hence, he had tried to devise a system whereby if the

RURAL HOUSE YIELDS GAMBLERS' OUTFIT

EDDIE KILLEEN SOUGHT

Swooping down on an uninhabited house in a hollow on Conduit road, near the District line, late yesterday afternoon, Montgomery County police seized a truckload of gambling paraphernalia and two gallons of alleged liquor. Washington police have been asked to look for "Eddie" Killeen, well known in local sporting circles, in whose name the property is listed.

The load of paraphernalia included a roulette wheel, dice throwing machine, "black jack" table, bushel of poker chips, playing cards and other gambling effects. Three big doors, each three inches thick, similar to those used at entrances to gambling and bootleg establishments, together with several hundred chairs, also were taken with the other equipment in a truck to the Rockville police station.

The police also found five telephones all in working order. Police believe the gambling equipment was held in storage.

Police Chief Alvie A. Moxley, of Rockville, led the raid. He was accompanied by Detective Roy Bodmer, Sergt. Deroy Rodgers, and Policemen Lawrence Clagett and Harry Merson.

The house, containing six rooms, was neatly furnished, police said. It contained an electric refrigerator, electric cook stove and was heated by a large oil-burning stove.

Police say they had been watching the house for some days Although no arrests have been made, Chief Moxley is searching for Killeen, who has been seen in this city only a few times since Maj. Edwin B. Hesse, superintendent of Washington police, began his drive several months ago on gambling establishments.

Special Features in Sunday's Post

How a larger navy helped improve Southeast Washington is told in a story in Sunday's Post, which traces the history of the Anacostia reclamation project. It is illustrated with aerial views showing how Army engineers have changed the course of the Anacostia River.

Men and women now occupying high places in the executive departments rose from humble stations in the Government service. The rise of some of them is described in Sunday's Post.

A story of particular interest to colored readers is that which tells about the half million dollar memorial to be erected here in commemoration of the negro's contribution to the country.

The Jones law is having a decided effect on the prohibition situation. A discussion of the problem will be found in Sunday's Post.

Mrs. Schlesinger Is Sued For Death of Child by Auto

Parents of Florence LeRoy, 7, Ask $25,000 Damages From Capital Woman and Chauffeur; Baltimore Coroner's Jury Exonerates Car Driver.

More than fifteen hours before the funeral of Florence LeRoy, 7 years old, 3305 McElderry street, Baltimore, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Glen W. LeRoy, yesterday filed suit for $25,000 damages against Mrs. Eleanor Medill Patterson Schlesinger, 15 Dupont circle, prominent in Capital society, and her chauffeur, Charles Frazier. It is charged that an automobile belonging to Mrs. Schlesinger, driven by Frazier, struck and killed the child in Baltimore Wednesday.

Funeral services for the victim will be held this morning at 8 o'clock at St. Elizabeths Church in Baltimore, with burial in Oak Lawn Cemetery, that city. The suit for damages was filed yesterday afternoon in the Baltimore Common Pleas Court by Attorney Charles F. Harley, representing the parents of the victim.

Mrs. Schlesinger, the former Countess Gizycka, whose husband, Elmer F. Schlesinger, died last month, has been under doctors' care since his funeral and was not informed of the accident on Wednesday. Repeated telephone calls to the Schlesinger residence last night to learn whether she had been informed of the suit were unanswered.

Charles Frazier, the chauffeur, was taking a limousine from Washington to the Schlesinger home in New York when the accident occurred. He told Baltimore police that he had stopped on the Philadelphia road, near East avenue, in Baltimore, to talk to a man at the roadside. He had just started the car when the child ran in front of it and was killed. Frazier told police the car had been brought to Washington for the funeral of Mr. Schlesinger.

He was held without bond Wednesday night, pending an inquest, but on Thursday was released without bond in custody of his attorney, Harry W. Nice, of Baltimore.

An inquest into the death of the girl was held yesterday at the Eastern Police Station in Baltimore by Coroner George C. Blades. The coroner exonerated the chauffeur of all blame in the death of the child and declared the accident "unavoidable." Frazier was released and proceeded on his way to New York.

Mrs. Schlesinger is the daughter of the late Robert W. Patterson.

As it is, he is still so weak that when he walks from the bed to the window or to the adjoining sunroom he is supported by two nurses and uses a stick.

He sees the queen and other members of the royal family for only a few minutes daily. When, during the course of the day, the nurses find him in a mood for visitors, they summon the queen or any other member of the family there.

Yesterday, when the Duke of York went to see the king from London, the newspapers reported he had had a long conversation, but in reality he had talked only seven minutes. This situation accounts in part at least for the fact that the Prince of Wales has been at Craigwell House only once since the king was taken there.

It is also understood to be the reason why neither Lord Lascelles nor the Duchess of York have been to see the king.

Opposes Word "Official."

The best time in the king's day is usually just after 6 in the evening, when he frequently has a brief talk with his equerries and Sir Stanley Hewitt, who lives in Craigwell House. Then he is often shown the news-

U. S. ARMY WILL SELL MUNITIONS TO MEXICO; REBELS TAKE JUAREZ

CROWDS WATCH FIGHT ALONG TEXAN BORDER

300 FEDERALS CROSS RIVER; ARE INTERNED

Remainder Believed to Have Joined Revolt; Brave Struggle Put Up.

El Paso, Tex., March 8 (A.P.).—Three hundred Mexican federals were interned at Fort Bliss tonight in the carrying out of the truce terms under which the federals surrendered the City of Juarez.

The men were stationed in barracks and in a riding hall at the fort, under guard until their disposition can be decided by the United States Government. The interment was under the direction of Brig. Gen Van Horn Moseley, commandant at Fort Bliss.

There were some comic moments during the interment. A huge truckload of supplies for the interned men was sent across the international bridge bound for the fort. From the side lines it appeared packed largely with brilliant boxes bearing the inscription "red hot chile."

The federal army in Juarez this morning was variously estimated at from 450 to 600, with most reports placing the force at the larger number. Where the balance above the 300 who were interned are is not known, but it is believed they have gone over to the rebellion.

Fight Rages in Street.

Juarez, Chihuahua, March 8 (A.P.).—Revolters against the Mexican government carried their battle cry to the Rio Grande today with fierce fighting through the streets of this battle-scarred border city and tonight were in complete possession of the prized railroad center.

Descending on the city after a machine-gun barrage, the rebels, 2,000 strong, fought back the resistance of some 600 federal soldiers, captured in quick succession the seven places of fortification they had set up and forced a truce a few hours afterward, with the federals in full retreat on the banks of the Rio Grande.

American artillery lined the American banks of the river, that borders Mexico and Texas, presenting a steady reminder to the fighting forces that no menace to American life and property would be countenanced.

One American fatality, however, was reported on the Texas side of the river.

Lydia Roberta, 2 years old, whose parents are American citizens, was fatally shot by a stray bullet from the embattled city.

Louis Chavez, 6 years old, was struck in the leg by a large Mauser bullet and is in a hospital here, where his condition is serious.

Another American, Teddy Barnes, was found dead in Juarez after the battle. His body lay beneath several slain soldiers near federal headquarters at the Rio Bravo Hotel. Barnes was a bartender in the Mint Cafe.

The battle began just after dawn and by noon the federals were ready to quit.

Mexican War Delays Army Panaman Hop

(Associated Press.)

Capt. Ira C. Eaker's proposed dawn-to-dusk flight from Brownsville, Tex., to Panama, has been indefinitely postponed because of complications arising out of the Mexican revolution.

Assistant Secretary Davison of the War Department announced the postponement of the flight after he had been in conference with officials of the State Department for several hours. While Mr. Davison declined to give any reasons for the flight's postponement, it was understood that the uncertainty of air travel through the regions affected by the revolt forced the decision.

Capt. Eaker has been instructed to "stand by" at San Antonio, Tex., to await further instructions on the flight. It is understood that he will carry out the proposed good-will flight to Panama, making several stops for refueling en route, just as soon as conditions are favorable.

The flight to Panama was planned by the Army Air Corps to test the efficiency of its newest pursuit plane.

Endurance Flight Is Ended by Snow

Stinson and Page Land After Eleven Hours as the Storm Rises.

Bay City, Mich., March 8 (A.P.).—The endurance airplane flight of Eddie Stinson and Randolph G. Page ended after approximately eleven hours of flight tonight when they landed on the ice of Saginaw Bay at 9:50 o'clock. Heavy snow and a strong wind forced the landing, Stinson said.

The two veteran Detroit pilots took off from their ice runway on the bay here at 10:40:15 o'clock this morning, planning to stay aloft 80 hours. Their motor was functioning perfectly, they said, but the driving snow which came with nightfall and a gale sweeping in from Lake Huron made flying conditions dangerous.

Stinson, who twice has held the endurance record only to see it surpassed, said after landing that he did not know whether the Sally Sovereign, his plane, would be used in another attempt to regain the honor. The time of landing was not official.

LEAGUE ACTS TODAY ON ROOT COURT PLAN

Powers of Jurists' Committee Broadened to Clear Way for Consideration.

AMERICAN SEES SUCCESS

Geneva, March 8 (A.P.).—Negotiations conducted by Elihu Root for American adherence to the World Court have been the occasion of touching manifestations of friendship and cooperation between Latin-America and the United States.

Mr. Root especially requested an opportunity to explain his World Court formula to the Latin-American members of the league council This meeting was held today in the office of Juan Antonio Buerao, of Uruguay, legal adviser to the league, and brought forth not only expressions of the warmest approval of American initiative and hopes for its success, but also glowing appreciation of Mr. Root's high moral standard as a representative of American idealism.

Mr. Root did not fail to note portraits of Presidents Yrigoyen, Wilson and Harding on the walls as he entered the office.

Mr. Root said that up to now the difficulty had been that on its side the American Senate thought the court might render an opinion which would be adverse to American interests and that the league feared the United States might take action which would cripple its procedure for peace.

He declared his conviction that neither side consciously would make any effort to do that. Hence, he had tried to devise a system whereby if the

EDDIE KILLEEN SOUGHT

Swooping down on an uninhabited house in a hollow on Conduit road, near the District line, late yesterday afternoon, Montgomery County police seized a truckload of gambling paraphernalia and two gallons of alleged liquor. Washington police have been asked to look for "Eddie" Killeen, well known in local s

Mexico Aided U. S. Foes.

An arrangement had been entered into whereby Obregon promised a satisfactory solution of the petroleum problem affecting big American oil companies which had been a subject of prolonged controversy between Mexico and the United States. American rifles played a part in the developments though many of them later fell into the hands of factions hostile to American interests and Secretary Kellogg later ascertained that some of the rifles were shipped to Nicaragua and used by the Sacassa antigovernment followers.

Identification of these rifles formed one link in the chain of evidence which proved that Calles was rendering assistance to the Nicaraguans fighting to free their country from the Diaz government which was being supported by United States Marines because of the fact that American lives and properties were regarded as jeopardized through the revolutionary activities.

Is "Act of Comity."

Sale of surplus United States Army materials to the Mexican government is described here as an act of comity from one friendly government to another. When two governments are at war sale of United States Government supplies to one belligerent would be a breach of neutrality tantamount to an act of war against the other. But in cases of revolt against an established government this rule, it is explained, does not apply.

It was denied at the White House yesterday that any differences had arisen between the State Department and the War Department over protective measures being taken to protect Americans on the Texas border. No additional United States troops have been ordered to guard the border, it was added.

According to authoritative information, reports which yesterday reached the President indicated to Mr. Hoover that the revolt had practically collapsed at Vera Cruz, but was spreading along the frontier in the north.

Secretary Kellogg received detailed reports yesterday regarding the fighting at Vera Cruz. The reports concluded by stating that the municipal authorities had resumed their duties; that complete order was established, and that rail connections had been reestablished between Mexico City and Vera Cruz.

Air Bombardment Threatens Nogales

Federal Fliers Drop Warning; Nine More Aeros Are Expected From U. S.

Mexicali, Lower California, Mex., March 8 (A.P.).—Aerial bombardment of Nogales, Sonora, headquarters of the Mexican revolutionary forces, was threatened today by Gen. Abelardo Rodriguez, governor of Lower California.

The governor was awaiting the return of the military plane which he dispatched this morning to Nogales to drop circulars warning the troops and civilian population there to return to the Mexican colors.

"Yes, I sent the plane," the governor told the Associated Press correspondent, "and the next time they will carry something more effective than circulars. Lieut. A. Castrejon and Lieut. Luis Voyer piloted the plane, a Waco whirlwind-engined plane, which was delivered to us yesterday. We expect nine bombing planes to be delivered to the Mexicali Airport next week."

Coast Guards and Plane Hunt 3 Missing on Lake

Waukegan, Ill., March 8 (U.P.).—Coast Guard crews from Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan continued their search today for Nels Jensen, his wife, Anne, and his younger brother, Charles, who were fishing in a small launch Wednesday when a fierce gale swept Lake Michigan. A seaplane joined the search, but failed to find a trace of the fishermen, although it cruised for hours over the wind-swept lake.

The Jensens were last seen at noon by fishermen who said the launch appeared in good condition. Toward nightfall a 50-mile gale swept the lake, and coast guardsmen at Chicago and Kenosha said they did not believe the Jensen boat could have weathered the storm.

U. S. ENGINEER SLAIN BY REBELS, IS BELIEF

Mexican Soldiers Are Blamed in Slaying of American on Border Line.

SEARCH IS CALLED FUTILE

Nogales, Ariz., March 8 (U.P.).—Floyd Thompson, Cleveland, Ohio, engineer, whose body was found Thursday on the Mexican side of the international boundary here was killed and robbed by three rebel soldiers and not by persons on the American side of the line, Criminal Investigator Jim Hathaway announced tonight.

Hathaway declared that three Mexican citizens, two men and a woman, saw the soldiers batter Thompson to death with rocks.

The investigator declared it would be practically impossible to identify the assailants because there were nearly 3,000 soldiers in Nogales, Sonora, at the time. He pointed out that it would be difficult to obtain any action because of the unsettled conditions.

Gen. Francisco Borquez, commanding Nogales, Sonora, denied his soldiers were responsible. He said all his men were in guarded camps at the time of the murder. Previously it had been believed that Thompson was killed in a Nogales, Ariz., canyon and his body taken to the border.

Plane Flies Over U. S.

A federal airplane which flew over this town and Nogales, Sonora, today to drop notes to rebel forces warning them to put down their arms, was believed by American military authorities to have committed a breach of international law.

Four thousand persons in the two towns were terror-stricken and fled to the hills when the mission of the plane was mistaken. The ship dropped missives from Gov. Abelardo Rodriguez of Lower (Baja) California, the only northwestern state remaining loyal to the federal government.

Col. A. M. Shipp, commandant at Camp Stephen D. Little here, said he had reported the incident to Fort Sam Houston, Tex. He said that he would take no steps until he receives instructions from authorities there.

The appearance of the plane was the signal for the most confusion seen here since the revolution started almost a week ago. Citizens and the troops across the boundary scurried to sheltered places. An automobile was made ready at rebel headquarters to transport Gen. Francisco Borguez and Gov. Fausto Topete to the hills.

Ask End of Revolt.

The pamphlets dropped from the plane said the state of Lower California intended to remain loyal to the central government and asked the rebel forces to abandon their arms to avoid useless bloodshed.

The pamphlets were signed by Gov. Rodriguez of Lower California. They were dropped on the Sonora side of the line after the plane had circled over Nogales, Ariz.

There were only 100 rebel soldiers in Nogales, Sonora, when the plane appeared. Troops numbering about 3,500 were moved to Santa Ana, Sonora, at dawn.

Reason for the movement was not disclosed. It was believed that the force would either be sent on a four-day desert trip to attack Lower California federals who have occupied San Luis, Sonora, or would continue south to join other revolutionary forces which have entered the state of Sinaloa.

Russian Ice Breaker Aids Imprisoned Ships

Kiel, Germany, March 8 (A.P.).—The Russian ice breaker Yermau smashed its way through the Baltic packed ice, reached the helpless ice breaker Truwor and the disabled German steamer Saym this afternoon and replenished their empty coal bunkers.

The powerful ship then turned to rescue other ice-bound vessels which had radioed for assistance. Four Hamburg ice breakers were disabled by encounters with the floes.

CAMPAIGN IN SONORA EXPECTED TO BE HARD

CALLES DIRECTING MOVES

Mexico City, March 8 (U.P.).—The government, prepared for a hard campaign in Sonora, but confident that the rebellion in the remainder of Mexico would be put down in short order, concentrated its efforts tonight on the campaign in the northwest through Durango and Chihuaua toward the strongly-entrenched rebel forces in Sonora.

Plutarco Elias Calles, emergency secretary of war, was in almost constant conference at Chapultepec Castle with the council of war. The former president, in civilian clothes, was directing the army's movement with coolness and precision.

The government hopes to end the Chihuahua and Durango revolt within a fortnight, or a month at the outside, while the Sonora campaign was expected to take longer, possibly two months, because of the wrecking of the Southern Pacific lines in that state. Both sides will be handicapped severely in moving troops.

Sonora Group Strong.

Unless further wide-scale defections occurred, the capital as a whole was inclined to agree that the Durango and Chihuahua campaigns would be ended rapidly, leaving only the Sonora group to deal with. The latter, under Gens. Francisco Manzo and Robert Cruz, is the best organized, and may be expected to put up a hard fight.

Although the Vera Cruz campaign ended in a government victory, it may require a week or a month to catch Gen. Jesus M. Aguirre, defeated rebel leader, who is fleeing with his columns across the Isthmus of Tehuantepec to the southeast of Vera Cruz. In the rebellion of October, 1927, it was five weeks before the rebel Gen. Gomez was captured. Gomez hid in the hills for a fortnight after the battle of Perote before he was caught and executed.

Torreon Defeat Foreseen.

The campaign against the fugitive, Gen. J. Gonzalo Escobar, who evacuated Monterey after capturing it, centered around Torreon. It was assumed that as soon as the superior forces of Gen. Juan Almazan come in contact with the rebels, the insurgents will either be defeated quickly or desert in masses.

The permanent committee of congress as a special session today nullified the local powers of the rebel states of Chihuahua, Sonora and Durango.

Luis Leon, former minister of agriculture, was en route to Chihuahua to join the advancing federal columns and take over the provisional governorship of Chihuahua city after its capture.

Military authorities have ordered all roads patroled to prevent the smuggling of arms to the rebels.

Yaqui Indians Gather.

Vera Cruz, March 8 (A.P.).—El Dictamen learned late today that Gen. Aguirre's defeated rebel forces had failed to pass through Tierra Blanca, a railway junction point south of Vera Cruz on the line from Vera Cruz to the Isthmus of Tehuantepec. More troops were reported to be deserting Gen. Aguirre and going over to the federals.

A possible threat to loyal forces, however, was seen in the massing of 800 Yaqui Indians, who have remained loyal to Gen. Aguirre and were concentrated outside of Vera Cruz.

The Indians were led by rebels who escaped from the Vera Cruz prison. Officials here were inclined to believe that the Indians did not intend to attack Vera Cruz, but were on their way to Sierra Tuxtla, for refuge in the hilly country near the seacoast southeast of Vera Cruz.

U. S. Fliers Forced To Help Mexicans

Message, Purporting to Be From Gil, Ordered Them to Quit Tampico.

Los Angeles, March 8 (A.P.).—Two Americans who aided the Mexican federal government by airplane transportation of several of its supporters and loyalist money did so more from necessity than from desire, they divulged here today. The men were J. L. Maddux, Los Angeles airplane executive, and his chief pilot, Lieut. D. W. Tomlinson, former Navy flier.

Together with Mrs. Maddux and Miss Virginia Sullivan, Lieut. Tomlinson's fiancee, they arrived in Los Angeles yesterday after flying Mexican officials from Tampico, Mexico, to Brownsville, Tex.

Maddux said their party was awakened in Tampico early Tuesday and given a message from President Portes Gil of Mexico City, or purporting to come from him, informing them that they must leave the country immediately and carry loyalist leaders across the international boundary. Failure to follow instructions, Maddux said, the message warned, might endanger their party. Maddux said they left shortly afterward with the Mexican officials.

Battling Rooster Kills Big Eagle in Barnyard

Sarasota, Fla., March 8 (A.P.).—Ed Zwinggli, a dairyman near here, brought to Sarasota today a story of a finish fight between a 6-month-old Plymouth Rock rooster and an eagle, in which the rooster came out victorious.

He exhibited the wounded rooster in support of the tale. He and his wife heard a commotion in the barnyard, he said, and, distinguishing a whirling melee of feathered bodies, went to investigate just as both combatants collapsed. The eagle, measuring 6 feet 1 inch from wing tip to wing tip, was dead. The rooster was badly hurt.

A local taxidermist, to whom the eagle carcass was brought for mounting, expressed the belief that the rooster delivered a chance blow in a vulnerable spot just as the eagle swooped down.

BLAST HERO DIES, BRINGING TOLL TO 6

30 Others Injured at Fire in County Official's Home in Nebraska.

DYNAMITE RAZES BUILDING

Scribner, Nebr., March 8 (A.P.).—William F. Strube, acclaimed as the hero of the fire and explosion at the farm of County Commissioner Carl Hollander, near here, died tonight, increasing the list of dead to six. More than 30 persons were injured, many seriously.

Strube, a garage proprietor, was a member of the volunteer fire force recruited to fight flames which broke out in one of the commissioner's barns. About 500 pounds of dynamite, stored in the building for use in blasing ice gorges in the Elkhorn River, was set off by the flames. The blast hurled the victims, hundreds of feet, wrecked a number of other buildings and shattered windows 10 miles distant.

Although mortally injured, Stroud made his way into the burning wreckage and carried out several of his stunned companions before he collapsed. He was brought to a local hospital, but never regained consciousness.

The dead, besides Strube, were Gus Pattack, assistant postmaster; Guy E. Clark, barber; Harry Wibbels, mechanic; Fred Felgner, grain-store operator, and Arthur Schoeneck.

The little Scribner General Hospital was jammed with the injured. Extra beds were carried from nearby houses, and calls for help were answered from several nearby towns. Doctors and nurses from Omaha were sent out by the local Red Cross Chapter.

Harry Wibbels, one of those killed, just joined the volunteer fire department two months ago. He moved here from Wolbach, Nebr. Dr. C. G. Moore, Mayor of Fremont, 20 miles away, said he was shaken from bed by the blast. He was one of the first to arrive at Scribner.

REBELLION FAILURE, PORTES GIL WRITES

End of War Is Predicted Soon by Mexican President, in Special Article.

LAUDS LOYALISTS IN ARMY

By EMILIO PORTES GIL (Provisional President of Mexico).
(Written for the United Press.)

Mexico City, March 8 (U.P.).—The rebellion has proved abortive in the most sensational way, thanks to the loyal majority of the army and the moral force of public opinion, which unanimously rejected the uprising and condemned the authors.

The movement started in Vera Cruz on the 2d and on the same day in Coahuila and Sonora. Two days later it started in Durango and Chihuahua, but the outbreak was exclusively of a military nature, the people remaining indifferent to the subversiveness.

A majority of the military leaders opposed the proposals of the high chiefs; thus officers of lesser rank are fighting their old superiors, hastening the triumph of the constituted government in the most rapid manner. The Vera Cruz rebellion completely was dominated and destroyed by the military loyalists, who recovered all of the town's power, and they are pursuing the rebels until there is no doubt of the rebellion's extermination.

Railway traffic will be established in the next 24 hours.

Military Situation Good.

The military situation in the north could not be more favorable to the government. Gen. Almazan's column recovered Monterey and forced rebel evacuation of Saltillo. It can be presumed, therefore, that when the railroads are repaired and that when the loyalists approach Torreon, Gen. Escobar will abandon the city the same as he abandoned Monterey, in order not to expose himself in an encounter in which at least part of his troops would attempt to separate from him in order to unite with the loyalists.

The situation in Sonora likewise offers no risk, whatsoever, despite the fact they have the largest contingents. The precaution by which they are advancing to the south demonstrates how little enthusiasm animates them. The government is able, thereby, to organize an opposing column which will be far superior to the rebel units.

We are informed the Sonora rebels are divided into three or four factions, thus diminishing their effectiveness. The government, on the other hand, is preparing powerful forces which doubtless will triumph through the superiority of strategy and morale.

End Is Seen Soon.

In summation, considering the government counts the support of public opinion, which manifestly is against the rebellion, it can be stated that thus far the authorities consider the situation quite solid.

Rebel military movements can triumph where coups are given. When they do not attain immediate triumph within 24 hours, passions are calmed and chieftains conduct themselves as military honor requests. Since the situation of rebels always is compromised because of the shortness of time, each passing hour weakens their cause and strengthens the government's.

3 Hill Men Dupe Scientists With Indian "Relics," Claim

"Prehistoric Objects of Great Value" Alleged to Have Flooded Country From Mountain Workshop With Small Auto as Power Plant.

Louisville, Ky., March 8 (A.P.).—Kentucky mountaineers, in a measure, always have interested scientists. Their pure Anglo-Saxon blood, their ideals and ideas really make them an interesting people.

But an idea evolved in recent years which resulted in many celebrated Northern and Eastern museums displaying "rare" Indian relics purchased at good prices now engages the profound study of the scientists who soon will be called upon to testify in a Federal court in Louisville as to their authenticity and whether or not famous museums have been duped by just a plain Kentucky mountaineer's idea. Federal investigators say they have and here's the story they found:

Cumberland City is tucked away in the Cumberland Mountains of Kentucky. Near it live Mark Hanna Guffey, W. M. "Wade" Bell and R. V. "Velt" Jones.

Cumberland City came to the attention of Indian relic collectors, antique hunters and scientists upon discovery that the surrounding country abounded in a vast wealth of prehistoric objects of great value. Many of the relics were of a strange variety and unknown to science.

From time of discovery until Uncle Sam took a hand there was a steady flow of rare pottery, objects of age-old Indian art and decorations into hands of collectors, according to United States District Attorney Thomas J. Sparks, of Louisville.

Certain relic collectors and experts began to lose faith in their purchases and their source and complained to the Government. An investigation was started.

Agents of the Government uncovered Indian relics in the hills of Clinton Count, until they came upon a strange workshop—then was when attention was directed at Guffey, Bell and Jones.

The workshop was crude, with but an old Ford car as chief implement and power plant. It, however, turned out wares so genuine in appearance that, just as Federal agents say, they found places among the best and most authentic collections, with approval of many eminent gentlemen of science.

Guffey, Bell and Jones have been cited to come down to the city from their mountain workshop on charges of using the mails to defraud and to tell just what they can do with an old Ford car and a few Kentucky mountain limestone rocks.

Along with them will come men used to the city, street cars and all such like, and they will tell what they know. Mr. Sparks expects to use Dr. Charles E. Guthe, Ann Arbor, Mich., chairman of the committee on archeological survey of the national council; Charles E. Brown, Madison, Wis., secretary of the Wisconsin Archeological Society; C. E. Howerton, Quincy, Ill., and William Webb, Lexington, Ky., head of the anthropological and archeological department of the University of Kentucky, as witnesses.

U.S. OFFICER DRAWS SURRENDER TERMS

BULLETS STRIKE EL PASO

machine guns and rifles popped briskly for two hours, federal soldiers under Gen. Mathias Ramos sent word to the American side to Brig. Gen. George van Horn Moseley, commander at Fort Bliss, that the hostilities were over.

Truce Is Declared

Within a short time a truce was arranged between rebel and federal chieftains. The casualties for the government were estimated at thirteen dead, and for the rebels, nine dead. Many were wounded on each side.

Rebels with red bands on their arms, to distinguish them from their former fellows in arms of the Mexican army, slipped close to Juarez under cover of darkness today, and when mists of the early morning were rising the battle was on.

Moving upon Juarez from the east and west, the rebels opened fire simultaneously from both sides and at the same time a train of box cars loaded with rebels backed down the tracks of the Mexico National Railways into the heart of the city. There was a lull after the first onslaught, as federals withdrew from house tops where they had posted machine guns and the fight concentrated in the main streets of the city, Calle Commercio and Sixteenth of September.

These thoroughfares, with their open bars and gambling houses patronized by folks from the American side, were the scene of spectacular fighting. Some dead were left in the street and windows of buildings were shattered by bullets.

While it is no particular novelty to El Pasoans to witness rebel demonstrations across the Rio Grande, the spectacle today attracted a great attendance. El Paso business practically was at a standstill as shop clerks and girls deserted counters for points of vantage on the higher buildings.

For a time it was precarious for an El Pasoan to be on the streets. Bullets crashed into buildings several times, but there was a very decided tendency to risk being shot rather than miss seeing what was going on. The First National Bank Building, thirteen story structure, was peppered by bullets. Girls in offices facing Juarez fled to other sides of the building, while others went on top to watch the battle.

Federals Driven Back.

Federal soldiers gradually withdrew and by 8 a. m. their forces were driven to the river bank and into an irrigation ditch west of the city. There they maintained desultory fighting throughout the morning.

Stray bullets from the battle fell in El Paso.

A bullet pierced the car of an American Army officer that had been parked on the El Paso end of the international bridge and some bullets flew ten or more blocks into the city.

The shooting became more desultory as the rebels slowly spanned the entire city. Shortly before noon Brig. Gen. Moseley crossed the International Bridge and conferred with the federal commander, Gen. Ramos, asking permission to cross the federal lines to warn Gen. Miguel Valles, commanding the rebels, against firing across the river.

Gen. Ramos suggested to the American general that the federal position was such that it seemed hopeless to continue the battle, and that he would be willing to quit if the rebels would cease firing and consent either to grant guarantees of safety or permit the federals to be interned on the American side.

Capitulation Is Discussed.

Brig. Gen. Moseley then walked to the rebel headquarters in the Mesa Hotel, where he met Gen. Valles, who accompanied him to the customs house, which the rebels took after a brief skirmish late in the morning. Here the details of capitulation were discussed, and a truce allied.

Gen. M. J. Limon, one of the Juarez military commanders, narrowly escaped being shot when rebels fired with a machine gun from the top of a hotel building while the general was riding on a caboose. One of the trainmen was killed but Gen. Limon was uninjured.

All morning the federal force, including about 50 soldiers and citizen volunteers and Fifth Cavalry men, held the line along the river. There were frequent outbursts of rifle and machine gun fire interspersed with bugle calls.

On the International Bridge and at the ends of El Paso streets meeting the Rio Grande large crowds braved chance bullets to witness the show. The occasional whine of a bullet sent scores scurrying behind buildings for shelter.

Rebels Take Charge.

After the tide of battle ebbed, crowds of Mexicans thronged the streets of Juarez. Rebel officers took charge of affairs with the retreat of the federals to a dike at the river and issued strict orders against looting. Conditions were orderly. Saloons were closed and business was suspended.

When Gen. Moseley, accompanied by two aids and a number of newspaper men, drove with Gen. Ramos to the headquarters of Gen. Valles, a great throng of curious Mexicans swarmed about his automobile. The conference between the two was dramatic. Gen. Moseley, opening the meeting, said:

"The first consideration that brought me over was that several bullets fired perpendicularly with the river's course crossed the line and wounded some persons. I wish to get assurance that this shall not be repeated."

Surrender First Sought.

Through an interpreter Gen. Valles said he was sorry for this, but that it could not be helped. He declared he had issued strict orders that no American lives be endangered.

Gen. Moseley then added:

"Gen. Ramos authorized me to say that he realized lack of hope in continuing defense in his position and that he would be glad to enter the United States territory and be interned if Gen. Valles would issue an order to cease firing."

After further discussion Gen. Valles accompanied Gen. Moseley to the Mexican consulate. There an extended discussion was held over the question of whether the federals should cross into American territory or lay down their arms in Juarez under guarantees from rebels. Finally an agreement was made to intern the federal soldiers at Fort Bliss.

Trotzky Claims Party Units Seek to Aid Him

Berlin, March 8 (A.P.).—A German News Agency message from Constantinople reports that Leon Trotzky, exiled bolshevik heretic, has told friends that Communist party organizations in Russia had requested the Moscow politbureau to facilitate his return to the Soviet capital.

The idea was for Trotzy to place his case personally before a party tribunal, since differences between him and the rival bolshevik leader, Stalin, could be thrashed out only by a party congress.

Business in Sonora Is Halted by Revolt

American Publisher Tells of Idle Workmen and Runs on Banks.

Nogales, Ariz., March 8 (A.P.).—Safe on American soil after witnessing revolutionary scenes at Navajoa, Sonora, for nearly a week, H. R. Sisk, publisher of the Nogales Herald, an Associated Press newspaper, said on his return home today that the rebellion had paralyzed business in Sonora.

Navajoa, 377 miles below the international boundry, was taken by the rebels at the opening of the revolt this week. Sonora is the heart of revolutionary activities in northern Mexico. Mr. Sisk, caught in Navajoa at the outbreak of the rebellion, said that hundreds of laborers are idle, manufacturing plants are silent and talk of the uprising is on every tongue. Little news of its progress can be obtained in most parts of the state, he said, and the radio provides almost the only source of information.

The great tomato region along the western coast of Mexico has been hard hit, Mr. Sisk said. Most of the banks in Sonora have been shaken. A small run was made on a bank in Navajoa, but deposits have been resumed. Other banks throughout the state reported heavy withdrawals, he said, and rebel committees have listed business men in virtually every city of the state, seeking loans and subscriptions in amounts ranging from 5,000 pesos, downward.

Federals Plan Drive On Rebels Near Yuma

Nogales, Ariz., March 8 (A.P.).—Gen. Fausto Topete, Governor of Sonora, indicated to Col. Arthur M. Shipp, commander of the Twenty-fifth Infantry, here tonight that he proposed to attack the Mexican federal forces encamped at San Luis, Sonora, 23 miles south of Yuma, Ariz.

Gov. Topete conferred with Col. Shipp in an effort to determine the attitude the United States military forces would take in the event of hostilities between the rebels and federalists stationed by Gov. Rodriguez on Lower California at San Luis.

Arms and Ammunition Seized at Border Line

San Diego, Calif., March 8 (A.P.).—A truck said to contain 100 rifles and a quantity of ammunition was held up by the State motor patrol near the international boundary line at San Ysidro, Calif., across from Tia Juana, Lower California, today.

The driver said the shipment was legal and for the Mexican government, so he and the truck were turned over to the customs authorities for adjudication of the case.

Suitor of Woman Sought in Death

Man With Whom Victim, 50, Eloped Missing as Body Is Found in Tree.

Greenville, S. C., March 8 (A.P.).—A man with whom Mrs. W. L. Adams is believed by police to have left her home in Dewey Rose, Ga. last December, was being sought today as South Carolina authorities retraced a trail that led the 50-year old woman from her husband and children to death.

Information this afternoon that Mrs. Adams, whose bullet-riddled body was found in a tree overhanging the Saluda River Wednesday, was in the company of a man whose identity was withheld, and that a warrant charging her with desertion had been issued in December, furnished police with a new angle and served to discount a robbery theory advanced earlier in the day.

Authorities were informed that the automobile in which Mrs. Adams was said to have left her home had been traded for another, and that a man and woman answering the description of the couple were seen two weeks ago in the vicinity of the spot where the body was found. The man has left the city police said, and a description of him was being broadcast by them.

Advices here this afternoon were that Mrs. Adams was buried this morning at Bowman, Ga., near Dewey Rose. Her estranged husband and three children who now live in Atlanta, attended.

STYLES change. Good taste does not. New styles must revolve within certain traditional bounds to gain acceptance.

MRS. SABIN RESIGNS FROM G. O. P. PLACE

Opposition to Prohibition Is Seen Behind Move; Was Coolidge Supporter.

HELD JOB FOR TEN YEARS

New York, March 8 (A.P.).—Mrs. Charles H. Sabin resigned today as member from New York of the Republican national committee.

Her letter giving notice of her retirement went to Dr. Hubert Work, chairman of the national committee, in Washington, and gave no specific reason for her action other than that she had served ten years and it was time for another to take the work.

Mrs. Sabin, wife of a banker, has been a leader in the Republican organization in New York State since women were given the ballot.

Although Mrs. Sabin gave no reason for her resignation other than that she thought ten years' service was long enough, there has never been any secrecy about the fact that she was not in sympathy with the dry policy of the present Republican leaders. She has been outspoken in her opposition to prohibition by governmental edict, although always a strong advocate of temperance. Her husband, Charles H. Sabin, chairman of the Board of the Guaranty Trust Co., served as treasurer of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment last summer and was a Smith supporter.

Friends of Mrs. Sabin say it is not unlikely that she may assume leadership of a group of women who are opposed to prohibition and who for some time have been agitating for a national movement to represent their opinions.

As a delegate at large and a member of the national committee Mrs. Sabin went to the Republican national convention in Kansas City last June a strong supporter of Calvin Coolidge.

Upon her return to New York, however, she assumed leadership of the State's Republican women in their efforts to raise funds for the election of Herbert Hoover and was very active throughout the campaign.

Mrs. Sabin was Pauline Morton, daughter of the late Paul Morton, who was Secretary of the Navy under President Roosevelt. Her grandfather, J. Sterling Morton, was Secretary of the Interior under President Cleveland.

Mrs. Sabin organized the Women's National Republican Club in New York, which now has more than 3,000 members.

17 Teeth Pulled; Right One Untouched, Charge

White Plains, N. Y., March 8 (U.P.).—Trial of the suit of Mrs. Dolly Blumlein, of Scarsdale, for $50,000 damages from Dr. Mortimer Smokler, New York dentist, who, she alleges, pulled seventeen teeth and failed to get the right one, began here today

Mrs. Blumlein alleged that she plainly indicated the right tooth, but instead the doctor pulled six other teeth without her consent. On the next trip he pulled three others, and on two later visits he pulled eight more, breaking one so that she suffered pain for a year. Dr. Smokler denied the charges and said that all the teeth he pulled were bad.

"Wampas Baby" Files Appeal for Guardian

Los Angeles, March 8 (A.P.).—Sally Phipps, "Wampas Baby" motion picture actress, appealed to superior court today for the appointment of a guardian, charging her step-father, A. S. Beupler, with "dissipating" her earnings and cruel treatment. Roger Marchetti, an attorney, was appointed temporary guardian.

Miss Phipps, who said she was 17 years old and was earning $225 a week, stated she had supported her mother and herself for four years and had been the main support of her step-father since his marriage to her mother in 1922.

Seas Batter Big Ships; Four on Leviathan Hurt

Plymouth, England, March 8 (A.P.). The steamship Ile de France arrived at Plymouth today after experiencing one of her worst crossings. Easterly gales raged for six days and porthole glass was smashed by big seas.

Cherbourg, March 8 (A.P.).—After one of the worst eastbound crossings in her history, the United States liner Leviathan will make a quick turnabout sailing for the United States tomorrow. Four passengers were slightly hurt and many were bruised when a giant wave struck the liner while the dance floor was crowded.

200 ON LINER FINED AND LIQUOR SEIZED

Many Bottles Found Aboard Clyde Ship From Cuba in New York Search.

BOUGHT IN MIAMI, BELIEF

New York, March 8 (A.P.).—Two hundred passengers parted with $800 in fines and hundreds of bottles of liquor today when 135 customs men met the Clyde liner Shawnee on its arrival from Havana and searched the ship and most of those aboard.

As the 400 passengers filed on the gangplank their hand baggage was searched. Whenever a bag revealed contraband its owner was placed in line, later to move on to an office on the pier, where he or she paid a fine of $3 or $5 for each bottle. The smaller sum was for liquers and wines and the larger fine for whisky. Seventy-five women were among those who paid.

Passengers left unclaimed on the liner 65 trunks which were ordered taken to the appraisers stores, but whether they contained liquor could not be learned until they were opened in the presence of owners or until a reasonable time passed and the Government should open them unclaimed.

The search was thorough. While a coast guard boat stood by the liner ready to scoop up any contraband tossed overboard, inspectors went through cabins and into the hold of the ship. Two hundred bottles were found in cabins, but no fines were collected on them, as it was considered futile to attempt to find the owners. Four bottles were found in automobiles.

Passengers were surprised to see the customs men waiting for the ship, for its first call in American territory is at Miami where the customs are cleared Most of the passengers, however, boarded the Shawnee at Miami, and in the opinion of Col. William Conrow, in charge of the inspectors, the liquor had been purchased there.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, Seymour Lowman, in charge of customs and prohibition, said yesterday he had not received a report on the search for liquor on the Shawnee.

Mr. Lowman explained that if Government agents have reason to believe that a boat, sailing from Baltimore, Boston and other American port to New York or any other American point, carries liquor they can have it searched. This does not include the passengers but if the boat comes from a foreign port, like Havana, then the search extends to the passengers. Usually, it was explained, this search just covers baggage.

HOOVER INQUIRY SEEKS TO AID IN ENFORCEMENT OF ALL LAWS

lection of juries, the more effective organization of our agencies of investigation and prosecution. It is intended to cover the entire question of law enforcement and organization of justice. It will also naturally include consideration of the method of enforcement of the eighteenth amendment and abuses which have grown up, together with the enforcement of the laws in respect to narcotics, to immigration, to trade restraint and every other branch of Federal Government law enforcement. The whole constitutes one problem of better and more effective organization and enforcement. Such reorganization in various directions, some of them affecting the civil side as well as the criminal side, have been recommended and advocated for years by men of responsibility from the Chief Justice of the United States down to the local bar associations.

"The first step in law enforcement is adequate organization of our judicial and enforcement system."

Wets Are Pessimistic.

There is no disguising the pessimism in the wet ranks. Publicly, they would not dare to challenge Mr. Hoover's proposition that while prohibition is the law it should be obeyed, but privately, they say that if this is done generally, so much so as to remove the lawlessness now prevailing, prohibition will never be repealed.

As one prominent wet expressed it yesterday, "the fanatical drys are in the majority by far. Because of lawless conditions the minority wets are steadily adding to their ranks those conservative drys who while believing in the purpose of prohibition are willing to admit that it has failed. But if a law observance wave sweeps the country those conservatives will go back to their dry associates."

EIELSON, NORTH POLE FLIER, RECEIVES HARMON TROPHY

charged from the service he became a second lieutenant in the Air Corps Reserve and came to Washington to become a guard at the House Office Building.

While engaged in that work Eielson conceived the idea of using airplanes to solve Alaska's transportation problem. He attempted to interest the Government in his dream, and, failing, went to Fairbanks, Alaska, at his own expense. There he taught school until he had interested some influential residents of Fairbanks in his project and had formed a company to do commercial flying from that city. He was the first commercial aviator in the Territory.

Operated Six Months.

The company operated about six months and then the Government became interested. The Postoffice Department employed him to fly the mail from Fairbanks to McGrath, a distance of 550 miles. His contract called for twelve flights, one every two weeks. The first flight was made February 21, 1924.

After the eighth flight, Eielson's plane had to be shipped back to the States for repairs and he himself returned at the same time to reenter the Air Service. He was on duty for a year at Langley Field, beginnning in September, 1924. In February, 1925, he was promoted to a first lieutenancy.

When Eielson again returned to the Arctic it was with the Wilkins polar expedition, sent out from Detroit to explore the undiscovered lands of the polar regions. On March 30, 1926, he made with Capt. Wilkins the first flight from Fairbanks to Point Barrow which necessitated crossing of the Endicott Mountains, 10,000 feet high.

Crossed Over Pole.

Eielson again was with the Detroit News-Wilkins expedition in 1927, and on March 29 of that year took off from Point Barrow with Wilkins for a flight over the Arctic. Engine trouble developed, ending that expedition. However, when Wilkins essayed the artic adventure again in 1928 Eielson was with him as pilot and on April 15, that year, he and the explorer successfully flew over the pole.

In addition to bestowing the Harmon trophy on Eielson, Secretary MacCracken announced that the American section of the league had awarded medals of honor to four American aviators and one Australian.

They were awarded to the late Charles S. D. Collyer, who circled the world in the "racing the moon trip" by airplane and boat in July, 1928; Wilmer L. Stultz, pilot of the Friendship, the first seaplane to cross the Atlantic Ocean and which carried Amelia Earhart as a passenger; Arthur ("Art") G. Gobel, winner of the Dole transpacific flight; Capt. Wilkins, the Australian explorer, who flew over the pole with Eielson, and Thomas Carroll, test pilot for the aeronautic advisory committee.

$39,000,000 Action Is Won by Astors

Action Brought by Heirs of Alleged Partner Is Dismissed in Court.

New York, March 8 (A.P.).—Federal Judge Thacher has dismissed the amended complaint in the suit for approximately $39,000,000 against the estate of the first John Jacob Astor.

The action, brought by the heirs and next of kin of Nicholas Emerick, sought to show that Emerick made Astor a one-third partner in his business in 1787 and that no accounting ever was made to Emerick's descendants. The plaintiffs were Edna Carnahan, of Eau Claire, Wis., and Christina Campbell, of Appleton, Wis.; the defendants were Charles A. Peabody, jr., trustee of the Astor estate; the Farmers Loan & Trust Co., trustee of the estate of the second John Jacob Astor, who died on the Titanic, and William Vincent Astor.

The court, in dismissing the complaint, said that "to attempt to determine the right of an account for acts * * * occurring ove 100 years ago would be an unconscionable act of justice."

Three Plead Guilty In Counterfeiting

Man and Two Women Will Be Sentenced Next Week; Bills Passed in South.

New York, March 8 (A.P.).—Two women and a man pleaded guilty to counterfeiting in Federal court today. They are Mr. and Mrs Robert T. Hopkins and Mrs Louise Clother, who had worked together making spurious Federal Reserve notes, many of which, Federal agents said, were passed in Southern cities.

Benjamin Fried, also indicted for his alleged part in their operations, pleaded not guilty and was held for trial. The others will be sentenced next week.

Secret Service men who trailed the band reported that the bills were printed in New York and had been passed in Richmond, Atlanta, Memphis, Birmingham, New Orleans and other cities.

UPHEAVAL ON JOBS DENIED BY HOOVER

President Will Not Oust the Directing Heads on Federal Pay Roll.

ONLY 30 CHANGES SEEN

President Hoover yesterday gave assurance that there is to be no upheaval among Governmental heads. Although it has been traditional, he said, for the "principal directing heads of the Government" to submit their resignations t a new President, only 20 or 30 changes are likely to be made, at present, out of the several hundred holding office.

The President made his statement in answer to inquiries as to whether extensive changes were contemplated.

"It is traditional," he said, "for the principal directing heads of the Government whose appointments are at the pleasure of the President, both at home and in foreign service, to tender their resignations with the advent of a new President. Out of several hundred such officials, there are probably not more than 20 or 30 changes likely to be made at the present time. Some of these are the result of the determination of the incumbents that they have given sufficient of their time to public service and wish to take this occasion to retire to private life. Some changes will be the result of promotion and shifts from one position in the Government to another.

"There are some 820,000 people on the Federal pay roll. It will be seen, therefore, that the number of changes contemplated do not offer an opportunity for the large recruiting of new personnel."

FARMERS TO ASSIST PROGRAM OF HOOVER

Full Cooperation Pledged by Federation in Efforts for Agriculture.

CHOICE OF HYDE LAUDED

Chicago, March 8 (United Press).—President Hoover was pledged 100 per cent cooperation in his farm relief program by the American Farm Bureau Federation directors in session here today.

The unanimous vote of the directors, who speak officially for their organization, was taken following a discussion of the special session of Congress, called by the President, to convene on April 15.

The federation represents 1,250,000 farmers in the United States.

"For the past seven years," President Sam H. Thompson of the federation, said, "this organization has strenuously sought to obtain for American farmers a legislative measure which would assist the agricultural industry by removing the disastrous effect of crop surpluses when sold on the domestic market at world prices.

"The last national election put into the White House a man who has pledged himself to do everything he can to relieve the distress under which our industry has been laboring. The American Farm Bureau Federation therefore feels that henceforth responsibility for working out the program of farm relief rests with the national administration.

"It is the President's task to work out the problem and it is the task of the American Farm Bureau Federation to cooperate with him to the fullest extent possible."

Thompson reported to the directors regarding the conference he had with President Hoover on farm relief just before the inauguration. The President and the Farm Bureau head, Thomson said, had discussed the entire agricultural situation including the proposed procedure for obtaining proper relief legislation.

"The President," Thompson said, "was pleased to learn of the attitude of the American Farm Bureau Federation and gratified to know that the vast army of organized farmers, represented by the Farm Bureau membership would be behind him with advice and assistance in working out the administration program."

The board members today expressed satisfaction at President Hoover's selection of Arthur M. Hyde.

(United Press.)

Agricultural leaders in Congress are prepared to accept the Hoover farm relief program with as little bickering and delay as possible. It is becoming apparent that President Hoover himself will have to assume most of the responsibility for the legislation to be drawn up and adopted at the special session he has called for April 15, to cope with the farm problem.

Representatives and senators who led in the fight for the McNary-Haugen bill, twice vetoed by former President Coolidge, are frankly waiting for Mrs. Hoover's recommendations before starting serious work on a new bill.

They expect the general plan to follow the lines laid down by the President in his campaign—a Federal farm board to advise and assist agriculture and a large revolving fund to help finance cooperative associations.

Hero Goes Unpunished, So Germany Bars Film

Berlin, March 8 (A.P.).—The fact that the "crook hero" of the German version of the Paramount film "Ladies of the Mob" does not suffer a merited fate is understood to be the reason for the barring of the film announced by the German censor. This fact is regarded as undesirable in view of the present state of criminality in Germany.

The Paramount Company is appealing the decision.

FRENCH CHURCH ROW OPENED IN CHAMBER

Poincare-Socialist Clash Is Seen in Fight Over Religious Subsidy.

ENEMIES WIN FIRST TILT

Paris, March 8 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—There was a lively skirmish in the chamber of deputies today, foreshadowing the fierceness of the real battle which is expected next week when the subject of the government's intention to subsidize some French religious orders abroad comes up. The opposition actually defeated the government today on a mere matter of technical procedure by refusing to approve the minutes of yesterday's sittings.

The religious orders involved in the government's new measures are in the teaching categories which, like others, were banished from France when the church and state were separated in 1905. Opinion is still divided on the result of next week's battle over these issues. It is certain that the old battle cry, "Clericalism is the enemy!" rallied numbers of wobbling and discontented members to the opposition banner, and the fight will be bitter.

Poincare May Swing Fight.

On the other hand, Poincare's name carries such prestige still in the country that many deputies are likely at the last moment to vote for him rather than risk an unpopular ministerial crisis, especially as Poincare has said if the government is overthrown he will refuse to take office again.

Premier Poincare, although a firm partisan of disestablishment of church and state, and no friend of the clericalists, does believe that these missionary orders render good service to France by teaching French culture abroad and paving the way for the expansion of French commerce.

Hit Twist in Procedure.

Because the journal in its official accounts mentioned the depositing of reports on the questions at issue, whereas in reality such reports had not even been seen by the commission handling the questions, the Socialist deputies took the occasion of this slight twist in procedure to attack the cabinet and angrily declared they would not pass the official minutes.

The premier was manifestly irritated, and exclaimed "you can not give lessons to such a stanch upholder of parliamentary rules as I have been for so long."

He explained that he had asked Paul Boncour yesterday to summon a commission of which he was to be president to examine reports on the religious orders question so the debate could begin on the whole subject next Thursday. He expressed his surprise at the opposition's attempt to trip him up on such a technicality when they knew they would be able to discuss the real matter at issue—of such vital importance for French influence abroad—in a few days.

"Of course, I know you are sworn to overthrow the government even though many of you are in agreement with me on the question itself," the premier said in conclusion.

Many radical Socialists joined the Socialists and on a show of hands yesterday's minutes were rejected.

Special to The Washington Post.

Salem, W. Va., March 8.—When evidence presented in the case of the State against Miss Clela Estlack, of Salem, failed to show conclusively that liquor she was accused of possessing was intoxicating, a jury in Magistrate M. A. Samples' court, headed by a Baptist minister, returned a verdict of not guilty.

Furthermore, the jury decided that two kegs, alleged by Jules Matheney, police chief, to contain seven gallons of wine, should be returned to the owner and delegated the chief to perform the task.

Stewart Leaves Chicago for Rest

Deposed Standard Chairman Silent on Plans; Rival Firms Seek Services.

Chicago, March 8 (U.P.).—Col. Robert W. Stewart, deposed chairman of the board of directors of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, left Chicago today "for a rest." His destination was not announced.

Stewart, who yesterday was ousted from the board chairmanship by stockholders supporting the John D. Rockefeller, jr., group of the company, conferred today with his son, Robert G Stewart, president of the Pan-American Petroleum & Transport Co.

No announcement has been made by Stewart as to his future plans, but his associates apparently agree that he will remain in the oil business. Competitive concerns of the Standard, it is understood, have made attractive offers to Stewart to replace the $125,000 a year position he lost at yesterday's meeting at Whiting, Ind.

papers with the day's report of his condition.

For some reason yesterday he took violent objection to the use of the word "official" with the brief daily bulletins and the result is that beginning with this afternoon the term is dropped and "authoritatively" is substituted.

In his best periods the king realizes his weakness and insists on being treated as an extreme invalid. In other moods, however he apparently does not recognize the situation and is inclined to expect to be treated as a well person, which increases the difficulties for the doctors and nurses.

The picture of the delicate situation which all those concerned with the king, personally and officially, are now having to face is one which they recognize can not indefinitely be concealed from the public unless there is a change soon for the better.

Benefit Nets Funds to Save Players From Walking Home

Midnight Performance Provides Money to Take Chorus of Savoy Musical Company Back to Broadway After Bad Season Here.

As a result of the midnight benefit performance staged last night at the B. F. Keith Theater by the Savoy Musical Comedy Company, the girls and boys who make up the chorus of that organization will be able to ride the train to New York after the company's final performance tonight.

Due to the cooperation of other actors and actresses, playing at other houses in Washington, and because of the generous support of residents and visitors the benefit was a decided success. Joe Cook, headliner of the company playing at Poli's, was master of ceremonies for the performance. Other members of the company contributed their bit to the vaudeville feature of the bill in addition to buying a large block of tickets.

After the vaudeville, the Savoy company staged its own show, "Little Nellie Kelly," the George M. Cohan comedy, which will be repeated at a matinee this afternoon and again tonight.

All the money taken in last night will go to the members of the chorus, some of whom are said to be mere girls and boys. Many of these have not been paid for five weeks, it was learned semiofficially yesterday, and as a result hotels attached baggage and many of the youngsters have been forced to do their sleeping at the theater. With the money derived from the performance last night they probably will be able to get their belongings out of "hock." At any rate, each will have enough money to go back to Broadway, the Mecca of all jobless Thespians.

When the curtain is rung down tonight on the final performance of "Little Nellies Kelly," the Savoy Company will have completed a sixteen-weeks' engagement. The first fifteen weeks were played at the Belasco, but this week the company moved into Keith's, hoping that the change in location would bring a change in luck. However, the break did not come, and decision was reached to close with the current production.

It was learned last night that in order to help the management which has made a game fight to keep the show going, all members of the company who are members of Equity, with one exception, had waived their rights to two weeks' "notice" salary. Equity demands that all theatrical managements post bond guaranteeing actors two weeks' salary in emergencies such as the one confronting the Savoyards. Incidentally, it was learned, the one actor who refused to waive his rights received his money.

Request for Paper Results in Arrest

Williamsburg Holds Library Visitor as New York Murder Suspect.

Williamsburg, Va., March 8 (A.P.).—A man, thought to be Joe Gardner, wanted in New York City on a charge of murder, is being held in jail here awaiting word from police of that city as to his identification. The man was arrested in the library of the College of William and Mary following his request for a New York paper of March 4.

The man came into the library today and when his request for a copy of the paper was granted he immediately turned to the story of the shooting to death of a motor cycle officer in that city, the firing at an 11-year-old boy and theft of an automobile.

Horace D. Hoskins, a student, noticed this fact and becoming suspicious of the man, who was wearing two suits of clothes at the time, checked the description furnished by the paper with that of the man. They tallied to such an extent that he called in a policeman.

CLASH IS EXPECTED OVER COURTHOUSE

Jones, of Montgomery, to Fight Measure Proposing Building at Rockville.

NINE BILLS INTRODUCED

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., March 8.—Nine bills embracing legislation for Montgomery County, including two proposed bond issues totaling $325,000 for the acquisition of the site and building a new courthouse at Rockville, made their appearance in the house of delegates today.

The bond bills are expected to bring about an open break between Senator Eugene Jones, Montgomery's representative in the upper branch and the county delegation in the house. Senator Jones has indicated his stout opposition to these proposals, first because the additional bond issues will mean an increase in the tax rate, and again because he wants to protect the bank of which he is a stockholder from being forced from its site, in view of plans of the building commission for the new courthouse.

Senator Jones says he is assured of sufficient votes to kill both bills. That they will have fair sailing in the house appears certain.

Acquisition of Land Provided.

The bills provide a bond issue of $175,00 for the acquisition of the land, and a loan of $150,000 for construction. The first bill proposes to erect the courthouse in the block west of Court street and bounded by Montgomery avenue Washington, Jefferson and Court streets, and the county commissioners would have power to acquire the land and improvements thereon by purchase, condemnation, or otherwise. Any remaining funds would be expended for grading and landscaping.

The proposed $150,000 loan would be exclusively for the building. The bills specify that the bonds shall be in denominations of $100, with interest not to exceed 4.5 per cent per annum, the period of maturity not to exceed 40 years.

Of the seven other bills, five were presented by the delegation as a group, and two by Dr. George L. Edmonds.

One is designed to amend regulations for constructing buildings in the Maryland - Washington - Metropolitan district by vesting in the county commissioners additional authority for regulating the character of materials used and the manner of installing electric wiring, piping and conduits. Penalty for violations of the regulations would be up to $100. The bill also empowers the county commissioners to appoint an assistant to the building inspector.

Would Abolish Office.

The office of Montgomery County roads superintendent would be abolished by another bill, and authorize the commissioners to appoint in lieu thereof a competent engineer and assistants.

Elimination of Montgomery County from the provisions of section 150 of the general public road law is the purpose of another bill. This section reads: "No public road shall be opened or altered so as to pass through the buildings, gardens, yards or burial grounds of any person without the consent of such owners in writing."

A sixth bill amends the existing law relating to the compensation of police officials of the county by providing that patrolmen shall receive as high as $1,680 per annum, increased salaries to be based upon the following scale: For each two years of service a raise of $60 per annum until the maximum is reached. Increase would be granted only upon recommendation of the police chief. Patrolmen now receive $1,500 and are allowed $300 a year for the expenses of upkeep of motorcycles, uniforms, &c.

Clerk to the Grand Jury.

Another measure provides for the appointment of a stenographer as clerk to the grand jury, at such salary as the circuit court judges may determine. Penalty for violation of the oath of secrecy binding the clerk is fixed at a fine as high as $1,000 and a jail sentence of one year or both.

One of the bills offered by Dr. Edmonds would amend the charter of Gaithersburg. A change in the tenure of office of members of the town council is proposed, in that the bill stipulates that the two members elected in 1928 shall serve four years, dating from the first Monday in June of that year, and at the next election, in May, 1930, two members shall be elected for four-year terms. It provides a tax levy of 2 per cent of the assessed valuation for opening, widening, extending or repairing streets.

The other bill by Dr. Edmonds tightens a local law relating to the killing or trapping of foxes. The measure makes it unlawful to set a trap of any kind within 30 feet of a fox den, fixes May 1 to July 15, inclusive, as the closing season for hunting foxes and provides a fine of not less than $5 or more than $25 for violations with a jail sentence for failure to pay.

BRITSH NAVY COSTS FOR 1929 DECREASED

Estimates of $288,325,000 Submitted; 25 Ships to Be Laid Down.

AIR FLEET IS INCREASED

London, March 8 (A.P.).—Naval estimates for 1929, made public today, show a decrease of £1,435,000 over last year, but there will be no diminution in the strength of the fleet and the naval air service. The net total for this year's estimate is £35,865,000 ($288,325,000).

W. C. Bridgeman, first lord of the admiralty, in a statement accompanying the estimates, said:

"Apart from the fact that the reduction is somewhat greater than seems to have been expected, the estimates present few specially noteworthy features, based as they are on the naval policy adopted in 1925 when the program of new construction was announced in parliament."

The 1929 program includes provisions for beginning the construction of three cruisers, one flotilla leader, eight destroyers, six submarines, one netlayer and target towing vessel and six sloops. Two cruisers of the 1928 program which will be the 10,000-ton type are being ordered from the Portsmouth and Devonport dockyards. They are not yet laid down as provision was taken in the estimates for the ordering of the ships in March of this year.

The amount voted for new construction this year is £8,620,626 or $1,008,231 less than 1928. The main reason for this, Mr. Bridgeman explained, was the "cancellation of three cruisers from the 1927 and 1928 program, as a result of which only seven cruisers now being built will be at a stage requiring large payment in 1929 as against ten in the previous year and twelve in 1927."

The vote for the fleet's air arm shows an increase of £220,000, principally to meet the cost of further installment of aircraft—two flights—which are for the aircraft carrier Glorious which will be completely reconstructed and commissioned during 1929.

Suspect in Lincoln's Slaying Is Dead at 85

Parkersburg, W. Va., March 8.—William Palmer Rathbone, 85, who was arrested at Buffalo, N. Y., the day following the assassination of President Lincoln and held until it was established that he was not John Wilkes Booth, the assassin, has died at his home here.

Rathbone was deputy collector for West Virginia in Grover Cleveland's first administration, and for many years was connected prominently with business circles of Parkersburg.

At the time of the assassination of President Lincoln, Rathbone was on his honeymoon with his bride, formerly Miss Emma Hopkins. Buffalo authorities arrested him because of his resemblance to Booth. Rathbone was a member of a pioneer family of this section.

Birth Record Lists Harry Late as Girl

Baltimorean's Sex Confused on Certificate, Ship Job Application Shows.

Baltimore, March 8 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Harry E. Late, of New York, will shortly receive a letter from Health Commissioner Jones, of this city, notifying him that, according to the records of Baltimore Health Department, he was born a girl.

The letter is a reply to one written by late, who is 39. Late asked for a copy of his birth certificate, which had been demanded by the United States Shipping Board, to whom he applied for a position in the steward's department of the Leviathan. Late gave the name of his parents and his home as they appear on the record, which, however, gives his sex as female.

In his reply to Mr. Late, Dr. Jones stated that he "regretted to find" that Mr. Late had been recorded as a female, but that he would forward the certificate if "it would be of any service" to him under the circumstances. Dr. John Neff, who made out the certificate, is dead; so there is no possibility of an explanation of the error.

Drinking by Pupils Stirs Investigation

Racine, Wis., Board Delves Into Stories About Wild High School Parties.

Racine, Wis., March 8 (A.P.).—Rumors of widespread drinking and petting at junior high school parties were recognized by the Racine Board of Education today, when a sweeping investigation was ordered.

School functions at the Washington and McKinley Junior High Schools are mainly under fire, but the board's inquiry will include all phases of student activity throughout the city. It is charged the younsters have been bringing liquor to school parties.

Principal Thomas E. Saunders, of the Washington School, denied knowledge of such actions at parties there. Principal H. C. Kilbourn, of McKinley School, said at one party four boys brought home-brew, but drank outside. He learned of it next day and severely reprimanded them, he said.

Firemen's Hose Burned As Six Homes Are Lost

Special to The Washington Post.

Rocky Mount, Va., March 8.—Six families today surveyed the ruin of their homes destroyed by fire which got beyond control last night at the height of a gale. Firemen were helpless when the sweeping blaze reached their hose and destroyed most of it. Efforts were then concentrated on getting out furniture and effects. The loss was estimated at $50,000.

Those who lost their homes were Dr. N. T. Greer, Mrs. Madge Grubbs, Mrs. Steve Morris, Mrs. Steve Greet, T. F. Webb and Zadock Bernard, in whose home the fire originated.

Auction Sale Recalls Poverty of Schubert

Berlin, March 8 (A.P.).—The financial tragedy of Franz Schubert's musical career was recalled today at an auction of famous musical manuscripts, when a Berlin dealer obtained the score of the composer's "Erl Koenig" for approximately $5,000.

"Poor Schubert, that is more money than he probably saw in his entire life," said one music critic in a stage whisper, and "Poor Schubert" was on the lips of many other spectators.

Canadian Asks Ban On American Fruit

Parliament Leader Seeks to Retaliate for Higher Exports Tariff.

Ottawa, March 8 (A.P.).—Closing of the Canadian market to farm products from the United States in retaliation for increased tariffs on Canadian products entering the States has been urged by Hugh Guthrie, acting conservative leader in a speech before parliament.

He said farm products were imported into Canada from all parts of the world each year to the value of $60,000,000 while Canada exports to the United States agricultural products were slightly in excess of that amount.

"If the United States closes its doors on Canadian products, Canada can close hers on the agricultural products of the rest of the world. The Dominion is in a position to supply her own needs," he said.

MACKALL PRAISED BY ROADS WITNESS

Former Chief, Investigators Are Told, Saved Money for Marylanders.

LAUDS BUILDING SYSTEM

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., March 8.—Maryland's system of road building under the administration of John N. Mackall, former chairman and chief engineer of the State Roads Commission, was praised here today by Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the Federal Bureau of Roads, testifying before the joint meeting of the Nelligan commission, appointed by Gov. Ritchie and the grand inquest of the general assembly.

These two groups are investigating the roads commission scandal, involving embezzlement of funds amounting to $376,000 and alleged irregularities in the award of contracts.

Mr. Mackall has been the subject of much criticism, particularly in alleged improper procedure in letting contracts.

Called as a witness, MacDonald declared at the outset that this State's road-building policy under Mackall was "courageous and successful," equaled by few and surpassed by no other State. He said it had accomplished a system of secondary road building practically without costs and accrued benefits not found elsewhere.

Relieved of Bonded Debt, He Says.

The witness said the counties had been relieved of great bonded indebtedness through this system and that "the roads of Maryland are a splendid service to the people."

Starting with narrow highways and later following with shoulders was commended as sound, economic and successful. MacDonald took the Defense highway from Annapolis to Washington as an example.

"We all know," he said, "that this road must be widened, but under the existing system it will be made to pay for its widening without great bonded indebtedness."

Speaking of the awarding of contracts, MacDonald said the Government fixed three requirements before a bid could be submitted, namely, experience, equipment and financial backing.

Knows Nothing of Materials.

For nearly two hours he discussed road building in general, with special reference to Maryland. He was interrupted by Delegate Joseph A. Wilmer, member of the legislative group, and Edwin C. Baetjer, of counsel for the Nelligan commission, as to th disposition of surplus war materials furnished by the Federal Government to the Maryland Roads Commission.

MacDonald said he knew nothing of this since his department kept no further records, once such material was out of its hands. It has been shown that Maryland received more than $2,000,000 of such materials. Of what became of the bulk of this, there appears to be no record. On the other hand, the investigators have been told of a number of instances of items of value, ranging up to $5,000, that were turned over to private individuals, apparently as gifts.

Prior to hearing MacDonald the investigators heard more stories concerning the visit made by Thomas A. Butler, convicted roads employe and others to the office of the roads commission in the Garrett Building, when, it is alleged, a number of records were stolen and destroyed.

Visit Made Sunday, It Is Testified.

This was nearly a year ago. Whether the visit was made at night or in the daytime has been the subject of much contention. Witnesses today, who included J. Bernard Wells, assistant State's attorney of Baltimore City, and Ira Danforth, watchman in the Garrett Building, told the investigators the visit was made on a Sunday morning.

Senator Lansdale G. Sasscer, of Prince Georges County, introduced in the senate today a bill authorizing the community commissioners to issue bonds of $550,000 for road building purposes.

ALEXANDRIA PLANS KING STREET PAVING

City Manager Says Work Is to Start in Spring; Car Concern May Pay Part.

HEALTH CHIEF REPORTS

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.,
Phone Alexandria 523.

King street will be resurfaced for a distance of six squares, from Royal street to Patrick street, according to a statement made yesterday by City Manager Paul Morton, the work to be done in the early spring. Mr. Morton stated that he is now arranging for a conference with officials of the Mount Vernon, Alexandria & Washington Electric Railway Co., which will be asked to pay its proportion of the cost of the work and to arrange its tracks so that the improvement may be made. The company is supposed to pay the cost of paving between its tracks and for a distance of 2 feet on either side.

The present roadway on King street is vitrified brick, laid 25 years ago. During the World War the pavement suffered considerable damage owing to its use by heavy Army trucks. Since the war, traffic has been growing heavier and the street, in spite of frequent patching, is in poor condition.

Several years ago former City Manager Rich constructed one block of experimental paving on King street, between Patrick and Henry streets, which appears to have stood up well, and, although no definite statement to that effect has been made, it is assumed the new pavement will be of the same character.

The kind of surfacing will be determined by the city council at an early meeting

A review of the health conditions in the city, made by Dr. Lewis Schafer, city health officer, indicates that, with the exception of a number of cases of pneumonia which developed following the grip and influenza epidemic, no serious outbreak of other diseases has occurred.

The greatest accomplishment of the year, according to the report, was the tuberculosis clinic held recently, which resulted in the discovery and subsequent treatment of a number of cases of the disease which were unsuspected by patients.

There were 31 births and 29 deaths reported during the month.

Nation-wide observance of National Business and Professional Women's Week will begin with the local club tomorrow morning, when the members will attend the First Baptist Church to hear a sermon appropriate to the occasion by the Rev. P. L. Vernon.

On Tuesday the March supper and meeting of the club will be held at the George Mason Hotel at 7 o'clock.

Thursday evening there will be a public relations dinner at the George Mason, when an entertainment program will be provided. Members who desire to attend have been asked to notify Miss Adelyn Apperson, banquet chairman. This event will begin at 7 o'clock, simultaneously with other banquets throughout the United States in celebration of the week. The principal speaker at the local banquet will be Miss Sybil Baker, well known for her outstanding work in Washington dramatic and educational circles.

Three Fliers Killed In Crash of Plane

Excited Cries Aloft Warn of Trouble; Flames Envelop Craft.

Memphis, Tenn., March 8 (A.P.).—A short but desperate fight against death was lost by three aviators today when they failed to right some trouble with their plane and crashed in flames near Oakland, Miss.

The bodies were identified by watches and keys as Jess M. Windham, 30 years old, chief pilot of Newbry's Airport at Memphis; William Daniels, 19, Memphis pilot, and Morgan Ferrell, 27, a student flier of Greenwood, Miss.

Several persons saw the plane maneuvering as if in difficulty and heard the excited shouts of the fliers. Suddenly the plane dived to earth and was enveloped in flames. It was not determined which of the men was piloting. Until today Windham had never had a serious accident during his flying career, which began with his enlistment in the air forces during the World War, when he was assigned to the Canal Zone.

Tennessee Wife Slayer To Die in Electric Chair

Memphis, Tenn., March 8 (A.P.).—Charles S. Taylor, who killed his wife last December with a poker because she "nagged" him and placed her body in a trunk, where it remained for eight days, was found guilty of murder in the first degree by a criminal court jury late today. The verdict automatically carried the death penalty.

Taylor, 54 a barber, asserted during the trial that he had nothing to live for, but was fighting to escape the electric chair for the sake of his children and grandchildren, who had engaged counsel for him. March 30 was set as the date for hearing motion for a new trial.

Eleventh Named In Liquor Deaths

Two New Murder Writs Are Issued in Poisoned-Rum Fatalities.

Peoria, Ill., March 8 (A.P.).—Investigation of the score of poison liquor deaths in the Peoria district last weekend today brought about the issuance of two more murder warrants implicating an eleventh person in the distribution of the poisoned alcohol.

The new warrants named Herman Wohlferth, a bootlegger, and Maurice Mansfield, a wholesale liquor distributor who previously had been named in other murder warrants.

Wohlferth was said to have admitted selling the liquor blamed for the death of Chauncey Robbins. Wohlferth named Mansfield as the man who supplied him with the liquor.

Prohibition authorities in Chicago today declared an analysis of a bottle of the Mansfield liquor revealed it contained some 95 per cent proof wood alcohol.

Ways and Means Committee G. O. P. Members to Take Up Subject March 16.

(Associated Press.)

A special meeting of the Republican members of the House ways and means committee has been called for March 16 by Chairman Hawley, of the committee, to consider the work and problems of the subcommittees charged with the formulation of various schedules for tariff revision.

Chairman Hawley said yesterday that much progress had been made by the subcommittees toward selecting the items on which revision of tariff rates would be proposed at the special session of Congress beginning April 15. Indications are that the bill to revise the tariff will be introduced not later than April 20, Mr. Hawley said.

Chairman Hawley declared that a record was established in the recent hearings on tariff revision by his committee. The hearings continued for 45 days and about ten nights, exceeding the tariff hearings of 1921 by nine days. Eleven thousand pages of testimony were taken and 1,165 witnesses were heard. In addition approximately 1,000 briefs were filed.

Six Senators Sleep At Johnston Trial

Dull Testimony Occupies Session in Impeachment Case of Governor.

Oklahoma City, March 8 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Six senators were counted asleep at one time today in the senate impeachment court trying Gov. Henry S. Johnston while dull testimony took up the entire session. Johnston, after a day and a half on the stand, had not finished his examination in chief, which, his attorneys said, would continue over Saturday into Monday.

Not once was the name of Mrs. O. O. Hammonds, his discharged confidential secretary, mentioned today. Practically all the testimony was an effort to justify the Crostwhaite and Collins pardons, his employment of special officers designated unfit by the house managers and his defense of deficiency certificates upon which are based several of the impeachment charges.

In defense of his pardon policy, Johnston asserted he has issued only ten pardons all told, there being only three or four governors in the United States who have issued fewer

Canada Mail-Theft Search Traps Pair

Woman and Man, Taken in Pittsburgh, Said to Know of $125,000 Loot.

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 8 (A.P.).—A man and a woman were arrested here today in connection with the robbery of $125,000 in bonds and money from the Canadian postal service at Toronto, Canada, last June. They are Catherine Meyers, 25, alias Mildred Meyers, and Harry Meyers, alias "Dopey Davis." City detectives who made the arrests were convinced the pair hold the key to the whereabouts of the loot and of a third man wanted in connection with the holdup.

The Meyers woman was alleged to be a shoplifter. It was to her apartment here, police said, the missing man was to have come when the trail cooled.

Detectives refused to divulge the identity of the third man, but it was believed he is a fur thief recently released from Western Penitentiary here, where he served eight years for a fur theft amounting to $20,000. Two men are now under arrest in Toronto in connection with the plot, police said.

Score Injured as Train Hits Loaded Street Car

Syracuse, N. Y., March 8 (U.P.).—More than a score of persons were injured, none seriously, tonight when a West Shore freight train struck the rear end of a loaded trolley car. Six of the injured were taken to hospitals but none was believed in serious condition.

The accident happened near the center of the city. The crossing is protected by signal lights and there were two watchmen on duty when the street car started across the railroad tracks in front of the freight train.

Police Testimony Perils Gang Case

Answers "No" When "Yes" Right Response; Court Is Thrown Into Uproar.

Chicago, Ill., March 8 (A.P.).—A policeman appearing in court today against a suspect in the Moran gang killings gave an unexpected answer to a question that almost caused the State's case to collapse.

The suspect was John Scalice, member of the Capone gang, charged with seven murders—one for each of the Moran gang killed in the St. Valentine's Day massacre. Scalice's attorney declared the policeman who signed the complaints had no "just and reasonable grounds" for the charges as the complaint specified, so the policeman was called.

"Have you just and reasonable grounds for your charges?" he was asked.

"No," said the policeman, and the municipal courtroom was thrown into an uproar with Scalice's attorneys shouting that the arrest was a "travesty on justice." Assistant State's attorneys hurriedly were summoned and said that Scalice had been identified as one of the killers.

The court then set his case for hearing on March 16.

LEAGUE ACTS TODAY ON FORMULA OF ROOT

United States felt it had an interest involved in a given question the two sides could discuss points at issue.

It was practically certain, he believes, that agreement would be reached by rephrasing the request or by one party or the other withdrawing from its position in deference to recognition of the correctness of the other's attitude. Finally, if all these efforts failed, the United States would be free to resign from the court.

Mr. Root had prefaced his exposition with expressions of affection for Latin America; he recalled his visit there in 1906 and the honors and courtesies he had received everywhere.

Root Warmly Thanked.

A De Aguero y Bethancourt, of Cuba; J. Valdesmendeville, of Chile, and Cesar Zumeta, of Venzeula, warmly thanked Mr. Root for his explanation and courteous references to the peoples of Latin-America, Mr. Aguero frankly announced that Cuba would support the Root formula of adhesion to the World Court, "or any other American formula."

Mr. Zumeta, said Venezuela would hail with joy the overcoming of difficulties and the adhesion of the United States. Mr. Valdes said he felt sure an agreement would be reached.

As the conference ended, an official communique was issued announcing that Sir Austen Chamberlain, British foreign secretary, would present tomorrow to the council a proposal concerning "the accession of the United States to the protocol of the permanent court of international justice." This will instruct the committee of jurists, meeting on Monday, to take up the question.

Committee Powers Increased.

The council increased the powers of the committee so as to enable it, in considering revision of the court's statutes, to examine the proposals which have been brought forward by Root.

The question will be officially handled at a public session of the council tomorrow as that body wishes to accord it the public discussion it should have and to give public testimony of its pleasure over the American initiative.

The committee of jurists will be empowered to take up the question of American membership in its entirety. This includes consideration of the American note to the powers in February and the Root formula for the settlement of difficulties raised by the American reservation concerning advisory opinions.

New Protocol Seen.

Hitherto the mandate of the jurists had been merely to study the statutes of the court and to determine whether they required modification in the light of past experience.

Today's preliminary decision implies that the committee's power would be increased so that it would be authorized to submit a new protocol fixing the condition of American adhesion. This protocol would be a substitute for the one adopted at an international conference in 1926, which the United States never accepted because it did not accord a desired veto privilege in requests for advisory opinions.

Press Units Make Radio Wave Pact

Ask U. S. Board to Assign 40 Short Channels as Mapped in Accord.

(Associated Press.)

Disagreeing factions among applicants for short wave communication channels, set aside for the use of the press by the Radio Commission, reached an agreement yesterday which they submitted to the commission.

In the agreement, which the commission will consider later, the International News Service, the United Press and the Associated Press would each receive seven of the 40 channels available. The remaining nineteen channels would be allocated to the Consolidated Press and the large newspapers that maintain news distributing organizations.

The allocation of the channels, the commission was informed, would be predicated on the commission's waiving the policy which requires all those receiving short wave channels to become public utilities.

EXPERTS, PARIS TOLD, FAVOR WORLD BANK

Young's Plan Understood to Be Indorsed by Experts' Session.

PLENARY MEETING HELD

Paris, March 8 (U.P.).—The international committee of experts on reparations have decided unanimously in favor of a "world bank" or clearing house on a tremendous scale to handle the troublesome financial liquidation of the war, it was understood tonight.

The experts held two plenary sessions today at which the report of a subcommittee on the International Bank, which was conceived by Owen D. Young, of the United States, was considered. The experts then adjourned until Monday, but will start tomorrow studying the report, which will be published as an official statement.

The plan, it was understood, permits participation in the bank by nations other than those concerned in reparations, and provides for its location in a neutral country of Europe, probably Holland or Switzerland.

An important feature of the plan is that the bank will create a commercial section to stimulate trade, handle Germany's deliveries in kind, seek, to bolster exports and permit stabilizing of European exchange rates.

The question still remains of what the bank will use as money, how much gold reserves will be necessary and how much each nation will be asked to deposit.

Germany was understood to have made a tentative offer this week of a specific total sum which she is willing to pay in reparations, but Young, as chairman of the experts, pigeonholed the offer temporarily, preferring that the experts complete organization of the bank before considering any German offer.

The report of the Stamp subcommittee on transfers also was considered at today's sessions. Sir Josiah Stamp, chairman of the subcommittee, left for London, reportedly to discuss the latest developments with his government.

New Waldorf-Astoria Hotel Planned, Report

New York, March 8 (A.P.).—A new and more sumptuous Waldorf-Astoria Hotel than the one soon to give way to a skyscraper will rise on fashionable Park avenue, announcement by Lucius M. Boomer, president of the Hotel Corporation, disclosed today.

The new hotel, to be known as the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria, will be erected at a total cost of more than $40,000,000. It will be upward of 40 stories in height, with more than 2,000 rooms, and will occupy the entire block bound by Park and Lexington avenues and Forty-ninth and Fiftieth streets. Construction will be started in the fall.

Home of Police Chief Is Damaged by Bomb

Beaver Falls, Pa., March 8 (A.P.).—The home of William Davidson, chief of police, was damaged by a bomb today. The bomb, placed under the front steps, wrecked the porch and shattered windows in nearby residences. No one was injured.

The blast awoke students in dormitories at Geneva College, a half block away. Many of them rushed to the street in night clothing. Chief Davidson believes the bomb was planted by bootleggers against whom he has been waging war.

Customs of India Told by Lecturer

Lowell Thomas Gives Talk to National Geographic Society Members.

The strange customs and the stranger religions practiced by the diverse peoples of India were described and pictured for members of the National Geographic Society last night by Lowell Thomas in an illustrated address at the Washington Auditorium.

Castes whose religion it is to steal, holy men who stand on their heads for hours, cows that are treated as gods, and great religious ceremonies participated in by scores of thousands of worshipers were shown by means of motion pictures.

The wild tribes just over the northwestern border in Baluchistan and Afghanistan are kept from pouncing on the peaceful millions of India only by the constant alertness of the British garrisons, Mr. Thomas declared. The three great boons to India furnished by the British, he said, are this defense against looting, the establishment of a railway system that has made it possible quickly to ship grain into famine districts, and irrigation systems that have lessened famines.

New Yorker Given Advertising Prize

Gold Medal, Bok Trophy, Is Presented by Harvard; Others Are Cited.

Cambridge, Mas., March 8 (A.P.).—Rene Clark, art director of Calkins & Holden, New York advertising agency, tonight received a gold medal coveted prize of the Harvard advertising awards founded by E. W. Bok, and awarded annually for meritorious accomplishments in the advertising fields. Cash awards totaling $12,000 also were made.

The presentations were made at a dinner attended by 100 guests, all prominent in the advertising profession.

In a citation the jury which chose the winners said Clark had been selected "because of his efforts both as artist and art director in raising the standards of advertising through example and through the teaching of young men and women in the profession." The award of $2 000 in the national campaign for a specific product went to the Ford Motor Co., Detroit, for the advertising of both the Ford car and the general subject of aviation.

Prince of Wales' Bull Goes to the Argentine

Birmingham, England, March 8 A.P.).—Royal Lavender III, a pure bred shorthorn bull owned by the Prince of Wales, has been sold for $2,500 for export to the Argentine. It won the championship and other chief awards at the Southern Midland and Welsh Breeders' Association show here.

The reserve championship went to Capt. J. V. MacGillivray's Colrossie Butterfly Monarch, which was sold for $3,500. Another bull which will be exported to South America, Rickford Dazzle, shown by Sir Vernon Wills, brought $2,250. The Prince of Wales, Climsland Gold Mint sold for $1,200.

LEAGUE SENDS U. S. FINANCIAL AID PACT

Project to Assist Victims of Aggression Linked With Kellogg Treaty.

SEEN AS NEEDED "TEETH"

Geneva, March 8 (A.P.).—Developments in the council of the League of Nations today had a decidedly American tinge. Negotiations for American membership in the World Court of Justice continued. The council decided to send a proposed treaty calling for financial assistance for states threatened with aggression or victims of aggression to the United States and other nonmembers of the league.

The probable American adhesion to The Hague tribunal for settlement of judicial disputes is linked in the minds of statesmen here with the Kellogg pact for the renunciation of war.

In his celebrated formula to pave the way for American affiliation, Elihu Root was believed to have proclaimed a political doctrine having special appeal to the psychology of Anglo-Saxon peoples. He has got down to the concrete and has flung the abstract into the dust heap.

Just as England rejected the Geneva peace protocol because it committed the British fleet to unknown adventures in the future, so the United States was deemed nonreceptive to any machinery for political action which engages her responsibility in general and in undefined combinations of world conflict.

In voting to send the treaty of financial assistance to the United States the council was believed to have been actuated by the convictions that the project was connected in a sense with the Capper and Porter resolutions to put "teeth" in the Kellogg pact.

The hope was that the United States might apply its provisions in concrete cases against a country which wantonly violated the Kellogg pact and launched in an aggressive war.

Foreign Minister Gustav Stresemann, of Germany, had another conversation with Sir Austen Chamberlain tonight on general European problems, including reparations and evacuation of the Rhineland. Spokesmen for both British and French delegations denied that there had been any interchange of views here concerning the total reparations that Germany would pay.

Australians See Naval Academy

150 Boys Welcomed on Visit by Superintendent and State Officials.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., May 8.—"One of the most pleasant trips of my career in the Navy was my visit to your home country and I hope your visit to the United States will likewise be pleasant," Rear Admiral Samuel S. Robison, superintendent of the Naval Academy, said in welcoming the 150 boys of the Young Australia League, who visited Annapolis today.

The boys came over from Washington, where they have been passing this week after attending the Hoover inaugural ceremonies. They made the trip in six motor buses and were escorted by Mayor Smith and committees of the Chamber of Commerce, Rotary Club and Civitan Club. They were taken to the State House, where Gov. Ritchie welcomed them in behalf of the State and presented them with a Maryland flag. Addresses also were delivered by Mayor Smith, Clarence M. White, president of the Chamber of Commerce; Ridgeley P. Melvin, on behalf of the Rotary Club, and R. Thornton Strange, for the Civitan Club. The Rotary Club presented a loving cup and the Civitans a large framed picture of the State House.

The youngsters had luncheon as guests of the regiment of midshipmen in the "mess" room of Bancroft Hall, made an inspection of buildings and grounds of the naval reservation, also of St. John's College and some of the historic homes, and returned to Washington shortly after 4 after a stay of nearly five hours. The Washington visit of the boys will end Sunday. Monday they go to Baltimore.

New York Gets New Auto Lights

Walker Starts Light System, Operated Electrically, in Central Area.

New York, March 8 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The slender forefinger of Maj. Walker's right hand today pressed against a special switch in the West Thirtieth Street Police Station, theerby starting the city's new automatically operated traffic light system.

The new system takes in traffic lights from Chambers street to 125th street in the north and south direction, and on east and west lanes between Lexington and Seventh avenues. Eventually the plans call for control of 4,500 signals, dispensing with almost that many traffic officers.

Prior to the new installation, traffic signals were operated singly and in blocks by hand. The new arrangement is operated by electrical apparatus.

The present installations control 75 miles of streets, including 440 intersections. Finally, the mileage will be 242 and the intersections 2,061. The theater traffic zone, which operates on a cycle of 70 seconds for north and south and 40 seconds for east and west, is contained in the system now in effect.

3,000 Speeches Planned For Elections in Italy

Rome, March 8 (A.P.).—Prefects from all the Italian provinces were gathered in Rome tonight in readiness for a conference on the Italian political situation with Premier Mussolini tomorrow morning. About 3,000 speeches are scheduled for the last week of the parliamentary electoral campaign terminating March 24. The present conference is designed to give the duce's aids their directives.

A meeting of "all the forces of the regime" will be held Sunday in the Royal Opera House at which Premier Mussolini will make a speech setting forth the achievements of Fascism for the past seven years.

Democrats to Follow Middle Road on Tariff

(United Press.)

The Democratic minority of 163 in the next House probably will take the middle road on tariff revision, moderate duties but not free trade, according to Representative John McDuffie, of Alabama, new minority whip.

Minority Leader Garner, of Texas, will call a conference of his lieutenants ten days before the special session convenes on April 15 to draft the Democratic attitude on remodeling of the tariff law, McDuffie said.

AMERICA AND MEXICO.

The United States Government is technically right when it extends aid to the Mexican government in its struggle with rebellion, but experience gives warning that when the United States takes sides in Mexican embroglios the lives and property of American citizens are apt to be endangered.

Apparently the administration is convinced that the Mexican uprising will be short-lived, and that duty to a friendly neighbor calls for prompt as well as effective assistance. But this opinion may well be subjected, also, to the teachings of experience. No one knows whether the rebellion will be short or long, or whether it will succeed or fail. Much depends upon the outcome of early encounters between loyal and insurgent troops. But it is certain that a large if not predominant part of the Mexican population is antagonistic to the Calles-Portes Gil regime. So far as the population can give aid and comfort to the revolutionists it will do so. If Calles can hold the loyalty of the bulk of the army he can disregard popular opposition and crush the rebellion; but he can never be sure of this loyalty. The disaffection of the troops is evidently widespread.

If the revolutionists should have the good fortune to be led by capable generals they may win over a sufficient part of the army to overturn Calles. The revolutionists will quickly learn that the United States Government is furnishing war material to Calles. This may lead to reprisals against Americans in Mexico, who may be beyond the protection of the Mexican government. In some instances arms furnished by the United States have been turned against Americans.

The Mexican government has been friendly on the surface, but it has not repealed the laws which confiscate American property. It has not earned such regard as to warrant the United States in risking the lives of Americans for the sake of befriending the present regime. A cautious policy in regard to Mexico is obviously advisable.

GIVE THE VETERANS PREFERENCE.

In June, 1928, there was appointed by the President a committee to study liberalization of civil service rules in favor of disabled veterans. Until that time the Government had provided compensation, hospitalization and rehabilitation for veterans, but it had neglected to aid them in obtaining employment. The committee set diligently to work and formulated a program. One of the last executive orders issued by Mr. Coolidge provided for making effective the committee's recommendations.

Under the new rules all veterans having disabilities of 10 per cent or more and who are qualified under the civil service for Government positions will be placed on the preferred lists, retaining the privilege of being credited with 10 points over the rating they make in their examinations. Qualified wives of veterans who are not physically qualified for appointment, and widows of veterans will receive a 10-point increase in their examinations instead of 5 points, and will be certified ahead of others. Furthermore, when reductions become necessary in personnel, no employe entitled to military preference in appointment shall be reduced in rank or dropped if his record is good or if his efficiency rating is equal to that of any employe retained.

The civil service liberalization program was worked out by a committee consisting of Gen. Frank T. Hines, director of the Veterans' Bureau; William C. Deming, president of the Civil Service Commission, and Col. John T. Taylor, of the American Legion, with Representative Hamilton Fish, of New York, as chairman. In the opinion of the latter the scheme as worked out will benefit 250,000 disabled veterans.

It is entirely proper and just that the Government should have adopted a plan to aid veterans in obtaining employment, but there is need for further work toward this end. The Government is unable to give employment to every disabled veteran. In some cases the individual has good reason to prefer employment in industry; he may, for example, have talent or ability that can not find expression in a Government job. Although industry has found places for many such veterans, still there are some who in the ten years since the war have not been able to find their niche. Private employers should emulate the Government in giving preference to disabled veterans, remembering the promises they made in 1917 to those who marched away to war.

DANGER TO SCHOOL CHILDREN.

The gale which swept over Washington at the rate of 45 miles per hour Thursday served to focus public attention on the deplorable housing conditions of the public schools. If reports of the damage done to some of the portable school buildings are correct, it is a miracle that none of the occupants were injured. The wind lifted a corner of the roof from one portable school and left the ceiling in a dangerous condition. The pupils were exposed to flying glass and debris. The roof was torn from another school, and a third portable building was damaged.

The actual damage done does not fully indicate the danger to which Washington school children are exposed every time a high wind comes up. There are 75 portable buildings used for school purposes in the city, housing 2,500 children. A more severe gale might have reduced a number of these buildings to ruins, with many casualties. And the only measure that can be taken to correct the situation, for the present at least, is the dismissal of classes when a windstorm threatens. Superintendent Ballou ordered pupils in the portables dismissed after the damage had been reported on Thursday, and school authorities are considering adoption of a general policy of releasing children when their lives are in danger.

"Many of our portable buildings are getting old and most of them have been moved at least once, so that they are not the secure, safe structures they should be," Mr. Ballou said. "In view of the damage these buildings suffer from storms, it is important that we take steps to safeguard pupils." It is not surprising that parents should be indignant at the necessity of sending their children to such dangerous school buildings.

The only excuse for housing children in portable schools is to allow time for construction of more suitable quarters. But many of the portables used in Washington have grown old and are not even satisfactory as temporary structures any longer. The public is wondering if it will take the death of a dozen children in one of these shacks to wake Congress up to the needs of providing the District with necessary school buildings. The school expansion program has been postponed from year to year until the situation is a disgrace to the Nation.

THE FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM.

Paul M. Warburg, chairman of the International Acceptance Bank and one of the original members of the Federal Reserve Board, criticizes those in charge of the Federal Reserve system for procrastination and hesitancy. "Today," he says, "the country's banking system is tossing about without its helm being under the control of its pilots." Speculative overexpansion, he warns, inevitably leads to overcontraction and distress. Within the short span of a year, he adds, the Federal Reserve system lost its leadership owing to its failure promptly and effectively to contract its facilities.

Mr. Warburg's position in the field of finance entitles him to respectful attention. That he believes the present market situation is loaded with potential trouble may well give cause for concern. What suggestions, then, does he make for improvement? "The fault," he says, "does not seem to lie so much with the men in charge of the system as with the structural defect of its administrative organization." It may be inferred that in his opinion an organization composed of 120 men, acting through twelve separate boards of directors and operating subject to the review and determination of a central board of eight men, who may be wide apart in their views and bewildered by political influences and attacks, can not function effectively.

In 1923 Mr. Warburg advised a congressional committee that the Senate should give up its prerogative of confirming reappointments of members of the Federal Reserve Board, so that there should be an end to political meddling. Now he advises the banking fraternity "to anticipate radical congressional proposals by taking the lead in seeking the lines along which reform may be brought about." This is sound advice, especially when considered with the following phrase: "While it is obvious that we could not and should not give to one man, or to one single set of men, the wide autocratic powers that would assure the greatest efficiency in the administration of the central banking system, it is equally clear that, as at present constituted, the machinery governing its steering apparatus is too complicated to be either safe or efficient."

Wherein lies the happy medium? The East differs radically from the West in its financial needs, and the North from the South. What might be advisable in the East might prove disastrous in the West. Generally speaking, the Federal Reserve system has functioned creditably since its establishment, and it would be folly indeed to tamper with it unless improvement were assured. Nor is there general agreement with Mr. Warburg that a severe money or credit crisis is at hand. Nevertheless, it is highly desirable that the Nation's bankers should study the workings of the great central system, in order to bring about greater efficiency if possible.

FIRE-SAFE BUILDINGS.

The problem of fire prevention has been studied for centuries, and with the growth of modern cities vast sums have been spent to equip and maintain elaborate fire-fighting apparatus. Concerted efforts have been made to instruct the public as to the danger of fire, yet the annual toll in destruction of property in this country reaches nearly $500,000,000. Fire departments are often hampered by traffic congestion and the concentration of huge buildings in small areas. Campaigns for prevention of fire have not achieved their objective because of popular indifference and carelessness.

The most recent movement to curb unnecessary fire loss is in the construction of fire-safety buildings. It has been found that humanity is too fallible to eliminate fire waste by being careful, and that fire engines can only reduce and never eliminate loss of lives and property. Therefore the demand for buildings which will reduce the fire risk to a minimum may be expected to increase. Architects and builders can render a valuable service to the country by fostering this movement and creating public sentiment in its favor.

A pamphlet recently published by the National Board of Fire Underwriters points out what can be accomplished by those engaged in the building industry in this respect. In the past architects have been principally interested in meeting the requirements of building codes, and, as a rule, little attention has been given safety features beyond the legal requirements. The safety codes of most of the States are inadequate. There is general need for revision of such codes in the direction of higher standards. Better results could likewise be obtained if architects and builders made it essential for every structure planned to have the standard fire-safe requirements. It is less expensive in the long run to build fire-safe structures. As soon as the public can be converted to that economy the national fire loss can be greatly reduced.

A CLEAR FIELD FOR REPUBLICANS.

President Hoover is beginning his administration under favorable political auspices. There is a comfortable Republican majority in both the Senate and House, and the President's relations with the party leaders in both houses are such as to indicate an era of cooperation between the legislative and executive departments.

The Senate will have a workable Republican majority of sixteen when Congress meets in extra session on April 15. During the last two years the majority has ranged from two to five, which gave the Republicans only one more member on important committees than the Democrats, and an equal number on other committees. The membership will now be reassigned so that the Republicans will have a majority of two or three on all committees. Party disloyalty by senators calling themselves Republicans often played havoc with Republican policies.

Republican domination of the House is still more pronounced. The November election swelled the Republican membership to 267, giving a majority of 102 over the Democrats. There is one Farmer-Labor member. Realignment of the committees will give the major party twice as many members as its opponents in the most important groups. Moreover, Representative Tilson, the majority leader, has made known that he will use the increased strength of the party to support Mr. Hoover's policies. Even if the Senate should not fall in line with the administration, the House will be able to block any legislation that does not meet Mr. Hoover's approval.

A constructive administration is impossible when a President finds himself confronted with a Congress of differing political views. The situation is hardly more satisfactory when disloyalty obstructs the program of the majority party. Thus far no major issues have appeared on which the legislative majority is likely to break away from the party program. The stage has been cleared to allow the Republican party to carry out its campaign pledges. Seldom in the history of the country has any party had a better opportunity to put its policies into operation.

Where much is given much is expected. The extent to which the Republican party measures up to the confidence that the people of the United States have placed in it will determine the action of the electorate two years and four years hence.

THE KELLOGG TREATY

From the Detroit News.

In judging the value of the Kellogg agreement to outlaw war there is, in some quarters, a tendency to overlook the source from which that document draws its real strength. It is as true now as in the past that the written phrases of treaties are less important than the unwritten ones. The unwritten clauses of the Kellogg agreement are numerous and potent.

Time was when wars were deliberately arranged. There was virtually no secrecy about it. One king, or powerful governing group, desired a specific object: land, revenues, tribute, trade-routes. Every one knew of these ambitions and intentions, and every one knew that such a war for such an object was in the making. Bribes, assassinations, diplomatic alliances were resorted to in an effort to delay the day or obstruct the issue.

The great war of 1914-1918 was probably the last conflict in which such deliberate prearrangement will be dominant. Even then a change of attitude was apparent. That war was not initially popular with those who were compelled to fight it. Nor did the stage-managers dare to reveal the deliberateness of the plans for it; these had to be concealed, sugared with fake patriotism and artificial causes of injury. There is no diminution in admiration of the heroes of that conflict, but there is a very marked decrease of pride in the conflict. In effect, that war marked the turning point in international relations; it was a half and half war, half belonging to the old age of premeditated warfare, and half belonging to a new age which insists on sound reasons and, having those reasons, prefers an honorable settlement in other ways than war.

It is not surprising that the so-called great war came, all things considered. But if any one carefully reviews postwar events, and notes crisis after crisis, bitter grievances, deadlocks, quarrels, jealousies and the like, it is at least worth noting that no hostilities have resulted from any of them within what may be called the sphere of relationship of the acknowledged powers. Nor have there been bribes or diplomatic alliances or assassinations to divert such wars, for the general grouping of the powers today is the same as when the Versailles Treaty was signed.

The prime unwritten clause of the Kellogg agreement, whence it draws its strength, is the determination of peoples not to make war, without a cause so compelling and so just that it merits world approval; and not to make war then, if such a ruinous conclusion can be honorably averted. No war can be planned on this earth, deliberately and secretly, with the acquiescence of the people in such methods; and without that acquiescence war of any sort has become impossible.

The Kellogg agreement is not an oddity imposed in experimental fashion on a skeptical world; it is a peculiarly accurate expression of world thought and purpose.

Boston Transcript: A Canadian statesman wants to know why in the house of commons he must write with an American pen on paper made in the United States, and study Canada as depicted in an American atlas. To Overcome Your Longing to Lick the Teacher, Grow Up and Get Rich.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

BACK in the Dark Ages, when the poor were hungry, unwashed and unlettered, the man who had enemies took steps to be rid of them. He went to a sorcerer or an apothecary and paid hard money for a charm or a poison, or he carried a piece of steel to slip between the ribs.

His methods were vulgar and unethical, but his purpose was commendable. Any man does well to rid himself of enemies, for an enemy is a handicap.

But disposing of an enemy is not the simple business it once was. The portion of society that provokes most of the newspaper headlines feels free to use violence still, but the civilized man must find a better way.

Poison and lethal weapons are useless. They take the enemy's life but make the law his avenger. And if the civilized man strikes in quick anger and later escapes the law, his conscience troubles him at night and thus his enemy has the better of him still.

Yet an enemy must be disposed of. If he is not an actual menace, at least he is a torment. He troubles your thoughts; absent or present, he robs you of happiness and spoils your world; active or passive he injures you, for the hate he inspires darkens your days and makes your food bitter. He whips you so long as you tolerate his existence.

How shall you be quit of him? Forgive? It is easy to say. But even divine forgiveness must be purchased. If a man will repent and ask forgiveness, his sin is forgotten. On those terms mere man could forgive, also; but enemies seldom humble themselves in that way.

You must dispose of him without his cooperation, and there is but one practicable way.

Nearly all enmity, though vanity may deny it, is a result of envy or fear. And since fear of men is rare in these times, it is a safe assumption that you hate because you envy.

There are contributory causes, of course. You can name scores. But if your enemy loses his money, reputation and liberty, or you achieve wealth and fame, your hatred evaporates.

Here, then, is the secret.

I hated a boy named Walter. He was older than I; could beat me at marbles; wore better clothes; was a grade ahead of me in school. Then he stopped growing. Two years later I could lick him; I caught up with him in school and found him stupid; my clothes were as good as his. In a patronizing way I became rather fond of him.

The rabbit can hate the wolf, but the wolf can't hate the rabbit.

THE AMERICAN BREAKFAST.

Time was when the American, with a tradition of farm folk dominating his kitchen, sat down to a heaping bowl of oatmeal and followed it with good red meat and fried potatoes, eggs and, in New England, pie, comments the New York Herald Tribune. The dietitians, aided by the subtle education of Oregon apple experts and citrus growers' exchanges, long ago made fruit an indispensable part of the American morning menu, and the increasing incapacity of the desk worker to digest an old-fashioned tableful has cut the menu bit by bit. A few supersophisticated travelers return from Europe pleading inability to get beyond coffee and toast; but Europe, in simple truth, knows very little about breakfast. The glory of the morning meal, as Americans have discovered in the last two decades, is the grapefruit, and the rest of breakfast is a merry array of side dishes.

In Paris, in peace conference days, one American, in bed with the "flu," begged another to find him grapefruit. And the other searched all Paris, and finally discovered a dealer in exotic fruits who had met the grapefruit in America, found it succulent, and imported young trees to his orchards in Anjou. They were doing, he said, excellently; he hoped that in another year they might bear fruit.

Today there is grapefruit in all the big Paris hotels—for Americans. There is grapefruit in London—for Americans. It is the bright, particular star of the American breakfast table, the great discovery of visiting Europeans, ranked next to the New York skyline among the wonders of the New World.

Senator Reed may go home to Kansas City reassured. Herbert Hoover is in the White House, but, despite all his years of residence abroad, he eats an American breakfast. He has been misled neither by the kippered herring of London nor by the continental croissant. Grapefruit, bacon and eggs, coffee and toast—that is the presidential menu, and it is indubitably 1929 American.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Why the Retirement Bill Failed.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Some of your correspondents don't seem to grasp why a Congress more than two-thirds favorable to the Dale retirement bill, failed to enact the measure. In 1926, after repeated pussy-footing with President Coolidge, Mr. Lehlbach, of New Jersey, announced that the Senate bill for $1,200 retirement annuity would not be approved by the President, but one for $1,000 would. It became a law. The Senate in the Seventieth Congress passed a bill that about covered all the majority of the employes could expect. It was held up by Mr. Snell, chairman of the rules committee, presumably at the request of the President, in May, 1928, after having been favorably reported by the civil service committee. In Mr. Coolidge's message to Congress, December, 1928, he said that there was a "liberal retirement law." There was, therefore, no reason to suppose he had changed his mind since the spring, or would approve the pending bill. No attempt to force a vote, in a House favorable to the bill, was made until February, when the presidential clique—as in the previous May—held up consideration until the 10 days' veto period would be covered by March 4. Had the chairman of the joint committee on retirement secured the votes to the petition in January—not in February—a certain veto would have surely been defeated, and the bill would have become a law from July 1, 1928. Never can the employes be in as favorable a position again.

JOHN H. STEINER.

A New Inaugural Plan.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It seems to be just as impossible to get the inaugural date changed as to control the weather on that date. The question, then, is what is the best thing to do. We suggest the following plan: On March 4 let the President take oath of office without any ceremony. Let the date of June 1 following be made a legal holiday in the District of Columbia, to be observed once in four years. It can be called Union day. Let the President issue a call to the States, and on Union day every four years have the governors and staffs of every State and Territory come to Washington. Then let the governors with official staffs and State standards assemble at the east front of the Capitol, and with the President at the head, have the Chief Justice administer a renewed oath of allegiance. Then, with the President leading, have a parade with review at the White House.

When the new Washington becomes a reality such a parade and gathering would be something of great beauty and inspiration to all who take part or see it as spectators. On June 1 the foliage is out, the flowers in bloom and the air warm. Washington is at its best in beauty, and with the new public buildings, new avenues and the Avenue of States lined with statehouses, Union day would be an occasion for all from North, East, South and West to come and join in an event that all would rejoice to take part in. Let the States fall in line in the order of their admission into the Union.

We believe this plan to be simple and feasible and far better than the one now in vogue. It appeals to all the people and not to any partisan spirit, and all citizens would want to see such a celebration in the National Capital. If the citizens of Washington will get behind some plan like this, in 1933, following the inauguration of a new President, there can be a ceremony and celebration that will be a great event. A.

Such a Life!

St. Louis Post-Dispatch: The W. C. T. U. has compiled some galloping statistics. According to the data, where one person per 1,000,000 population died from alcoholism in 1920, 40 perished in 1927. Incorrigible optimists that they are, the W. C. T. U. is always finding something to cheer us weary pilgrims on the way.

80 Years Ago

The Waltz was introduced to Washington

—by a foreign nobleman who spread havoc with the ladies' dresses by the spurs which he insisted on wearing. Hostesses of that day gave many balls.

They bought their dishes and other requirements for entertaining at a little store which has served Washington ever since. Hostesses still depend on Dulin & Martin's.

They will find the new location on Connecticut Avenue and L Street a greater convenience. Here will soon be opened a new building to house the expanded lamp, china, glassware, silver, furniture and housefurnishings departments.

MIAMI DEATH HUNT BLOCKED BY SILENCE

Clark, With Rothstein's Old Aid, Walsh, at Killing, Discuss Affair.

SUPPOSED WITNESS FREED

Miami, Fla., March 3 (A.P.).—A wall of silence checkmated attempts today of Dade County investigators as they sought a solution of the killing of Thomas (Fatty) Walsh and searched for evidence of gangster operations here and in the North.

Eddie Wilson, proprietor of the gambling suite in the fashionable Miami Biltmore Hotel, sought as the slayer of the former bodyguard of Arnold Rothstein, was still at large. Wilson is alleged to have been in partnership in the gambling venture with Walsh, K. E. Gaylord and with Arthur Clark, who was wounded at the time Walsh was killed.

Witness Soon Released.

"He'd better come on in and take his rap," Clark declared today from his cell in the Dade County Jail after he had steadfastly refused to comment to officials on the killing that threw scores of fashionable patrons of the establishment in frenzy early Thursday morning.

Howard Fappil, sought as a material witness in the killing, was taken at his winter home in Coral Gables today, only to be released tonight when he was unable to throw light upon the case. Police had been informed earlier that he was also known under the name of "Sicilian Tony" Aleppo, but asserted later that this was not the case.

Clark and four other witnesses of the killing were taken before the grand jury today for questioning. The names of the other four men were not given out, and no indictment was returned today.

Wilson Is Not Found.

Finding Wilson seemed tonight not as much of a certainty as that he would be indicted. Wilson is well known in Miami through several years of part-time residence here. One report was that he had been seen in St. Petersburg today. Another was that he had driven his own automobile to the west coast, where it was reported he had left on a boat for the Bahama Islands, Cuba and Mexico. Still another report was he had been seen in a Miami Beach night club last night.

Arthur Clark, now believed to have been a member of the Jack Diamond gang in the North, refused to give information on the killing today. "I'm going to get well, and then I'll settle it," was his only comment, and investigators understood from this that he intended to follow the gangland rule of settling difficulties personally.

Clark told investigators that he and Walsh had had a 22½ per cent interest in the gambling establishment and that a 10 per cent interest had been set aside to "fix things." Officials were investigating this statement.

W. L. Bowen, held as a witness, was released tonight under $5,000 bond.

Not Rothstein Aftermath.

New York, March 8 (A.P.).—Police Commissioner Grover Whalen announced tonight that four detectives he has had stationed in Miami had reported to him that the killing there of Thomas ("Fatty") Walsh was purely a "local matter" and had no connection with the slaying of Arnold Rothstein, Walsh's former employer.

This report refuted a previous police theory that Walsh might have been "rubbed out" because of knowledge he was supposed to have had about the identity of his former chief's slayer.

Even though the killing of Walsh was not an aftermath of the Rothstein shooting, but due to Walsh's Florida gambling operations, as Whalen's detectives reported, there was still a feeling around police headquarters that the Miami killing virtually closed the trail leading to the solution of the Rothstein mystery.

Walsh, although he quit as Rothstein's bodyguard two months before the latter was killed, remained friendly with him and was the first to visit the gambler in the hospital after he was shot. It was a police theory that during that hospital conversation Rothstein revealed the secret of his slayer's identity to Walsh.

Whalen said the four detectives who reported on the Walsh case today had been in Miami since the $200,000 Maumousson jewelry store robbery here January 17.

Norton Girl Not in City.

Jacksonville, Fla., March 8 (A.P.).—Inez Norton, show girl and beneficiary of Arnold Rothstein's will, voiced strong protest here today against linking of her name in any way with the Walsh slaying in Miami.

"I was in Daytona Beach when the shooting occurred," she said, "and I never knew of it until I read yesterday's paper. I knew none of the persons involved, and it is ridiculous to mention my name in connection with the story."

Miss Norton said she would go to New York March 15 "for business reasons." She declared she expected to get about $1,500,000 from the Rothstein estate.

"Of course," she said, "I realize that because Arnold mentioned me in his will people would immediately think of the coincidence, but I left Miami more than twelve hours before the shooting and know nothing of it."

Alleged Thrill Slayer Is Indicted in Robbery

Decatur, Ga., March 8 (A.P.).—George R. Harsh and Richard G. Gallogly, wealthy former Oglethorpe University students, accused of murder in connection with several "thrill" holdups, and Jack Mahoney, State's witness against Gallogly, tonight faced indictments charging robbery returned by the grand jury here.

True bills charging the trio with holding up and robbing a drug store and restaurant were returned yesterday after an Atlanta detective had put before the grand jury an alleged confession from Harsh, who implicated the other two. Harsh is under death sentence for the slaying of a drug store clerk and Gallogly is in jail at Atlanta awaiting a second trial for the same murder.

New York, March 8 (A.P.).—Sleeping motor coaches for long distance bus travelers are to be placed in operation between Cleveland and Buffalo on a Chicago-New York route.

The coaches will contain twelve berths, to accommodate eighteen persons, dressing rooms and other conveniences of "Pullman" travel. Travelers may leave Philadelphia or New York in the morning and transfer to the sleeping coach at night in Buffalo for the journey to Cleveland.

Taggart Is Buried Near Riley Grave

Leaders of Both Parties Pay Homage at Noted Democrat's Rites.

Indianapolis, March 8 (A.P.).—To a grave on the side of a slope in Crown Hill Cemetery the body of Thomas Taggart, former United States senator from Indiana, was committed this afternoon. Atop the knoll in which the body lies and only a few yards distant are the remains of James Whitcomb Riley, the Hoosier poet.

The burial ground not far away is the grave of Thomas R. Marshall, whose political career under Mr. Taggart's guidance included service as Governor of Indiana and Vice President of the Nation. The burial services were preceded by a short but impressive service conducted at the Taggart home, in the heart of an old residential district of Indianapolis. The Right Rev. Joseph M. Francis, bishop of the Indianapolis Diocese of the Episcopal Church, presided at the home and at the grave.

At the hour of the funeral the Indiana General Assembly, which is now in session, paused in its work and listened to a eulogy of the man whose partisanship as a Democrat did not circumscribe his friendships. The eulogy was delivered by Michael E. Foley, an Indianapolis attorney. The funeral was attended by many men high in the councils of both the Republican and Democratic parties. The active pallbearers were political and business associates.

Students then pelted Murphy with small sulphur bombs and bags of flour.

STUDENTS IN MADRID STRIKE AS PROTEST

20 ARRESTED AFTER RIOT

Madrid, March 8 (U.P.).—The students of Madrid declared a general strike today and by evening the insurrection had spread to the provinces. Twenty students were arrested here after an encounter with police in which blows were exchanged. Information received here from provincial cities indicated that the strike was country-wide. The chief cause was said to be discontent over the recent decree by the minister of public instruction permitting Catholic universities of Escorial and Deusto to grant university degrees.

The students of Madrid led the way today when they refused to attend classes. All branches were affected, including philosophy and medicine. A few medical students did not wish to strike, but after a brief conference with the strikers, they, too, went out. Several classes were started today, but when the students indicated to the professors that they wished to strike, the classes were suspended.

The students insisted that their move was not inspired by outside sources, but that they are striking because the university spirit has become vexed by the government's attitude. The police were keeping a close watch on students' federations and prevented meetings of strikers.

Considerable surprise was expressed at the arrest of President Sbert of the Students' Federation, among the twenty held by police, because Sbert is known to have been against the strike. The strike was said to have been provoked by a governmental note threatening to dismiss students who refused to attend classes, after the students petitioned the government in a respectful tone and without threatening to strike, to change its original stand.

WORKS HARD IN THE FIELD

Relies Upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Rankin, Illinois.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a tonic before and after my first child was born six years ago. Then when my second child came and I felt weak and rundown, I took it again. I am still taking it and I am feeling better. My mother used it for herself when I was small and always got good results. She still takes it. I do all kinds of heavy work, including my housework and I also help in the field. I recommend the Vegetable Compound and I am willing to answer any letters."—Mrs. Ben Oberland, Route 2, Rankin, Illinois.

5 Eskimos, Adrift On Ice, Are Saved

Hunting Party, Lost 6 Days, Collapses on Landing; Will Recover.

Ottawa, Ontario, March 8 (A.P.).—The story of how a hunting party of Eskimos fought hunger and exhaustion for six days on an ice floe in Hudson Straits without food or shelter was relayed to officials here today by the government radio station at Nottingham Island, where the five finally found refuge.

The men had set out February 21, venturing several hundred yards out on the ice in search of game. Without warning the ice on which they were, broke adrift from the shore ice on which were their dog teams and supplies. They had only their seal skin clothing to chew to appease their hunger and had to keep moving constantly to keep from freezing.

Finally their floe touched shore and the men escaped to land and made their way through 30 miles of wilderness to Boucherville. They collapsed on sighting the village but they had been seen and were rescued and revived. The message from the radio station said all apparently would recover.

Man Found Dead Inside Closed Auto

Winchester Business Leader Locked Garage and Then Reentered Car.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., March 8.—Ralph R. Rosenberger, 29, prominent business and club man, was found dead today in his automobile, a closed car, in a garage near his home. Doctors said death was due to carbon monoxide gas poisoning.

The discovery was made by his sister, Miss Elsie Rosenberger, on leaving home for the office of the John W. Rosenberger Lumber Co. Her brother had not been to breakfast, and seeing the automobile in the garage she looked in. Investigation showed he apparently had bolted the garage door after taking his car in during the night and reentered the automobile. The engine had stopped running but the switch still was turned on.

Rosenberger was secretary-treasurer of the Rosenberger Lumber Co., and also of the Arthur G. Jones Woolen Mills Corporation, president of the Winchester Aero Club and a member of the Elks, Kiwanis and American Legion. He served in the Tank Corps in the World War. He only recently recovered from an influenza attack, which weakened his heart. Surviving are his father, four sisters and three brothers.

Officers of the endowment fund are Ednah Robinson Kerwin, president; Gladyse Strong Hellman, vice president; Mary Walker Delano, secretary; Edna Carr Bowyer, treasurer; Maria Bisset Culbertson, Louis Belote Dawe, Agnes Wackmuth Getsinger, Frances Carter Reeves and Myrtle King Werner, members of the executive committee.

Brownsville, Tex., March 8 (A.P.).—Scores of airplanes descended at the Brownsville Airport today from the North, East, South and West and were in readiness for the official opening tomorrow and Sunday of several air mail and passenger lines.

With the opening of the Mexico City-Brownsville route of the Pan American Lines, the Texas air transport will inaugurate its routes between Brownsville and Houston and Brownsville and San Antonio, the latter linking with the present air mail routes to Chicago.

There was a sigh of relief when definite information was received here to the effect that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, now sojourning in Mexico City, again would head an international aerial parade. The renowned aviator was scheduled to leave Mexico City early tomorrow morning and arrive here at 1:15 tomorrow afternoon. He will carry the first official air mail from the South.

At 10 o'clock Sunday morning Col. Lindbergh will start on the return flight to the Mexican capital with the first official southbound mail of the new international route.

Heartily approves idea of Moral Training by means of the printed word

Bishop Wm. F. McDowell—in the above language commends the articles which appear each Saturday morning in The Washington Post

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH
BISHOP'S RESIDENCE
2107 WYOMING AVENUE
WASHINGTON, D. C.

10 October 1928

To the Editor of the Post,
My dear Sir:

I have just had presented to me the plan of publishing a series of articles upon moral training and I write to express my very great interest in what you are proposing and my hearty approval of its purpose.

Every period has its ow moral problems which are not simple or uncomplicated. Many people imagine that a given moral condition is due to a single cause and that it can be changed or cured by the application of a single remedy or force. Of course every student of moral problems knows that this is a superficial view. Forty years ago it was very common to hear it said everywhere that the church, the school and the home determine everything in the way of a moral character. Everybody recognizes the immense influence of these three great forces. But everybody must also recognize that other forces have come into human society for the creation of human character and the influence of human conduct in a most real and large way. Among these forces perhaps no one is greater than the Press. If a powerful Daily pulls the morals and ideals of a community down, through a period of years, it is almost impossible for other agencies, however potent, to pull those ideals up. And in point of fact, every one of the great institutions has contradictions within itself. Part of the influence of a home works for the moral welfare and inspiration of the children, part of it works exactly the other way. And this is true of the school and uphappily of the church. And it is also true of the Press. In many notable instances the idealism of one page is destroyed by the character of other pages, so that the total impression made by a newspaper is mixed one.

Now just beacuse the whole moral problem which is the human problem in its essence, is so complicated everywhere and does touch life at so many ponts and especially when it is young, it is absolutely imperative that the agencies that can make for rightness and soundness of moral life should have unity within themselves and between themselves in the high endeavor for the things th t are true and good to live by. I therefore greatly rejoice in what you are proposing to do.

William F. McDowell

KLCN Off Air, Testing Abandoned

Midget Arkansas Station, Allowed to Operate Only in Daytime, Obeys Radio Commissioner's Order. Method Explained.

By ROBERT D. HEINL.

Washington listeners who have been staying up nights of late trying to tune in the midget station KLCN at Blytheville, Ark., using either 7½ or 3 watts can be assured if they haven't heard the station recently it is not the fault of themselves or their set, because for the time being KLCN is off the air.

This was learned through a letter received by us yesterday from C. L. Lintzenich.

"The Federal Radio Commission has seen fit to ask KLCN to discontinue all tests, without offering any reason," Mr. Lintzenich writes, "and we are asking you to tell our friends in the East 'good-bye,' as we do not want to violate their order, even though we think we were acting within our rights, and according to regulations."

Evidently this action was taken by the radio supervisor in that district. It was said at the Radio Commission yesterday that the reason probably was that KLCN is a daytime station—authorized to broadcast in daylight hours only—and that it would have to be granted permission if it was to continue broadcasting at night.

Much interesting information about the station is contained in Mr. Lintzenich's letter, which read as follows:

"First, the longest distance KLCN has been heard on 7½ watts was Glenevis, Alberta, Canada, 1,750 miles air line from Blytheville. One card was received from San Diego, Calif.; two letters came from ships on the Atlantic; 227 letters were received from the State of Pennsylvania; 21 letters and phone calls from Canada; 2,090 letters in all have been received to date and 38 States and the District of Columbia were heard from.

• • • •

"About twenty, including Hal H. Smith, of Washington, D. C., said they heard the 3-watt test. Twenty tests were made on 7½ watts, and I give you my word that at no time did we ever use more than a UX-210 tube in the oscillator or power circuit. We used four UX-250 tubes as modulators, with a five-tube speech amplifier.

"Mr. DuTrell, Federal Radio supervisor, of New Orleans, was here and inspected the station. We asked him if he thought we were using more power than we claimed. His reply was 'With the highest efficiency you might have 7½ watts.'

"As to the station. I built it several years ago, as a 40-meter telegraph set. It was made from parts salvaged from old receiving sets and the power supply was taken from two Radiola 102 loud speakers. Later an Emerson 500-volt generator was purchased second hand and new field coils put in, which is now the plate supply. Some time later a few meters were added. In the summer of 1928 the local newspaper became interested, helped get the licence and donated a Kellogg microphone. From time to time the speech input has been added to and changed and as we were consistently covering a hundred miles in the daytime with good volume, we decided to try it out one night for long distance. The first test was made January 13 after midnight. That night we had phone calls from Canada, New York, Florida and Maine.

"Our testing has been done without any regular schedule, or any prearranged listening posts so that we knew when we had a letter from a listener he had actually heard us. The hours worked were all after midnight, but at different starting time.

"The operator of the station is 39 years old and served in the Army, first as radio operator at Fayetteville, the University of Arkansas, and then as MSE at Purdue, Lafayette, Ind. Since that time it has been radio, morning, noon, and half the night.

"The circuit used here is no secret and there are no tricks. We use the Hartly oscillator with Heising system of modulation. The theory is that if the carrier wave of a UX-210 tube can be heard 1,000 miles, which is done regularly, voice could be heard the same distance if 100 per cent modulation would be attained. We think the average station modulation is nearer 8 per cent than 80 as is so often claimed. Antenna size and height is a small factor when heavy modulation is used. One antenna is a single wire, 100 feet long, and 17 feet above a 4-wire counterpoint, on a single story building."

What Today Means to You

March 9.

By MARY BLAKE.

"Pisces."

IF March 9 is your birthday, the best hours for you today are from 1 p. m. to 3 p. m., and from 5:30 p. m. to 6:30 p. m. and from 7:15 p. m. to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from 10 a. m. to noon and from 9:30 p. m. to 11 p. m.

Little of practical value will be accomplished today if the astrological signs are read aright. There will be sensed indecision, doubt and fear, and none of that determination and confidence so necessary to the wooing of Dame Fortune.

A child born today will be persevering, plodding, and faithful. It will not be brilliant or spectacular, but will "get there" just the same. It will always profit by experience—its own and that of others. Its disposition will be sensitive; its outlook, sensible.

You are naturally resourceful and ingenious. A keen observer gifted with clear vision, and a reliable judge of circumstances and individuals. Owing to an inherent urbanity of nature and an inostentation and nonassertive manner, many will try to impose on you. Very few, however, will succeed in fooling you.

Oftimes you feel like "a fish out of water" as you can not adapt yourself very readily to an environment that is strange or distasteful. Some—those who do not know the sterling simplicity and worth of your character—criticize and call you "stuck up." This, however, is not so, as although you can rise to great heights, you can not sink to great depths.

Circumlocution and "red tape" are anathema to one of your makeup. You never go around a fence, if you can go over it. You are a natural optimist, a hard worker, and a cheerful companion. You get a great deal of happiness out life as you refuse to be disheartened or discouraged. You also mind your own business, and let other people mind theirs.

Your home life promises to be free from annoyances and full of happiness. Your horoscope denotes a very enjoyable life.

Successful people born on March 9: Americus Vespucius, explorer.

William Jackson, statesman and soldier.

Edwin Forrest, actor.

Leland Stanford, senator.

James W. Davidson, author and journalist.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS.

SMOKE NUISANCE FOOLISH.

THE smoke nuisance is not necessary. It is tolerated because of apathy of the public and failure to understand our fuel problem. This is the opinion of S. S. Wyer in the opinion all health officers agree.

The higher summer sickness rate of former times has disappeared. Neither the diarrheas of infants nor the typhoids of adults are of great concern in this day. Taking proper precautions as to milk has sufficed to solve the first of these problems and control of water and milk has taken care of the second. But the problem of the common cold and pneumonia is not solved. These commence increasing in the autumn when people go indoors and light the fires. They continue to mount as the smoke rolling out of the chimneys continues to increase.

Somewhere about April the fires begin to die down, the smoke to decrease. Coincidentally disease drops off. Health begins to bloom again. Smoke-laden air will not let the sunshine through. At least, those parts of the ray that are most helpful to health are filtered out. It shortens the effective day viewed from the standpoint of health. During the hours of early morning and those of late afternoon the sun rays must pass almost horizontally through a great many miles of smoke-laden air hugging the earth's surface. Such light is of very little value in preventing disease. All of which bears on the body's resistance.

The foreign material in highly polluted air is supposed in some way not known to promote disease. After a more direct fashion a good case from the health standpoint can be made against smoke-polluted air and against dirty air, from whatever cause. A water as dirty and as badly polluted as is city air would not be acceptable to a people. Great indignation meetings would be held were such water to be supplied for drinking purposes. At these meetings there would be talk of impeachments and even of hangings. Money in millions would be spent in sewage treatment and in water purification. And yet, as compared with polluted air, polluted water is now of trivial importance.

And besides the cost to health there are the economic features, such as waste of fuel, increased cost of laundry work, damaged buildings, and vegetation, increased cost of lighting.

Mariani to Play $45,000 Violin Today

Famous Instrument to Be Heard at 6:30 Over WRC—Roosevelt Will Send Message of Cheer to Commander Byrd.

George Barrere, world-famous flautist and Little Symphony director, and Pierre Mathieu, first oboe of the New York Symphony, and more recently of the Paris Opera Company, will be the featured soloists in the Nation-wide symphony concert to be broadcast as the General Electric Hour from WRC at 9 o'clock tonight.

The wood-wind duo will play Lacombe's "Serenade," for flute and oboe.

Another high light by the symphony orchestra, under the direction of Walter Damrosch, will be the "Allegretto" from Beethoven's "Symphony No. 8," a movement of fine instrumentation. In contrast with this will be the Strauss polka, "Thunder and Lightning," also to be performed by the full orchestra.

The complete program follows:

Overture to "Phedre," Massenet; "Serenade" (for flute and oboe), Lacombe, George Barrere and Pierre Mathieu; "Allegretto," from "Symphony No. 8," Beethoven; "Thunder and Lightning," Strauss; prelude to "The Deluge," Saint-Saens; "Melody in F," Rubinstein; and selections from "Damnation of Faust," Berlioz.

Hugo Mariani, orchestra leader of the National Broadcasting Co., will lay aside his baton to play two violin solos for the radio audience during the White House dinner music, at 6:30 o'clock. Mariani will play one of the world's most famous and costliest violins, a $45,000 Stradivarius made in 1722. It is the same violin with which Mischa Elman made his reputation and built up his career, and is at this time specially loaned from the $1,000,000 Wurlitzer collection for a radio appearance on this date. Mariani will play the "Witches' Dance" of Paganini and "Bird in the Tree," by Hauser.

A talk of interest to radio fans will be broadcast at 7 o'clock by L. S. J. Cranse—"November Reallocation From a Standpoint of Distant Reception."

The New Yorkers Quartet from "Rain or Shine," starring Joe Cook, will be heard at 7:30 o'clock.

An organ recital by Lew White and Mildred Hunt, with a marimba orchestra, will fill the hour between 8 and 9 o'clock.

The Lucky Strike Dance Orchestra announces the following numbers:

"Yoo Hoo," "Rose of Washington Square," "To Know You Is to Love You," "Let's Talk About My Sweetie," "My Angeline," "Auf Wiedersehen," "My Suppressed Desire,' "Beale Street Blues," "Chicago," Every Little Movement," "Down in Jungle Town," "True Blue," "I Loved You Then as I Love You Now," "Diane," Harry Lauder, song revues; "Love, Come Back to Me" and "Waiting for the Robert E. Lee."

WJSV will start its regular National Barn Dance and Radio Revue at 9:15 o'clock this evening, with Pa Brown and the Little Browns, The Hilo Boys, the Railroad Fiddlers, Woodville Brown, Troubador, and the Blue Ridge Mountain Harmony Boys all fill their regular places.

A studio program by WOL's staff will be offered at 6:30 o'clock this evening. Fifteen minutes earlier there will be a flag contest talk from the studio.

Two hours of dance music, starting at 10 o'clock, will conclude the broadcast.

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Mayor James J. Walker, of New York, and Daniel Carter Beard, national Boy Scout commissioner, will send messages of good cheer to Commander Richard Byrd and the men of the Antarctic expedition now established at their base at Little America, inside the ice barrier at the Bay of Whales. These messages will be carried by WGY and its two intercontinental short-wave stations, W2XAF and W2XAD, tonight at 11 o'clock, through Station WGY at Schenectady.

Every other week hereafter, on Saturday nights, the General Electric Co. transmitters will carry programs prepared for the Byrd expedition.

Rosa Pollio Jarman, mezzo-soprano, accompanied by Elizabeth Gardner Coombs, will present a half-hour recital from WMAL at 9:30 o'clock tonight. The Brunswick Saturday Nighters and the Everglades Orchestra will provide an hour of dance music between 11 o'clock and midnight.

The Hawaiian Melody Boys are to be heard at 8 o'clock, followed by a Washington Chamber of Commerce talk.

Jane Claire INTERPRETS the MODE

New York, March 9, 1929.

WOULDN'T you like to have a spring coat? A brand new one, and a smart one, and a chic one? Well, you would, and what's more you should—and there isn't any reason under the sun why you can't make it yourself and save oodles and oodles of money.

Very good spring coat materials can be had for from $2.50 a yard up. Lining, the same price, because it never pays to buy cheap lining.

A coat like the one illustrated for you today, which is ideal for a child or a young girl type, takes just two and half yards of 54-inch material.

Costs Only $12 to $16.

Yes, this includes the sleeves and the double under-bodice, the latter not only for extra warmth—the sleeves are attached to it. Add a couple of dollars more for a smart leather belt, and your coat costs you from $12 to $16! Arguing that you can buy a spring coat for that price in a shop is no argument. You can do so, of course, but it will not by any means be as nice a coat as the one you can make yourself.

Seriously now, why not try it this year? Make it first in unbleached muslin, and when it fits you perfectly, cut your good material from that pattern. Then baste and fit and sew ever so nicely, iron as you go, make no sloppy finishings, and I absolutely promise that you will have a smart spring coat, made the more delightful in your eyes by the knowledge that you have made it yourself!

• • • •

Like the coat we have illustrated for you today? Well, if it is your type of coat, you had better sit down and get your stamped self-addressed envelope to send to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet, which tells you exactly how to make it. And you can make it, I promise you, from the leaflet.

Cape coats are awfully smart this year, so hurry!

• • • •

Parfums.

Nor does the selection of one basic perfume limit you in the variety of odors you can use. A woman can with discretion use as many as four different perfumes, if these are perfumes that are made on the same general perfume base. It is only the base that lingers, perfumes will never clash in that almost repulsive way they otherwise have a way of doing.

• • • •

A truly courteous person is known by the way he or she treats those who are nearest and dearest to them. For the courtesy with which one treats others usually has some business or social motive that is absent in our attitude toward relatives and friends.

It is so easy to give your true character away!

• • • •

If You Hurry!

A few, very few, of this week's leaflets telling you how to make six new summer dresses are left. If you hurry!

The weekly Fashion Letter by Mme. Dare appears in the Capital exclusively in The Post. You should look for it.

Au Revoir!

WORK ON BRIDGE

CONTRACT BRIDGE.

"The Auction Player unfamiliar with Contract is apt to be troubled by the big difference between Auction and Contract values of tricks, undertricks, premiums, slams and rubbers, &c. The vulnerability feature of Contract is also apt to be confusing.

"As a special service to our readers Mr. Work will be glad to send you upon request, complimentary, a complete statement explaining all these new features, provided you inclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope for his reply. Mr. Work also answers all Auction and Contract questions without charge."

Yesterday I gave a table showing the strength required for raising or jumping partner's suit-bids, the table being based upon the assumption that partner's one-bid of a suit shows four probable tricks and his two-bid six probable tricks.

When determining what is required for a raise or jump of a suit-bid, it is impossible to use the simple 4-3-2-1 No Trump count. When raising suit-bids, a face card is of greater value if combined with a higher face card; consequently two values must be assigned to Kings, x-x, Queens and Jacks. Compared with an Ace, the three face cards have less value in suit bidding than they have at No Trumps; therefore, for suit jumps, the valuation is 5-3-1-0 for Ace, King, Queen and Jack, respectively when the honor in question is the highest in the suit. But when a King, Queen or Jack is combined with a higher honor, the values are increased to 5 for King, 3 for Queen and 1 for Jack, the same 5-3-1 scale being used in both cases.

Along with the valuations allowed for these high cards, there are valuations allowed for more than normal length in the suit, and also shortness in some other suit. (As raises of bids of mal support, the raising hand must have trumps for ruffing.) The table shows that if the original bid be one of a suit, 13 is the count necessary for a raise or jump; that with 17 (4 more), the jump should be to three, and with 21 (again 4 more), the jump should be to four. When the original bid is two, only 8 is needed for a raise or jump to three, or 12 for a raise or jump to four.

At first thought it may seem that 13 is too high a requirement for advancing partner's suit-bid from one to two; 13 is the equivalent of two Aces and a King in three different suits, or Ace-Queen in one suit and Ace in the other or Ace-King in one suit and two doubletons, or a blank suit and an Ace—not to mention innumerable other combinations involving long and short suits. But the original one-bid might be made with some such holding as Ace-King-x-x-x without side strength or Ace-King-x-x with one side trick and then a raise with less than 13 would not be safe.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

A CHILD BANISHES DULLNESS.

Age is dull and tedious; its speech is
cut and dried,
One knows what questions will be asked and what will be replied.
A throng of us were on the beach, a
lazy, babbling crew,
Discussing pleasantly of course, the people that we knew.
And there were rich men there and
wise and clever men and gay,
But still the conversation was as dull
as skies of gray.

Then some one turned and saw a child,
a cute and lovely thing,
Who burst upon that withered group
like the first warm day of spring
"Hello, there, Mary!" some one said.
"And how are you today?
Your daddy isn't on the beach. Why does he stay away?"
That lovely bit of beauty in her child-
ish treble pitch
Said: "Daddy stays away because he finds the food too rich."

Oh, what a dreary world 'twould be if adults only spoke.
And never voice of little ones the pride
of wisdom broke.
That lovely little miss of seven brought
laughter to us there.
Which all the wit and cleverness of age
could not prepare.
Oh, wise grown men and women fair,
I heard her and I smiled
And thought "the brightest line today

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

"The Past."

DEAR Miss McDonald: won't you please help me? Here is my question. Can a girl forget her past, just as a man can? I say "No," but most of my frends say "why should your past interfere with your future?" Don't you think it has to, Miss McDonald?

When I was much younger, and I am now only 21 years of age, I thought I was in love. I thought this man was my "Prince Charming", my lover. You may call him a man; oh how I do hate a man like him. He is one of those men who go "pleasure seeking," but in the end he pays and pays.

Thinking that all his words of love were true I gave in to every thing he said. He to be married. I wouldn't have him because I found out what he was.

Oh! Miss McDonald, you don't think I should have married him to just protect myself, do you. Now I really am in love with the best man in the world. He is good and kind and true and he loves me. I know way down in my heart that he is the one and only. Oh! how I love him.

He forgives me. I have told him everything. It was a shock to him, but I could not go on not letting him know. If I had not told him and married him, I would always think I was not true to him.

He wants to be married. We are engaged now and have been going steady for three years, but way down in my heart I am afraid. Why? Miss McDonald. Why? If he loves me, should I feel guilty. I am afraid my past will come back to me some day and he will throw it back to me.

I love him dearly and I would do anything in the wide world to make him happy. Please, Miss McDonald, if this does not go in the "basket" print it in the paper and I will be very thankful.

EVA.

Eva, at 21, begging for some word of comfort might be the voice of a thousand girls today lamenting, regretting, while the world goes on its way. Eva at 21 has met the real man, the right man. But out of the shadow, memory accuses, tortures, reproaches and Eva asks, can I never forget? My past will follow me into marriage, follow me through life, spoil my love, spoil love for the man I worship. Why should it, Eva? Why should any experience blot out all experience? That is weakness whispering "You can't forget."

You surely can make your future life so beautiful that the shadow of the past will reflect that beauty. Just tell yourself that from now on you are a new person. The old one was a girl you scarcely know, did not understand, barely remember. Her acts, weak, rash, mistaken have no connection with the acts, the thoughts, the aims of the wife you will be in the future.

Stop dwelling in thought among old scenes. Fix your mind upon new and happier interests. Wipe the slate and start to write anew, in clear, clean hand your future story.

Eva's letter may well be read by the girls of 17 and younger who are treading the path that Eva tread to her distress and deep regret. One reads and marvels that the same sad story mars so many lives, so many loves, shocks, so many real men who forgive but must so bitterly regret the past of the girl they love.

KLCN Off Air, Testing Abandoned

By ROBERT D. HEINL.

Washington listeners who have been staying up nights of late trying to tune in the midget station KLCN at Blytheville, Ark., using either 7½ or 3 watts can be assured if they haven't heard the station recently it is not the fault of themselves or their set, because for the time being KLCN is off the air.

This was learned through a letter received by us yesterday from C. L. Lintzenich.

"The Federal Radio Commission has seen fit to ask KLCN to discontinue all tests, without offering any reason," Mr. Lintzenich writes, "and we are asking you to tell our friends in the East 'good-bye,' as we do not want to violate their order, even though we think we were acting within our rights, and according to regulations."

• • • •

Evidently this action was taken by the radio supervisor in that district. It was said at the Radio Commission yesterday that the reason probably was that KLCN is a daytime station—authorized to broadcast in daylight hours only—and that it would have to be granted permission if it was to continue broadcasting at night.

Much interesting information about the station is contained in Mr. Lintzenich's letter, which read as follows:

"First, the longest distance KLCN has been heard on 7½ watts was Glenevis, Alberta, Canada, 1,750 miles air line from Blytheville. One card was received from San Diego, Calif.; two letters came from ships on the Atlantic; 227 letters were received from the State of Pennsylvania; 21 letters and phone calls from Canada; 2,090 letters in all have been received to date and 38 States and the District of Columbia were heard from.

• • • •

"About twenty, including Hal H. Smith, of Washington, D. C., said they heard the 3-watt test. Twenty tests were made on 7½ watts, and I give you my word that at no time did we ever use more than a UX-210 tube in the oscillator or power circuit. We used four UX-250 tubes as modulators, with a five-tube speech amplifier.

"Mr. DuTrell, Federal Radio supervisor, of New Orleans, was here and inspected the station. We asked him if he thought we were using more power than we claimed. His reply was 'With the highest efficiency you might have 7½ watts.'

"As to the station. I built it several years ago, as a 40-meter telegraph set. It was made from parts salvaged from old receiving sets and the power supply was taken from two Radiola 102 loud speakers. Later an Emerson 500-volt generator was purchased second hand and new field coils put in, which is now the plate supply. Some time later a few meters were added. In the summer of 1928 the local newspaper became interested, helped get the licence and donated a Kellogg microphone. From time to time the speech input has been added to and changed and as we were consistently covering a hundred miles in the daytime with good volume, we decided to try it out one night for long distance. The first test was made January 13 after midnight. That night we had phone calls from Canada, New York, Florida and Maine.

"Our testing has been done without any regular schedule, or any prearranged listening posts so that we knew when we had a letter from a listener he had actually heard us. The hours worked were all after midnight, but at different starting time.

"The operator of the station is 39 years old and served in the Army, first as radio operator at Fayetteville, the University of Arkansas, and then as MSE at Purdue, Lafayette, Ind. Since that time it has been radio, morning, noon, and half the night.

"The circuit used here is no secret and there are no tricks. We use the Hartly oscillator with Helsing system of modulation. The theory is that if the carrier wave of a UX-210 tube can be heard 1,000 miles, which is done regularly, voice could be heard the same distance if 100 per cent modulation would be attained. We think the average station modulation is nearer 8 per cent than 80 as is so often claimed Antenna size and height is a small factor when heavy modulation is used. One antenna is a single wire, 100 feet long and 17 feet above a 4-wire counterpoint, on a single story building."

What Today Means to You

March 9.

By MARY BLAKE.

"Pisces."

IF March 9 is your birthday, the best hours for you today are from 1 p m. to 3 p m., from 5:30 p. m. to 6:30 p. m. and from 8:15 p. m. to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from 10 a. m. to noon and from 9:30 p. m. to 11 p. m.

Little of practical value will be accomplished today if the astrological signs are read aright. There will be sensed indecision, doubt and fear, and none of that determination and confidence so necessary to the wooing of Dame Fortune.

A child born today will be persevering, plodding, and faithful. It will not be brilliant or spectacular, but will "get there" just the same. It will always profit by experience—its own and that of others. Its disposition will be sensitive; its outlook, sensible.

You are naturally resourceful and ingenious. A keen observer gifted with clear vision, and a reliable judge of circumstances and individuals. Owing to an inherent urbanity of nature and an inostentation and nonassertive manner, many will try to impose on you. Very few, however, will succeed in fooling you.

Oftimes you feel like "a fish out of water" as you can not adapt yourself very readily to an environment that is strange or distasteful. Some—those who do not know the sterling simplicity and worth of your character—criticize and call you "stuck up." This, however, is not so, as although you can rise to great heights, you can not sink to great depths.

Circumlocution and "red tape" are anathema to one of your makeup. You never go around a fence, if you can go over it. You are a natural optimist, a hard worker, and a cheerful companion. You get a great deal of happiness out life as you refuse to be disheartened or discouraged. You also mind your own business, and let other people mind theirs.

Your home life promises to be free from annoyances and full of happiness. Your horoscope denotes a very enjoyable life.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS.

SMOKE NUISANCE FOOLISH.

THE smoke nuisance is not necessary. It is tolerated because of apathy of the public and failure to understand our fuel problem. This is the opinion of S. S Wyer in the opinion all health officers agree

The higher summer sickness rate of former times has disappeared Neither the diarrheas of infants nor the typhoids of adults are of great concern in this day. Taking proper precautions as to milk has sufficed to solve the first of these problems and control of water and milk has taken care of the second. But the problem of the common cold and pneumonia is not solved. These commence increasing in the autumn when people go indoors and light the fires. They continue to mount as the smoke rolling out of the chimneys continues to increase.

Somewhere about April the fires begin to die down, the smoke to decrease. Coincidentally disease drops off Health begins to bloom again. Smoke-laden air will not let the sunshine through. At least, those parts of the ray that are most helpful to health are filtered out. It shortens the effective day viewed from the standpoint of health. During the hours of early morning and those of late afternoon the sun rays must pass almost horizontally through a great many miles of smoke-laden air hugging the earth's surface. Such light is of very little value in preventing disease. All of which bears on the body's resistance.

The foreign material in highly polluted air is supposed in some way not known to promote disease. After a more direct fashion a good case from the health standpoint can be made against smoke-polluted air and against dirty air, from whatever cause. A water as dirty and as badly polluted as is city air would not be acceptable to a people Great indignation meetings would be held were such water to be supplied for drinking purposes. At these meetings there would be talk of impeachments and even of hangings. Money in millions would be spent in sewage treatment and in water purification. And yet, as compared with polluted air, polluted water is now of trivial importance.

And besides the cost to health there are the economic features, such as waste of fuel, increased cost of laundry work, damaged buildings, and vegetation, increased cost of lighting.

Famous Instrument to Be Heard at 6:30 Over WRC — Roosevelt Will Send Message of Cheer to Commander Byrd.

George Barrere, world-famous flautist and Little Symphony director, and Pierre Mathieu, first oboe of the New York Symphony, and more recently of the Paris Opera Company, will be the featured soloists in the Nation-wide symphony concert to be broadcast as the General Electric Hour from WRC at 9 o'clock tonight.

The wood-wind duo will play Lacombe's "Serenade," for flute and oboe.

Another high light by the symphony orchestra, under the direction of Walter Damrosch, will be the "Allegretto" from Beethoven's "Symphony No. 8," a movement of fine instrumentation. In contrast with this will be the Strauss polka, "Thunder and Lightning," also to be performed by the full orchestra.

The complete program follows:

Hugo Mariani, orchestra leader of the National Broadcasting Co., will lay aside his baton to play two violin solos for the radio audience during the White House dinner music, at 6:30 o'clock. Mariani will play one of the world's most famous and costliest violins, a $45,000 Stradivarius made in 1722. It is the same violin with which Mischa Elman made his reputation and built up his career, and is at this time specially loaned from the $1,000,000 Wurlitzer collection for a radio appearance on this date. Mariani will play the "Witches' Dance" of Paganini and "Bird in the Tree," by Hauser.

A talk of interest to radio fans will be broadcast at 7 o'clock by L. S. J. Cranse—"November Reallocation From a Standpoint of Distant Reception."

The New Yorkers Quartet from "Rain or Shine," starring Joe Cook, will be heard at 7:30 o'clock.

An organ recital by Lew White and Mildred Hunt, with a marimba orchestra, will fill the hour between 8 and 9 o'clock.

The Lucky Strike Dance Orchestra announces the following numbers:

A studio program by WOL's staff will be offered at 6:30 o'clock this evening. Fifteen minutes earlier there will be a flag contest talk from the studio.

Two hours of dance music, starting at 10 o'clock, will conclude the broadcast.

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Mayor James J. Walker, of New York, and Daniel Carter Beard, national Boy Scout commissioner, will send messages of good cheer to Commander Richard Byrd and the men of the Antarctic expedition now established at their base at Little America, inside the ice barrier at the Bay of Whales. These messages will be carried by WGY and its two intercontinental short-wave stations, W2XAF and W2XAD, tonight at 11 o'clock, through Station WGY at Schenectady.

Every other week hereafter, on Saturday nights, the General Electric Co transmitters will carry programs prepared for the Byrd expedition.

Rosa Pollio Jarman, mezzo-soprano, accompanied by Elizabeth Gardner Coombs, will present a half-hour recital from WMAL at 9:30 o'clock tonight The Brunswick Saturday Nighters and the Everglades Orchestra will provide an hour of dance music between 11 o'clock and midnight.

The Hawaiian Melody Boys are to be heard at 8 o'clock, followed by a Washington Chamber of Commerce talk.

Jane Interprets the Mode

New York, March 9, 1929.

WOULDN'T you like to have a spring coat? A brand new one, and a smart one, and a chic one? Well, you would, and what's more you should—and there isn't any reason under the sun why you can't make it yourself and save oodles and oodles of money.

Very good spring coat materials can be had for from $2.50 a yard up. Lining, the same price, because it never pays to buy cheap lining.

A coat like the one illustrated for you today, which is ideal for a child or a young girl type, takes just two and half yards of 54-inch material.

Costs Only $12 to $16.

Yes, this includes the sleeves and the double under-bodice, the latter not only for extra warmth—the sleeves are attached to it. Add a couple of dollars more for a smart leather belt, and your coat costs you from $12 to $16! Arguing that you can buy a spring coat for that price in a shop is no argument. You can do so, of course, but it will not by any means be as nice a coat as the one you can make yourself.

Seriously now, why not try it this year? Make it first in unbleached muslin, and when it fits you perfectly, cut your good material from that pattern. Then baste and fit and sew ever so nicely, iron as you go, make no sloppy finishings, and I absolutely promise that you will have a smart spring coat, made the more delightful in your eyes by the knowledge that you have made it yourself!

• • • •

Like the coat we have illustrated for you today? Well, if it is your type of coat, you had better sit down and get your stamped self-addressed envelope to send to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet, which tells you exactly how to make it. And you can make it, I promise you, from the leaflet.

Cape coats are awfully smart this year, so hurry!

Parfums.

Nor does the selection of one basic perfume limit you in the variety of odors you can use. A woman can with discretion use as many as four different perfumes, if these are perfumes that are made on the same general perfume base. It is only the base that lingers, perfumes will never clash in that almost repulsive way they otherwise have a way of doing.

If You Hurry!

CONTRACT BRIDGE.

"The Auction Player unfamiliar with Contract is apt to be troubled by the big difference between Auction and Contract values of tricks, undertricks, premiums, slams and rubbers, &c. The vulnerability feature of Contract is also apt to be confusing.

"As a special service to our readers Mr. Work will be glad to send you upon request, complimentary, a complete statement explaining all these new features, provided you inclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope for his reply. Mr. Work also answers all Auction and Contract questions without charge."

Yesterday I gave a table showing the strength required for raising or jumping partner's suit-bids, the table being based upon the assumption that partner's one-bid of a suit shows four probable tricks and his two-bid six probable tricks.

When determining what is required for a raise or jump of a suit-bid, it is impossible to use the simple 4-3-2-1 No Trump count. When raising suit-bids, a face card is of greater value if combined with a higher face card; consequently two values must be assigned to Kings, x-x, Queens and Jacks. Compared with an Ace, the three face cards have less value in suit bidding than they have at No Trumps; therefore, for suit jumps, the valuation is 5-3-1-0 for Ace, King, Queen and Jack, respectively when the honor in question is the highest in the suit. But when a King, Queen or Jack is combined with a higher honor, the values are increased to 5, for King, 3 for Queen and 1 for Jack, the same 5-3-1 scale being used in both cases.

Along with the valuations allowed for these high cards, there are valuations allowed for more than normal length in the suit, and also shortness in some other suit. (As raises of bids of mal support, the raising hand must have trumps for ruffing.) The table shows that if the original bid be one of a suit, 13 is the count necessary for a raise or jump; that with 17 (4 more), the jump should be to three, and with 21 (again 4 more), the jump should be to four. When the original bid is two, only 8 is needed for a raise or jump to three, or 12 for a raise or jump to four

At first thought it may seem that 13 is too high a requirement for advancing partner's suit-bid from one to two; 13 is the equivalent of two Aces and a King in three different suits, or Ace-Queen in one suit and Ace in the other or Ace-King in one suit and two doubletons, or a blank suit and an Ace not to mention innumerable other combinations involving long and short suits. But the original one-bid might be made with some such holding as Ace-King-x-x-x without side strength or Ace-King-x-x with one side trick and then a raise with less than 13 would not be safe.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

A CHILD BANISHES DULLNESS.

Age is dull and tedious; its speech is
cut and dried,
One knows what questions will be asked and what will be replied.
A throng of us were on the beach, a
lazy, babbling crew,
Discussing pleasantly of course, the people that we knew.
And there were rich men there and
wise and clever men and gay,
But still the conversation was as dull
as skies of gray.

Then some one turned and saw a child,
a cute and lovely thing,
Who burst upon that withered group
like the first warm day of spring
"Hello, there, Mary!" some one said.
"And how are you today?
Your daddy isn't on the beach. Why
does he stay away?"
That lovely bit of beauty in her child-
ish treble pitch
Said: "Daddy stays away because he finds the food too rich."

Oh, what a dreary world 'twould be if
adults only spoke.
And never voice of little ones the pride
of wisdom broke.
That lovely little miss of seven brought
laughter to us there.
Which all the wit and cleverness of age
could not prepare.
Oh, wise grown men and women fair,
I heard her and I smiled
And thought "the brightest line today

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

"The Past."

DEAR Miss McDonald: won't you please help me? Here is my question. Can a girl forget her past, just as a man can? I say "No," but most of my frends say "why should your past interfere with your future?" Don't you think it has to, Miss McDonald?

When I was much younger, and I am now only 21 years of age, I thought I was in love. I thought this man was my "Prince Charming", my lover. You may call him a man; oh how I do hate a man like him. He is one of those men who go "pleasure seeking," but in the end he pays and pays.

Thinking that all his words of love were true I gave in to every thing he said. He to be married. I wouldn't have him because I found out what he was.

Oh! Miss McDonald, you don't think I should have married him to just be one with the best man in the world. He is good and kind and true and he loves me. I know way down in my heart that he is the one and only. Oh! how I love him.

He forgives me. I have told him everything. It was a shock to him, but I could not go on not letting him know.

If I had not told him and married him, I would always think I was not true to him.

He wants to be married. We are engaged now and have been going steady for three years, but way down in my heart I am afraid. Why? Miss McDonald. Why? if he loves me, should I feel guilty. I am afraid my past will come back to me some day and he will throw it back to me.

I love him dearly and I would do anything in the wide world to make him happy. Please, Miss McDonald, if this does not go in the "basket" print it in the paper and I will be very thankful.

EVA.

Eva, at 21, begging for some word of comfort might be the voice of a thousand girls today lamenting, regretting, while the world goes on its way. Eva at 21 has met the real man, the right man. But out of the shadow, memory accuses, tortures, reproaches and Eva asks, can I never forget? My past will follow me into marriage, follow me through life, spoil my love, spoil love for the man I worship. Why should it, Eva? Why should any experience blot out all experience? That is weakness whispering "You can't forget."

You surely can make your future life so beautiful that the shadow of the past will reflect that beauty. Just tell yourself that from now on you are a new person. The old one was a girl you scarcely know, did not understand, barely remember. Her acts, weak, rash, mistaken have no connection with the acts, the thoughts, the aims of the wife you will be in the future.

Stop dwelling in thought among old scenes. Fix your mind upon new and happier interests. Wipe the slate and start to write anew, in clear, clean hand your future story.

Eva's letter may well be read by the girls of 17 and younger who are treading the path that Eva tread to her distress and deep regret. One reads and marvels that the same sad story mars so many lives, so many loves, shocks, so many real men who forgive but must so bitterly regret the past of the girl they love.

NEW WORK MAPPED BY PRESBYTERIANS

Extra Comity Rules Are Held Needless for Branches' Overlapping Tasks.

JOINT SESSION IS HELD

Richmond, Va., March 8 (A.P.).—No new rules of comity are necesary to take care of overlapping work of the Northern and Southern branches of the Presbyterian Church, the joint committee on comity, composed of official representatives of the two bodies, stated in its report drafted today for presentation to the two general church assemblies.

The committee recommended study of overlapping territory by the assemblies and home mission agencies with a view to making adjustments where deemed advisable. The recommendations were as follows:

1. That a study of the situation reveals no new rules of comity necessary to take care of overlapping work of the two branches.
2. That the general assemblies call attention of synods and presbyteries to the rules of comity already adopted and instruct these bodies to earnestly observe them.
3. The home mission agencies of each branch engage in a survey of overlapping territory with a view to make immediate adjustments where considered necessary in both mission and non-mission territory.
4. That a study of mission territory be engaged in order to allocate each branch definite spheres of territory when this is deemed advisable.
5. That home mission agencies report each year to the assemblies on the definite steps taken and the progres made during the year.

The Rev. J. Ross Stevenson, of Princeton Seminary, was chairman of the joint committee at the opening session today and the Rev. P. B. Hill, of San Antonio, secretary. The Rev. C. H. Nabor, of Pensacola, Fla., is chairman of the Southern church's committee.

Fight Seen on Will Of Isadora Duncan

Relatives Reserve Rights as Probate Is Postponed Until April 16.

New York, March 8 (A.P.).—Probate of the will of the late Isadora Duncan, dancer, who was killed at Nice, France, in an automobile accident last year, was postponed until April 19 on request of counsel for two brothers and a sister who reserved the right to file a contest any time before that date.

The will, scrawled in pencil, and which left everything to Serge Yessenin, her late Russian artist husband, was filed for probate by Irma Duncan, an adopted daughter. The will was dated Moscow, May 9, 1922, and was made just before the start of an airplane trip. The will provided that in case of "our simultaneous death" all property should go to her brother, Augustin Duncan, one of those represented today as filing intention of possible protest of the will. He was present in the courtroom. The others are abroad. Yessenin committed suicide in Leningrad in 1925.

No objection to adjournment of the probate was offered.

WOMAN DRY AGENT SOUGHT BY COURT

Kitty Costello, Wanted as Witness in Baltimore, Reported Living Here.

TORE SUBPENA, IT IS SAID

Baltimore, March 8.—After having twice defied the order of the court, a warrant, charging contempt, was issued today against "Kitty Costello" for her appearance in the Federal Court to testify in a liquor case.

Judge William C. Coleman ordered the attachment issued when the feminine dry worker failed to put in her appearance today after he had issued instructions for her presence to testify yesterday.

John J. Quinn, deputy prohibition administrator in charge of the Washington bureau, came into court when the trial against Clarence Morseberger was resumed today and told Judge Coleman that he had located the woman in Washington yesterday and instructed her to appear.

Prohibition Administrator John F. J. Herbert was called to court yesterday to explain his feminine agent's absence at the trial after a summons had been served on her in Washington. John Philip Hill, defense attorney, charged she tore up the subpena when it was handed to her by a Washington deputy marshal and almost kicked the officer down the steps.

Mr. Herbert told the court that the woman's employment by his department ended yesterday, but he would instruct his deputy, Mr. Quinn, to find Miss Costello, who is also known as Esther Wolf and Esther Holden, and request her to appear here.

Mr. Hill declared her testimony was important for the defense.

The attachment issued today charged the woman with failing to honor a subpena and was in the form of an "attachment for contempt." Immediately after it was prepared by a court clerk it was placed in the hands of United States Marshal George W. Collier for service at once. She is understood still to be in Washington.

BURLINGAME'S DEFENSE CALLED SMOKE SCREEN BY PROSECUTOR

dated approximately correctly, show an association prior to the entry of Mr. Blanton into the case."

Leahy declared that the defense did not admit the accuracy of the dates on the love letters the captain is charged with writing Mrs. Blalock, but which he says were written by the woman herself to protect her against the boasting of an unidentified woman who took from her an equally unidentified elderly lover.

Maj. Davison overruled the objections of the prosecution and Leahy read into the record the quotations from the Staples trial.

Sixteen Witnesses Called.

Sixteen witnesses were summoned to the stand by the defense yesterday. Included among them was Miss M. Pearl McCall, assistant United States District attorney, who declared that "there is not a more honest or more efficient officer in the Police Department than Capt. Burlingame."

Indeed, Miss McCall insisted Capt. Burlingame is "a very high type of gentleman," and said she spoke from the viewpoint not only of her office in the District attorney's office, but from the viewpoint of all "the women in the professional world."

Miss McCall was the last witness called by the defense and at the conclusion of her testimony the trial was adjourned until 10 o'clock Monday morning when the prosecution will present several rebuttal witnesses, among whom may be Mrs. Blalock, who is reported not to have gone to Chicago, as she advertised, but to be awaiting in a nearby town her time to come back to take the stand and destroy, if she can, the defense of the man she has accused.

More Policemen on Stand.

In closing his defense Leahy reserved the right to present one more defense witness if he can be found and that witness may be the first on the stand Monday. Otherwise the rebuttal will begin on reconvening of the board At the conclusion there will be the arguments. How long these will take is not known but it seems certain that the trial will not go beyond Tuesday at the outside.

Twelve of the sixteen defense witnesses, who supported Burlingame's story yesterday, were policemen.

All of the policemen are or have been assigned to duty under Capt. Burlingame in the Second Precinct. They came forward, were sworn and told their stories supporting that told by the captain. They had seen Mrs. Blalock in the Second Precinct Station. They had seen the captain go into her apartments and get tips and proceed on his Saturday night career of raiding without legal authority in the form of search warrants.

Policemen Firm on Stories.

Some of them swore they had seen Mrs. Blalock using the typewriter both while the captain was in the station and when he was absent. Most insisted they never had heard the name Blalock before the trial started, but knew her solely as the red-head palmist, the source of the captain's "red-head" tips or as Mrs. Bansal, the professional name under which the woman told fortunes with cards and by palm reading and offered to take off hurts which had been placed on members of her colored clientele by their enemies.

Walter L. Fowler, assistant corporation counsel, to whom Bride has entrusted the questioning of witnesses, examined each of them briefly. Fowler emphasized their positiveness about details which corroborated Burlingame's story and sought to draw a contrast between their recollection of those details and their forgetfulness of other incidents. But they all stuck to their stories, giving monosyllabic answers, enlarging upon them under questioning with the air of experienced witnesses who knew what they wanted to say and would be persuaded to say nothing else, neither more nor less.

Sergeant Tells of Raids.

Most of the policemen had a positiveness bordering on truculence but Sergt. Ralph M. Cox, of the Twelth and formerly of the Second Precinct, was a placid and smiling witness, who emphasized his statements not with outthrust jaw, hard eye and tight lips, but with a chuckle and a smile. His hands clasped across his respectably noticeable stomach, the sergeant seemed willing to sit in the witness chair all day and say:

"Oh, no,"—chuckle—"Mr. Fowler"—chuckle—"it wasn't like that."

It remained for the sergeant, too, to soften the record for the captain anent the unwarranted and illegal raiding attributed to him by other witnesses. According to the sergeant's story whenever they went on a raid without warrants they went in and searched and seized liquor if the occupants opened the door and invited them in, but they never forced their way in because they had no warrants and it would have been illegal to force their way in under those conditions. And his mustached lip uncovered his clear white teeth as he chuckled again.

Others Back Burlingame.

Other policemen who supported Capt. Burlingame's story included: James W. Casey, Fourteenth Precinct, formerly of No. 2; Charles W. Tucker, of No. 2; Edward L. Shelton, No. 2; Precinct Detective J. F. Flaherty, No. 2; Harry C. Blackman, assistant station clerk, No. 2; C. C. Niblock, Tenth Precinct, and formerly assigned to the police repair shop; G. S. Thompson, No. 4, assigned to the repair shop; E. L. Gibbons, Second Precinct, the "perfect gentleman" of Mrs. Blalock's testimony; Sergt. N. O. Holmes, Second Precinct; G. Thayer, Second Precinct, and Irving Rosenberg, of the Fourth Precinct.

Robert I. Miller, attorney and race horse owner, took the stand to say that Charlie Green, colored expressman, who testified a few days ago, was the expressman whom he engaged to take a galvanized washtub of household articles to Burlingame's home. Mrs. Blalock said she had sent the things—articles belonging to the captain—and Green said he got them from Mrs. Blalock. Miller said he had sent them by an expressman and thought Green was the man.

Hotel Man Takes Stand.

W. C. Phillips, a hotel man, supported the story told by Callen K. Reed, a defense witness Thursday, that they had gone to Blanton's office to get his help for Reed's appointment to the police force and Blanton had declared he intended to get Burlingame.

E. R. Pruner, an attorney, with offices in association with F. Regis Noel, who testified Thursday, told of Mrs. Blalock coming into the office while Noel was absent and tearing up various papers dealing with her affairs in Noel's possession. He said the papers consisted of tax bills and a lease on Mrs. Blalock's Wisconsin avenue loft building which Noel was preparing for the woman. Pruner supported Noel's testimony that the files concerning the Blalock and Schirmer matters subsequently were stolen from Noel's office.

THE NEW PHOTOPLAY PROGRAMS

A SECOND WEEK OF BARRIE HIT AS ALL-TALKIE

The Paramount 100 per cent all-talking picture, "The Doctor's Secret," is the principal screen attraction at Loew's Columbia this week, having been held over due to popular demand.

This picture, which is hailed as one of the most perfect talking pictures to date, was adapted from the famous stage success by Sir James M. Barrie "Half an Hour," in which Maude Adams was featured. The cast in the present picture features the famous stage star, Ruth Chatterton, who is supported by such well-known actors as Robert Edeson, H. B. Warner and John Loder.

The story deals with London's society life and is about a self-made wealthy man, who has bought and considers fully paid for an aristocratic and beautiful wife. In his self-assurance he is not aware that his wife plans to leave him to run away with her lover. Her lover, however, is accidentally killed a half hour before they were to sail for Egypt. A doctor, who brings his body to the apartment where the woman awaits, learns the facts of the case without learning the identity of the woman. Later in the evening this doctor is the guest of her husband at a dinner at their home. He meets the lady, but keeps the secret.

Jack Pepper is master of ceremonies in a Metro-Movietone revue presentation. He introduces Frances White, the Ponce Sisters, the Reynolds Sisters and Joseph Regan, well-known tenor. Jan Garber and his jazz band are presented in a Metro-Movietone act. The Fox Movietone News, the M-G-M News and the Columbia orchestra complete the program.

COLD SHIVERS, LOUD GUFFAWS, DEEP MYSTERY

"Stark Mad," Warner Bros.' latest 100 per cent all-talking picture, will be the featured screen offering at the Earle Theater for the week beginning today. "Stark Mad" is the most uncanny of all the shiver-and-shake laugh-makers of the screen. Vitaphone adds to the realism by recording every shriek, stutter, growl and intelligible word spoken, and sensitively reproducing all sounds.

"Stark Mad" has a notable cast, including H. B. Warner, Louise Fazenda, Jacqueline Logan, Henry B. Walthall, Lionel Belmore, Claude Gillingwater, Andre Beranger, John Miljan, Warner Richmond and Floyd Shackelford. It records the adventures of the members of an expedition formed by a millionaire to locate his lost son in the Central American jungles.

Minister With Dual Personality Jailed

Convicted of Perjury and Making False Income Tax Returns.

San Francisco, March 8 (A.P.).—Refusing to take cognizance of a "dual personality," a Federal jury here today convicted the Rev. Oscar H. Gruver, of Alameda, on two counts of perjury and making false income tax returns. Gruver is treasurer of the California Lutheran Synod. The jury recommended leniency in the sentence.

The minister was accused of tax fraud and perjury as an executor of the estate of Julius Bohn, Oakland capitalist. He testified he had a dual personality and that as trustee of the church fund and executor of the estate, he could not explain the disappearance of $200,000 in bonds which he said Bohn gave him to hold in trust for the church.

The pastor swore to an affidavit that he did not know where the bonds were, though as trustee he knew that the bonds were in his own safe deposit box. Gruver asserted that as trustee he could not tell himself, as executor of the estate, where the bonds were because he had promised to keep the gift a cacret for several years.

Film Stars Victimized On Income Taxes Called

Los Angeles, March 8 (A.P.).—William Haines, Dorothy Mackaill and Vilma Banky, of the Hollywood film colony, were subpenaed today by a Federal grand jury investigating "income tax counselors," who are alleged to have "buncoed" numerous moving picture artists.

Assistant United States Attorney General Morton Fisher said that Haines, Miss Mackaill and Miss Banky had been victimized, together with other film people.

Cubans Honor Wilkins, Explorer of Antarctic

Havana, March 8 (A.P.).—Hubert Wilkins, Australian Antarctic explorer, spent a few hours in Havana today as the guest of Cuban Geographical Society and Cuban government. He arrived aboard the liner Ebro, en route from South America to New York.

Members of the society escorted him to the Havana Hall of Science for a special reception. The society recently conferred its grand gold medal on Wilkins for his flight from Alaska to Spitzbergen.

Nine U. S. Warships at Hongkong.

Hongkong, March 8 (A.P.).—Nine warships of the American Asiatic fleet arrived here on a three days' visit en route from Manila to Shanghai and north China waters on a summer cruise.

RAILROADING A VIGOROUS LIFE, EVEN IN FILMS

"You can't fake a railroader," declared Director Howard Bretherton recently as he watched Monte Blue back a locomotive with a string of six passenger cars right to the dot before the close-up camera as "The Greyhound Limited" was being filmed.

As a consequence, all the actors appearing as railroad men in the production have really had railroad service. This gives the picture an air of reality which makes it vastly more interesting.

"There is something," declared Bretherton, "about working with these hurtling monsters of steel and steam that makes men big, hearty and bluff. The tremendous power and speed which they control give them an assurance and a virility which no actor can counterfeit."

Monte spent several years as a fireman on one of the big Eastern roads before his adventurous urge started him on the romantic wanderings which brought him to Hollywood and D. W. Griffith. Since then his rise has been rapid.

For the last seven years he has been one of the most consistently popular stars of the screen. Edna Murphy, Grant Withers, Lucy Beaumont, Lew Harvey and Ernest Shields head the excellent supporting cast of "The Greyhound Limited," a Vitaphone talking picture, now playing at the Fox Theater.

A THRILLER BY CONRAD SERVES RONALD COLMAN

Ronald Colman in his first starring vehicle, "The Rescue," is the screen attraction at Loew's Palace this week. Lily Damita, famous blonde beauty, plays opposite Colman in this synchronized United Artists production.

The picture was adapted from a story by Joseph Conrad. The story portrays Ronald Colman in the role of King Tom Lingard, gentleman adventurer and master of a trading brig in the Javanese seas. His life, one day, is saved by the native rajah who sacrifices his kingdom by his act. In return Lingard promises to return the kingdom to his friend. While he is planning his coup d'etat, the long arm of coincidence places a shipwrecked crew of English gentlefolk in the way of Lingard's extremely illegal operations. The result is a dramatic and tremendously moving succession of complications which are heightened by Lingard's falling in love with the beautiful French wife of the yacht's owner.

The ending is as bitter-sweet and as powerfully moving as the director, Herbert Brenon, could make it.

On the stage Wesley Eddy reigns with his Palace Syncopators in the premier production for Loew-Publix by Dave Gould. The presentation, "Harvest Time," includes in its cast Fauntleroy and Van, a couple of backwoods gagmen; Ted Mark, a whistler of renown; the Varsity Four, a quartet of harmony singers; the Stanley Twins in new acrobatic dances, and the Dave Gould Girls.

The program is rounded out by the Fox Movietone News, the M-G-M News, the Palace Orchestra, Charles Gaige at the console, and selected short subjects.

METROPOLITAN PLANS REPEAT WEEK OF BILL

"Weary River," now playing to capacity audiences at Crandall's Metropolitan Theater, will be the featured screen attraction for a second and final week, beginning today. The engagement will end on Friday night, March 15. Richard Barthelmess, who has for ten years been one of the most popular male stars on the screen, rises to new heights in "Weary River," a Vitaphone talking picture. Vitaphone tests of the star's voice proved interesting, and during the past week much curiosity has been aroused over the star's talkie debut.

"Weary River" is the story of a singing convict, and contains an abundance of action and sentimental dramatic interest. It was directed by Frank Lloyd from a short story by Courtney Riley Cooper, and introduces Betty Compson as the feminine lead opposite Barthelmess. Others in the cast are William Holden, Louis Natheaux, George Stone, Raymond Turner and Robert O'Connor.

"Squall" Is Correct.

A "Vitaphone chorus" was heard in the closing scenes for "The Squall," the picturization of the famous stage play of that name at First National studios. Sixty human beings, 20 pigs, 20 cows, 50 geese, 200 sheep and other animals made up the ensemble.

The Children - - By Edith Wharton

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Martin Boyne, a civil engineer, who has been kept busy on projects in all parts of the world, is taking an ocean trip. He is looking forward to another fortnight of solitude, when the steward places a chair next to his tagged "Mrs. Cliffe Wheater." Cliffe Wheater was a schoolmate of his at Harvard. His wife was a friend of those days. Boyne is puzzled by the varied types of children in the entourage and further mystified by its leader. He is told by the gray-haired woman called "Scopy" her name is Judith. She is the oldest child of the Wheaters. The oldest boy's name is Terry, and his health is poor. "Scopy" recounts the tangled love affairs of the Wheaters to explain the group for Boyne. Boyne begins to mull over his own affairs, particularly with a Mrs. Sellars. Hitherto "unattainable," he recalls her husband has died. Terry, the heir-apparent to the Wheater fortune, asks Boyne to intercede on his behalf with his parents to obtain a tutor. Complying with the Wheaters' request, he hires a young Englishman. Boyne leaves the Wheaters with their new yacht and their retinue at Venice and journeys to the chalet of Mrs. Sellars. She agrees to marry him, but refuses to set a day. They are interrupted by a visit from Judith Wheater, who announces that they have fled the Wheaters because another break seems imminent and the children refuse to be again parted. Boyne journeys back to Venice, and after countless interruptions finally gets the Wheaters to agree that the children can go along as they are with Boyne as a "trial guardian." Mrs. Sellars arranges a picnic for the children in the mountains. She brings along Mr. Dobree, an attorney, who settled her husband's estate to her advantage. While they were picnicking, Mr. Dobree proposes to her, and is told she is betrothed to Boyne.

THERE was nothing of the blue-bottle about Mrs. Sellars; and she was timorously anxious that Boyne should know it. But her timidity was not base; if she submitted, she submitted proudly. The only sign she gave of a latent embarrassment was in her too great ease, her too blithe determination to deny it. But even this was minimized by the happy fact that she had a piece of news for him.

She did not tell him what it was till lunch was over, and they were finishing their coffee in the sitting room; she knew the importance of not disturbing a man's train of thought—even agreeably—while he is in the act of enjoying good food. Boyne had lit his cigar, and was meditating on the uniform excellence of the coffee she managed to give him, when she said, with a little laugh: "Only imagine—Aunt Julia's on the Atlantic! I had a radio this morning. She says she's coming over to Paris to see you."

Boyne had pictured Aunt Julia—when he could spare the time for such an avocation—as something solid, ponderous, essentially immovable. She represented for him the obstinate stability of old New York in the flux of new experiments. It was like being told that Trinity Church, for instance, was taking a Loretto-flight across the Atlantic to see him.

Mrs. Sellars laughed at his incredulous stare. "Are you surprised? I'm not. You see, Aunt Julia was always the delicate sister, the one who had to be nursed. Aunt Gertrude, the strong one, who did the nursing, died last winter—and since then Aunt Julia's been perfectly well."

They agreed that such resurrections were not uncommon, and Mrs. Sellars went so far as to declare that, if she didn't get to Paris in time to meet Aunt Julia, she was prepared to have the latter charter an aeroplane and descend on Cortina. "Indeed, we're only protected by the fact that I don't believe there's any landing field in the Dolomites."

She went on to say that she would have to leave in a day or two, as Aunt Julia, who was accustomed to having her path smoothed for her, had requested that hotel rooms fulfilling all her somewhat complicated requirements should be made ready for her arrival, a six-cylinder motor with balloon tires and an irreproachable chauffeur engaged to meet her at the station, and a doctor and a masseuse be found in attendance when she arrived—as a result of which precautions she hoped, after an interval of repose, to be well enough to occupy herself with her niece's plans.

Boyne gasped. "Good Lord—what that cable must have cost her!"

"Oh, it's not the cost that ever bothers Aunt Julia," said Aunt Julia's niece with a certain deference.

Boyne laughed, and agreed that Mrs. Sellars could not prudently refuse such a summons. Somehow it no longer offended him that she should obey it from motives so obviously interested. He could not have said why, but it now seemed to him natural enough that she should hold herself at the disposal of a rich old aunt. He wondered whether it was because her departure would serve to relieve a passing tension; but he dismissed this as a bit of idle casuistry. "The point is that she's going—and that she and I will probably be awfully glad to see each other when she gets back."

Mrs. Sellars cast a wistful look about her. After a pause she said: "You don't know how I hate to think that our good evenings in this dear little room are so nearly over," in a tone suggesting that she had rather expected Boyne to say it for her, and that he had somehow missed a cue.

"But why over? Not for more than a week, I hope? You're not going to let yourself be permanently annexed by Aunt Julia?"

She smiled a little perplexedly; evidently other plans were in her mind, plans she had pictured him as instinctively divining. "Not permanently; but I don't quite know when I shall be able to leave her——"

"Oh, I say, my dear!"

The perplexity lifted from her smile: it seemed to reach out to him like a promise. "But then I expect you to join me very soon. As soon as Aunt Julia's blood pressure has been taken, and the doctor and the masseuse and the chauffeur have been tested and passed upon."

Boyne listened in astonishment. It had never seriously occurred to him that he was to be involved in the ceremony of establishing Aunt Julia on European soil. "Oh, but look here—what earthly use should I be? Why should I be butchered to make Aunt Julia's holiday?"

"You won't be. It will be—almost the other way round. I'm going to do everything I possibly can for Aunt Julia; everything to start her successfully on her European adventure. And then I'm going to present the bill."

"The bill?"

She nodded gayly. "You're the bill. I'm going to present you, and say: 'Now you've seen him, can you wonder that I mean to marry him at once, whether you like it or not?'"

The words fell on a silence which Boyne, for the moment, found it impossible to break. Mrs. Sellars stood by her writing table, slender body leaning to him, her face lit with one of those gleams of lost youth which he had once found so exquisite and poignant. He found it so now, but with another poignancy.

"You mean — you mean — you've changed your mind about the date?" He broke off, the words "of our marriage" choking on his lips. Through a mist of bewilderment he saw the tender mockery of her smile, and knew how much courage it disguised. ("I stand here like a stock—what a brute she'll think me!")

"Did you imagine I was one of the dreadful women who never change their minds?" She came close, clasped her hands about his arm, lifted her delicate face, still alight with expectation. The face said: "Here I am: to be cherished or shattered——" and he thought again of the glittering fragments he had seen at his feet the night before. He detached her hands, and lifted them, one after another, to his kiss. If only some word—if only the right word—would come to him!

"Martin—don't you want me to change my mind?" she suddenly challenged him. He held her hands against his breast, caressing them.

"Dear, first of all, I don't want to be the cause of you doing anything that might offend your aunt . . . that might interfere . . . in any way . . . with her views. . . ." No; he couldn't go on: the words strangled him. He was too sure that she was aware they did not express what he was thinking, were spoken only to gain time.

But with a gentle tenacity she pursued: "It's awfully generous of you to think of that. But don't you suppose, dear, I've been miserable at asking you to linger on here when I've always known that what you wanted was to be married at once, and get back to work? I've been imprisoned in my past—I see it now; I had become the slave of all those years of conformity you used to reproach me with. For a long time I couldn't get out of their shadow. But you've opened my eyes—you've set me free. How monstrous to have waited so long for happiness, and then to be afraid to seize it when it comes!" Her arms stole up and drew him. "I'm not afraid now, Martin. You've taught me not to be. Henceforth I mean to think of you first, not of Aunt Julia. I mean to marry you as soon as it can be done. I don't suppose the formalities take very long in Paris, do they? Then, as soon as we're married, we'll sail for home."

He listened in a kind of stupor, saying inwardly: "It's not that I love her less; it can't be that I love her less. It's only that everything that happens between us always seems to happen at the wrong time."

The silence prolonged itself, on her side stretched and straining, on his built up like a wall, opaque, impenetrable. From beyond it came her little far-off laugh. "Dear, I'm utterly in your hands, you see!"

Evidently there had to be an answer to that. "Rose——" he began. Pretty as her name was, he hardly ever called her by it; he had always felt her too close to him to need a name. She looked up in surprise.

He made a fresh start. "But you see, darling, how things are——"

A little tremor ran across her face. "What things??"

"You know that, after you'd refused to consider the possibility of our getting married at once, I pledged myself. . . ."

The tremor ceased, and her face once more became smooth and impenetrable. He found himself repeating to vacancy: "I pledge myself. . . ."

She drew quietly away, and sat down at a little distance from him. "You're talking about your odd experiment with the Wheater children?"

Mitchell Will Defend Pocket-Veto Practice

(Associated Press.)

Attorney General Mitchell on Monday will urge the Supreme Court to do nothing that will change the construction upon the Constitution which for years has given the President the power to disapprove legislation by a pocket veto.

A brief upon which the Attorney General will base his argument was filed yesterday in the Supreme Court. The brief declared that should the construction contended for by the House judiciary committee and others prevail, and the pocket veto practice be ended, 120 pocket vetoed measures which, through a long course of years, have been treated as dead would have to be placed on the statute books, with incalculable complications.

Sinclair's Hearing Set for April 22

Supreme Tribunal Advances Date; Decides to Pass on All Evidence.

(Associated Press.)

The Supreme Court yesterday advanced for hearing on April 22 the appeal of Harry F. Sinclair, Henry M. Day, William J. Burns, and the latter's son, W. Sherman Burns, convicted here of contempt of court in connection with jury shadowing.

In granting the motion of Owen J. Roberts, special counsel for the Government, to advance the case, the court also consented to pass on the whole controversy on its merits, instead of merely answering certain questions asked by the District Court of Appeals for its guidance.

The action taken by the Supreme Court will make it unnecessary for the court of appeals to render a decision. The contempt charges arose out of the shadowing by Burns detectives of the jury in a case involving conspiracy charges against Sinclair and Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, involving the lease of the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve.

East Congress Set Mark In Measures Reported

(Associated Press.)

The Seventieth Congress did not establish a legislative record for the number of measures introduced and passed, but the committees reported more bills and resolutions, exclusive of pension measures in omnibus bills, than any of the recent Congresses.

A total of 23,238 bills were introduced, 5,000 short of the record. Of these, 17,-935 were in the House and 5,903 in the Senate. There were 846 resolutions introduced in the House and 673 in the Senate. The House passed 1,601 bills and 117 resolutions. The Senate passed 299 bills and 321 resolutions.

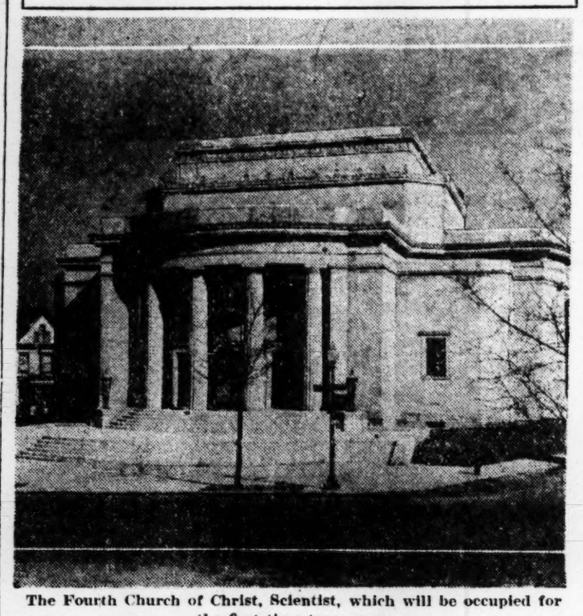
FOURTH CHURCH OF CHRIST



The Fourth Church of Christ, Scientist, which will be occupied for the first time tomorrow.

SCIENTIST CHURCH TO OPEN TOMORROW

New Structure's Auditorium Will Be Occupied First Time by Members.

FOURTH GROUP IN CAPITAL

The Fourth Church of Christ, Scientist, Sixteenth and Oak streets and Meridian place northwest, will occupy the auditorium of its new church for the first time tomorrow.

The structure is designed in a pure classifical style, with the exterior finished in variegated Indiana limestone. Howard L. Cheney, of Chicago, is the architect, and the general contractor is the N. P. Severin Co., also of Chicago.

The building is situated well back from Sixteenth street and is approached by a broad flight of granite steps, which lead to the main entrance through a curved portico, supported by four large fluted doric columns. The entrance portico is balanced alon the Meridian place and Oak street facades by similar curving bays, each supported by four engaged columns.

Broad Dome Is Feature.

The central portion of the building is carried in two stepbacks and houses the broad dome which forms the main feature of the auditorium.

Besides the main auditorium, seating more than 1,000 persons, and the Sunday school, with a capacity for 700 pupils, the church contains a large entrance foyer, which extends below the balcony portion of the building. Lobbies and coatrooms are provided off the foyer on the auditorium floor. Rooms for the readers, soloist and organist are placed behind the reader's platform. The board of trustees of the church will have a suite of rooms, including an office. There also will be ushers' and committee rooms, while provision has been made in the auditorium for a pipe organ.

Organized in 1919.

The church is the fourth established in Washington as an authorized branch of the mother church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. Its charter members came from First Church of Christ, Scientist, Columbia road and Euclid street northwest, in 1919, to meet a need for another church. Services were held in the Arcade, Fourteenth street and Park road, for seven years, and then in the Masonic Auditorium in Brightwood.

The land for the new edifice was purchased in 1920, the corner stone was laid in February, 1928, and the Sunday school room has been occupied by the congregation for church services since last September. The church maintains a reading room in the Tivoli Building, Fourteenth street and Park road.

To the Youth of Washington

Where will you be five years from now?

What will be your mental outlook upon life at that time?

What will be your habits? What your associates? What will be your physical and financial status? What your religious and mental standards?

It is sure that what you are doing now will point almost exactly to the answer to each of these questions.

Few men or women are able to make sweeping revisions in their modes of living overnight.

Most changes come in a gradual way. What man can stop a hundred bad habits in one day and begin a hundred good ones the next?

It isn't done that way. Life is a constant change, with everything being done by easy stages. The paths you are treading today will become broader and easier to follow---no matter in which direction they are leading.

Where you will be five years from today depends upon whether you are a little better or a little worse tomorrow or a month from today.

Try to elevate yourself a little each day. Save a little money each week, deposit it carefully or invest it wisely, and you will be surprised at the growth in five years.

Spend your money and time foolishly, and associate with wrong companions, in five years you probably will be a liability to your community and a disgrace to your family.

Apply this test to the things you want to do---

"If I Continue This Indefinitely, Where Will I Be in Five Years?"

BULLS WIN CONTROL AFTER EARLY BREAK

More Than Score of Stocks Advance to New High Record Prices.

RADIO AGAIN IS FEATURE

New York, March 8 (A.P.).—Speculators for the advance took complete control of the stock market today after an opening break had carried many popular issues down 2 to 8½ points. Disregarding the surprisingly large increase of $140,000,000 in brokers' loans and the warning statement of Paul Warburg, international banker, powerful speculative forces bid vigorously for stocks, pushing more than a score to new high records.

Radio issues were the outstanding feature. The old stock soared 38 points to a new high record for all time at 445, after having dipped to 396½ on the first outbreak of selling and the new stock closed 7¼ points higher at 89, also a new peak. More than 900,000 shares of the new stock changed hands during the day.

Except for a slightly easier undertone in call money, which dropped from 10 to 9 per cent, there was little in the day's news to explain the sudden change in speculative sentiment. Earnings and trade reports continued favorable and a flurry of buying developed in the oil shares on reports that marked progress was being made in negotiations for a curtailment of crude production.

Still Source of Uneasiness.

The seeming defiance of the Federal Reserve authorities by stock market operators continued to be a source of uneasiness in conservative banking and brokerage quarters. With loans only $22,000,000 below the record high total for all time, an unusually heavy midmonth turnover of funds due next week and expanding agricultural and commercial demands for funds, many of the large financial houses continued to urge a cautionary policy on the part of their customers.

Much of today's buying is reported to have been for the account of the short interest, which assumed large proportions when the credit stringency first began to make itself felt. Because speculative accounts generally are heavily margined, and no signs of a general recession in business activity are apparent, there has been relatively little liquidation of long holdings.

Wall street heard that the Cutten and Fisher interests, which have been big factors in the "bull" market during the last few years, have temporarily withdrawn from the market, at least to the extent of making no organized effort to mark up their favorite stocks.

Merger Rumors Revived.

Concurrent strength of the Radio and Western Union issues today revived rumors of consolidation plans, but President Harbord, of the Radio Co., said that merger discussions hae been abandoned for the time being. Western Union sold up to 216¾ and then dropped back to 212, up 2 points net.

Some of the other outstanding strong spots in today's market were Advance Rumely, Allis Chalmers, Davison Chemical, Grand Stores, Midland Steel Products, preferred; National Cash Register, Hossia Insurance, Stromberg Carlson and Victor Talking Machine, all of which closed 4 to 10 points higher. U. S. Steel, common, which sold down to 182¾ in the early trading, closed at 186¼ for a net gain of 2 points, and General Electric rallied from a low of 231½ to 238½, closing within a point of the top.

There were a few soft spots. Adams Express broke 20 points and rallied 5. Case Threshing dropped 10 points and Burroughs Adding Machine 5.

Establishment of another new 1929 low by the Canadian dollar at 99.32 cents featured the easier foreign exchange market. Sterling cables ruled a shade lower around $4.85.

Cotton rallied about $1.25 a bale. Wheat declined a fraction of a cent a bushel and coffee futures rallied 25 to 38 points.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, March 8 (A.P.).—Further sharp advances occurred in cotton today on continuation of the recent buying wave. The advance was promoted by relatively steady rabies and reports of small fertilizer sales in February.

Reports of Mississippi River overflows on unprotected lands at Cairo, Ill., and of a levee break north of Blytheville, Ark., also were mentioned as a factor in the afternoon upturn. Prices for all months made new high ground for the movement. May contracts sold up to 21.40, or 24 points net higher, and closed at 21.39. The general market closed very steady at net advances of 22 to 27 points.

The opening was firm at an advance of 7 to 12 points. Active months showed net gains of 10 to 12 points right after the call in response to the relatively steady showing of Liverpool and reports that February fertilizer tag sales showed a falling off of 24.4 per cent compared with last year.

The advance attracted realizing and a little more Southern selling. Prices eased off several points after the first demand had been supplied but firmed up again on renewal of demand from Wall street and commission houses.

Trade buying of near months also was reported on the advance which followed. Demand seemed to be stimulated by a bullish view of the week-end figures.

The highest prices of the day were reached in the late trading when March sold at 21.39 and the new October contract at 20.55, making net advances of 23 to 28 points on the more active positions. The close was within a point or two of the best.

Week-end figures showed a decrease in the world's visible supply of American cotton of 184,330 bales for the week, compared with a decrease of 136,974 for the same week last year. Private cables reported opening trade calling and some rebuying in Liverpool. They also said there had been encouraging sales of cotton cloths in China, but there were reports that Manchester spinners had decided to ballot on a proposal for stopping on Saturdays and Mondays during April.

Exports today, 23,290, making 5,454,302 this season. Port receipts, 17,513. United States port stocks, 1,888,571.

NEVER INTENDED RETURN TO RING, DEMPSEY SAYS

Emerson Wins, Central Bows In Tourney

Former Reaches Semi-Finals at W. & L. by Double Victory.

Central Five Humbled by Richmond Team in Extra Period.

Special to The Washington Post.

LEXINGTON, Va., March 8.—Emerson Institute's Five alone remains to represent Washington in the annual Washington and Lee scholastic basket ball tournament being staged here in Doremus Gymnasium. Central High, the other Capital City entry, was eliminated today by John Marshall High, of Richmond, while Emerson fought its way to the semifinals by virtue of a double triumph.

Central was beaten in its debut in the tournament, losing an extra-period thriller, 25 to 20. By defeating Virginia Episcopal, 41 to 31, in its first game today and downing the previously undefeated Princeton (West Virginia) High Quintet 37 to 20, tonight, Emerson established itself as the favorite to win the championship, showing an extremely effective attack and a pair of sensational shots in Buscher and Colley.

Emerson will meet Augusta Military Academy Saturday morning to decide which will enter the finals Saturday night. John Marshall High and Newport News High are the other semifinalists.

Central Unable to Hold Lead; Regulars Are Banished.

At the close of the second half of the Central game the score stood at 20-all. Both teams showed fine defensive play throughout the game. At the close of the first quarter John Marshall was leading by a lone point, 5 to 4. The half found the Richmond Team leading, 11 to 7, but at the end of the third quarter Central had forged ahead and enjoyed a 16-to-13 majority. In the fourth quarter the Richmond clan began functioning and ran up eight markers to four for Central.

In the extra period Baker, of John Marshall, sank a field goal and a foul shot for three points, and J. Smith, of the same team, made one shot from the floor good. John Marshall was guarding closely and freezing the ball at every available moment, preventing Central from scoring. Three Central players were banished from the game on account of personal fouls. Lampson left the game before the close of the first half, and Romig and Delisio made their exit in the final minutes of the second half.

Buscher Scores 17 Points in Beating Virginia Episcopal.

A well-drilled passing attack with Buscher, right forward, as the main scorer, won for the Emerson Five over Virginia Episcopal. Emerson would pass, dribble and cut endlessly down the floor every time it had the ball, to feed it to Buscher, who always seemed to be able to connect with the rims in easy fashion. Buscher in all totaled eight field goals and one foul toss for 17 points.

Virginia Episcopal displayed a good passing team, too, and had a pair of versatile forward players in Barker and

Jackie Fields Stops St. Paul Man in Fifth

Detroit, March 8 (U.P.).—Jackie Fields, leading aspirant for Joe Dundee's welterweight title, scored a technical knockout over Al Van Ryan, of St. Paul, here tonight when the latter's seconds tossed in the towel in the fifth round of a scheduled ten-round battle.

Fields was clearly the master of the bout from the start. In the second round he knocked Van Ryan through the ropes onto the press table. The St. Paul battler got back in the ring at the count of nine, but went down with a right. The bell saved him.

Fields scored knockdowns in the third and fourth rounds. In the fifth, Van Ryan went down with a hard right to the head and his seconds threw in the towel.

In the semiwind-up Tony Canzoneri, aspirant for the featherweight title, won every round and took a decision over Cecil Payne, of Louisville, ten rounds. Tony lambasted Payne throughout with a constant two-gloved attack, but the Louisville boy was smiling and fresher than the victor at the finish.

Ray Barbuti's Comrades Saved by His Silence

New York, March 8 (United Press).—Defending Ray Barbuti's action in refusing to name a "certain A. A. U. official" who is claimed to know that certain amateur athletes receive more than expenses, the Olympic 400-meter champion's attorneys, Garey, Crowley & Garey, tonight issued a statement telling why Barbuti had declined to name the official in question at last night's investigation by the A. A. U.

"If Barbuti named an official present and functioning at the registration committee meeting he would be in the position of accusing one of his judges," the statement read.

"Mr. Barbuti's statement was based not on his own direct knowledge, but on the statements of his comrades, and he considered an answer to the question a breach of confidence, in that he would have to give up the names of these comrades in order to support the answer."

Almost the Naked Truth

—By JAMES S. COLLINS—

NEW YORK, March 8.—On more than one occasion a man has been placed on trial for murder and the case disposed of within four minutes. It took the registration committee of the A. A. U. more than four hours Thursday evening to "try" Ray Barbuti for casting aspersions on the purity of the organization, and at the end of the deliberations they were just where they started, which was nowhere in particular. Perhaps one reason why the trial was so long and futile was that the prosecutors, who doubled as jurors, apparently forgot at times who was on trial and for what offense.

At times the committee seemed more concerned about publication of Barbuti's charges than the truth of them. Instead of resenting the implication contained in a request that they affirm on the stand the truthfulness of statements they had made in print under their own signatures, newspaper reporters good-naturedly humored the committee and did so.

Reportorial Ears Differ, Trial Of Scribes Brings Out.

They were themselves then put on trial for printing Barbuti's remarks, at least one committeeman implying that he considered such an action "unethical" and "unfair." Questions and answers as to the newspaper men's year of graduation from college, &c., went into the record together with whatever bearing they may have on the truth or falsity of Barbuti's assertion that there is a dash or two of heliotrope in the lily-whiteness of A. A. U. officialdom.

Their questioning, however, developed the startling fact that all reportorial ears do not hear alike. One of the reporters testified that Barbuti did not say, as other scribes had quoted him, that the A. A. U. officials were "a bunch of four-flushers." This witness later hotly defended his testimony in the anteroom in which the witnesses were parked.

"Barbuti did not call them a bunch of four-flushers,'" he insisted. "He called them a bunch of ——s."

Asbestos Earmuffs the Vogue If They Allow Joie Ray to Talk.

Although a good time was had by all, and especially by the prosecuting jurors, at Thursday night's hearing, the real fireworks are due to be set off at another session of the A. A. U. assizes next Monday night. Joie Ray, the famous runner who recently bartered his amateur status for gold, has volunteered to go before the committee and tel. a thing or two about the conditions which Barbuti refuses to specify out of consideration for brother athletes.

Outspoken even in repose, Mr. Ray's speech fairly drips TNT—when he is "burned up" over anything. His professional career something of a flop after fifteen years of carrying the banner for the A. A. U. as a star of stars, he is just now "burned up" to a cinder. If the committee follows him the latitude in his answers that it allows itself in its questions, there is likely to be a brisk demand for asbestos earmuffs on the twenty-seventh floor of the Woolworth Building.

Could Charge Admission If Joie Talks Freely.

If the A. A. U. officials were able to abide the sight of greenbacks, they might realize a tidy sum by charging admission to the hearing. Almost anybody who has ever heard Joie Ray declaim would be glad to pay for the privilege of hearing him talk for the record on amateur athletic conditions. But if it follows the course it took Thursday night, the public will be rigidly excluded and will have to depend on more carefully selected "hand-outs" of testimony or leaks in its own membership.

Ban on Speed Is Lifted by Johnson

Curves Still Barred; Weaver's Technique Given Attention.

Mystery of Bolton's Absence Cleared; Has Been Ill.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

TAMPA, Fla., March 8.—Since the Washington pitchers started facing batters last Monday the expected has happened and they gradually unloosened their speed. Now all are putting on considerable steam. Manager Walter Johnson and Trainer Mike Martin tried to check them for the first day or two but then decided to let human nature take its course as long as none of the rookies tried out any curves.

As a result of this gradual increase of pace, the Tampa Krewe batters will not find Washington pitching as easy as was at first thought when they clash with the Nationals at Plant Field Sunday in the first exhibition game of the season here. The three who will do the box honors for the big leaguers—Paul Hopkins, Jim Weaver and Guy Cantrell—were given quite a strenuous workout and will be allowed to take things easy at tomorrow's session.

Special attention is being paid to Jim Weaver. His motion has been smoothed out and the coaches are now trying to teach him to get more of his weight and body into his pegs. "If he can get that heft of his behind his throws, opposing batters will never be able to see the ball," President Griffith remarked while watching the big boy pitching to hitters.

Goslin and Judge Due From Hot Springs Tomorrow.

"If he gets his speed, then I'm going to take him in hand and teach him how to hold runners on the sacks;" the National owner added, "it is quite different pitching with men on the bases and inability to do so has taken away half of the effectiveness of many a rookie."

Practically the entire crew of 32 athletes is expected to be on hand when practice starts next Monday. First Baseman Joe Judge and Outfielder Goose Goslin are expected here from Hot Springs on Sunday; Pitcher "Sad Sam" Jones surely will be here by then; Pitcher Paul McCullough, due with the first squad, but detained on account of illness, has said that he will leave for Tampa Sunday and arrive Monday, while Catcher Cliff Bolton is likely to show up most any day now.

Bolton, President Griffith has now learned after a number of tracers and telegrams, left his home at High Point headed this way, on February 24. He was taken ill en route and when he got to Atlanta, instead of changing trains and continuing on his way, he decided to return home. He now is recuperating and wired here this morning that he would start again as soon as he feels a little stronger, probably in a day or two.

Yoter Shows Ability and Pep In Third Base Workouts.

With Bolton's case cleared up, the only mystery is that of Jones, who has been expected ever since last Sunday

Speed Trials at Daytona Today Is Seen Probable

Daytona Beach, Fla., March 8 (A.P.). Low tide today disclosed such marked improvement in the condition of the ocean speedway at the beach here that it was regarded probable the international speed trials will get under way tomorrow.

The wind, too, was switching into the northeast, the favorable quarter, and this was expected to facilitate the action of the waves in ironing the beach track into a perfect smoothness.

Maj. H. O. D. Segrave British driver, and J. M. White, Philadelphia owner of the record-holding Triplex, were ready to take their giant cars to the speedway the moment the conditions become ideal and send them plunging after the world's straightaway speed record of 207.55 miles an hour.

Eastern Hopes Faint For Winning Derby

New York, March 8 (A.P.).—Whether or not their enthusiasm is somewhat chilled by March winds, Eastern horsemen, track observers report, are not especially hopeful of carrying off the classic Kentucky Derby prize this year.

Except for Robert L. Gerry's High Strung, heralded as one of the best juveniles of 1928, and possibly W. J. Salmon's Dr. Freeland, there are no outstanding 3-year-old prospects in metropolitan stables. Turfmen regard E. R. Bradley's Blue Larkspur as a top-heavy favorite for the event at Churchill Downs May 18.

The horses quartered at Belmont and Aqueduct tracks, in preparation for the opening of the metropolitan racing season next month, have wintered well, without a sign of fever or cough. Cold and rainy weather so far has handicapped workouts. High Strung has been exercised on the inclosed track. The Gerry colt is not due to go outdoors until next week, when most of the trainers expect to breeze their charges for the first time.

10,000 to See Penn Bid For Court Title Tonight

Philadelphia, March 8.—A capacity crowd of close to 10,000 persons is expected to fill the Palestra tomorrow night when Pennsylvania and Princeton meet in the final intercollegiate league game of the season for both teams. Prior to the varsity contest the undefeated Pennsylvania Freshman Five engages the Tiger Cubs.

The championship of the league hinges on the result of the game between the two inveterate rivals. Pennsylvania is leading the league with seven victories and two defeats and unless it defeats the Tigers, who are in last place, the race for the title will end in a deadlock.

Dartmouth by its victory over Capt. Schaaf and his teammates last week, retained a mathematical chance of a tie.

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 8 (A.P.). The St. Louis Cardinals made it two straight from the Philadelphia Athletics when the National Leaguers defeated the Americans here today, 11 to 6. St. Louis won the opening game at Avon Park yesterday. The Nationals won by hard hitting, all extra-base hits except one being made by Cardinal players Holm, Douthit and Selph, of St. Louis, and Simmons, of Philadelphia, had triples, while Boepper, Bottomley and Celbert, of the Cards, made doubles.

Phoenix, Ariz., March 8 (United Press.—In tapering off their first week of real training today five of the Detroit Tigers — Johnson, Alexander, Fothergill, Heilmann and Gehringer, smashed the horsehide out of the park.

Manager Bucky Harris will cavort at second base and bat second for the yannigans.

It was not announced today whether Alexander or Heilman would take the first base position.

Robertson's Hit Wins Game For Yankees' Yannigans, 3-2.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 8 (U.P.).—Gene Robertson's hit in the seventh inning enabled the New York Yankee yannigans to beat the regulars today, 3 to 2. The pitching of George Pipgras, who went four innings for the yannigans, featured the practice game. Pipgras is the most advanced hurler in camp.

Babe Ruth played first base for the rookies and made a single. Lou Gehrig failed to get a hit. Ruth complained of a sore arm in the morning workout.

Indians Boast 6 Pitchers Taller Than 6 Feet; Miljus Recovered.

New Orleans, La., March 8 (U.P.).—Ten Cleveland pitchers and catchers took their next to final workout today before the regulars arrive here Monday. The ten days of training here thus far have been without incident. John Miljus, obtained last summer from Pittsburgh on waivers, has reported that his arm has shown no signs of the neuritis which handicapped him with the Pirates. Six of the Indians' pitchers are over the 6-foot mark, Wesley Farrell, who is 6 feet 2 inches in height and weighs 195 pounds, being the biggest.

Robinson Visits Braves' Camp, Stirring Trade Winds.

Clearwater, Fla., March 8 (U.P.).—Talk of a trade between the Brooklyn Robins and Boston Braves was revived today when Manager Wilbert Robinson, of Brooklyn, returned from a short visit to St. Petersburg, the Braves' training camp. It is said that the Robins are interested in Dr. Eddie Farrell, the Braves' holdout shortstop. Robinson refuses to identify the player he would like to obtain from the Braves, but admits he is seeking an infielder.

The fact that the Braves want a pitcher instead of a catcher is believed to be retarding the deal.

In today's practice game Outfielder Max Rosenfeld distinguished himself by making two spectacular running catches.

Accidents to Richbourg and Cunningham Mar Braves' Drill.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 8 (U.P.).—Two serious accidents marred the Boston Braves' workout today and may cause the club to lose the services of Lance Richbourg, outfielder, and Bruce Cunningham, prominent recruit pitcher from the Pacific Coast League, for a week or more.

Richbourg wrenched his right leg in sliding to the plate. It was at first feared he had broken his leg, but later it developed he had escaped with a badly wrenched ligament.

In chasing a fly, Cunningham ran into a barbed wire fence, a strand of wire piercing the third finger of his itching hand.

Hornsby's Homer Helps Cubs To Beat Los Angeles, 11-8.

Los Angeles, Calif., March 8 (U.P.).—The Chicago Cubs got off to a three-run lead in the first inning and defeated the Los Angeles team of the Pacific Coast League, 11 to 8, today in the Cubs' first practice game of the season.

Rogers Hornsby, Cub second baseman, hit a home run in the first inning, scoring two men ahead. He also got two doubles. Riggs Stephenson had a perfect day at bat, with four hits in as many appearances.

ILLINOIS TOPS TRACK MEET IN WEST

Leads Qualifiers in Big Ten Title Event With 11 Men in Finals.

IOWA CITY, Iowa, March 8 (A.P.).—Illinois, defending champion of the Western Conference indoor track and field honors, flashed away to a flying start in the preliminaries tonight by qualifying eleven men for the finals tomorrow night.

The Illini placed men in four of the five events in which trials were held indicating that they would repeat their triumph of last year.

The competition resulted in the shattering of the record for the 60-yard dash and tying the record in the 70-yard high hurdles. Judd Timm, who won fame on the gridiron at Illinois as one of Coach Bob Zuppke's half backs, clipped one-tenth of a second off the Big Ten indoor record by winning his heat in the 60-yard dash in 6 2-10 seconds. This performance also tied the American indoor record, established by Loren Murchison, of the Illinois Athletic Club, in 1923.

Iowa and Indiana Follow, Each With Six Men Qualified.

Three men, Crocks, of Ohio State; Allison, of Iowa and Haydon, of Chicago, winners of three heats in the 70-yard high hurdles, equaled the meet record of 8 8-10 seconds, which was established by Frank Cuhel, Iowa's Olympic hurdler last year. The finals in this event tomorrow night promises to be a thriller. Iowa, runner-up to Illinois in the championship competition a year ago, and Indiana, each qualified six men, with Ohio State placing five and Michigan and Chicago four each. Wisconsin qualified three men, Northwestern and Minnesota two apiece and Purdue one. The Hawkeyes, with the largest squad entered in the meet promise to furnish the stiffest opposition to Illinois in the finals. The meet attracted an entry of 261 athletes, one of the largest in the history of the event.

Michigan's Colored Scholastic Champion Wins Dash Heat.

The 60-yard dash developed an upset when Larson, of Wisconsin, who was figured to be among the first three in the finals, was shut out. Eddie Tolan, Michigan sophomore, a negro youth, who held the national interscholastic record in the 100 and 200-yard dashes, made his debut in conference competition by winning his heat in the 60-yard dash by two Tolan sprinted the distance in :06 3-10 yards over Burkhart, of Indiana, which equaled the old meet record. George Simpson of Ohio State, the defending champion in the dash, easily qualified for the finals by winning his heat handily. Rockaway, another Buckeye stalwart, easily qualified in the hurdles.

The only event in which Illinois failed to qualify a man was the 440-yard run.

HELEN HICKS VICTOR OVER COLLETT

18-Year-Old Girl Wins Over Champion, 2 and 1, in Florida.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 8 (A.P.).—Helen Hicks, 18-year-old Hempstead, Long Island, high school girl, established her right today to place among golfdom's mighty. She defeated the redoubtable Glenna Collett, of Providence, R. I., women's national champion, 2 up and 1, in their semifinal match of the Florida East Coast championships.

Miss Hicks meets in the finals tomorrow Miss Virginia Van Wie, who defeated Miss Bernice Wall, Wisconsin champion, 4 and 3.

Although Miss Hicks had been going at top form all season, having won three titles, her victory today was the more remarkable because for nearly two days after qualifying in this tournament she was confined to bed with ptomaine poisoning. Yet she played Miss Collett stroke for stroke and then beat her on the greens.

Miss Collett Wins First Hole, Going to Turn One Up.

Yesterday the Long Island girl, weak from her illness, managed to go the route and eliminate Miss Pinkie Vahay, Boston, whom she met after she was given a courtesy default on Wednesday by Miss Madge Miller, Detroit, on account of her illness.

Miss Collett started off today with a fine 4 on the first and also taking the third, where Miss Hicks needed three putts. A perfect approach and a beautiful putt gave Miss Hicks a birdie on the fourth, but she took three to get down on the seventh to lose one. Collett went into the turn 1 up.

Missed 2-Foot Putt on Seventeenth Loses Match.

They halved easily to the thirteenth, where Hicks' brassie shot won the hole and the match was even. Collett went over on the short sixteenth and topped her to drop the hole and she missed a 2-foot putt on the sevenetenth to lose.

Miss Van Wie today found the irons that had deserted her previously this year and played a consistent game, while Miss Wall was in successive difficulty.

Rickard Told Ex-Champion To Retire

Will Listen to Offers of Fugazy and Carey Next Week.

Was Ready to Stage Miami Bout Alone, He Declares.

By EDWARD J. NEIL
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

NEW YORK, March 8 (A.P.).—If discussions, arguments and conferences will help Jack Dempsey land his feet on the path he will tread along the fistic trail in the future then the old heavyweight champion must be fairly close to a decision as to his future activities.

For three hours today the bronzed mauler considered offers for his services both in the ring and out, argued over his future with newspaper men and discussed fisticuffs with more intellectual zest than fans who have viewed his beetle-browed savagery in action would consider possible.

Before Dempsey makes any definite decision he will talk Monday with Humbert J. Fugazy, metropolitan promoter who once offered rivalry for Tex Rickard. Tuesday he will confer with William F. Carey, the new Garden potentate. Both want Dempsey to join forces with their organizations as a promoter for either part or full time.

His Boxing Days Are Over, Jack Says Inadvertently.

During the day's session the former titleholder revealed several new "angles" in the promotion of Jack Sharkey's tussle with Young Stribling on the Miami Beach sands. Inadvertently Jack let slip that he never has intended to fight again, that Rickard knew all along that his boxing days were over, and, in fact, advised him never to return to leather slinging, no matter what the inducement.

"Tex promised me 50 per cent of the profits of the Miami Beach fight as well as a 20 per cent interest in his other holdings there—the dog track, the Deauville Casino, and the recreation pier—if I'd help him put over the Sharkey-Stribling fight. When the bout seemed off at Rickard's death I was ready to stage it myself. I went so far as to put up $12,500 to fill out the $100,000 purse Tex guaranteed Sharkey after the Garden directors refused to carry on for more than $75,000 for Mr. Sharkey's end. Carey put up the other $12,500, but the directors changed their minds and agreed to give the Boston fighter the full $100,000 themselves.

Doesn't Want Office Boy Job at Rickard's $30,000 Salary.

"Tex knew when he planned that match I'd never fight again. He even urged me not to—that is, he didn't think I'd fight again. The Garden gave me 25 per cent of the profits and I'm well satisfied. I may promote for them again, but I don't know. They haven't asked me. Certainly I won't be tied down to a desk doing office boy jobs for the $30,000 salary Tex got. I want to play with the big things and either fail or make good on my own merits."

Mackenzie in Semifinals Of Jacksonville Tourney

Jacksonville, Fla., March 8 (A.P.).—John Dawson, Chicago, went into the semifinals of the Southeastern Amateur Golf Tournament here today, defeating N. L. Hoyt, jr., 2 and 1, in the first round and Jack Toomer, Jacksonville 4 and 3, in the second round.

The other semifinalists were J. M. Ryerson, Cooperstown, N. Y., Al Ulmer, Jacksonville, and Roland Mackenzie, of Washington, D. C. Ryerton beat Eddie Van Fleck, Jacksonville, 4 and 3 in the second round, while Ulmer entered the semifinal brackets by defeating Carl Dann, of Orlando, 2 and 1. Mackenzie took the measure of John Ames, New York, 1 up, after 20 holes.

C. U. Pitchers to Face Batters in Drill Today

The Catholic University pitching candidates have made surprisingly rapid strides in reaching playing form and Coach Jack Clarke, in charge of batterymen, yesterday announced that they will undergo an intensive session of pitching to the batters today.

Eight hurlers, all right-handers, cut loose with their best assortments of fast balls and curves yesterday in the Brookland Gymnasium. Due to the high, cold winds prevailing, Head Coach McAuliffe ordered the squad indoors.

Lou Hurley, member of the 1928 Cardinal mound corps, appears to be the leader at this stage of training. Jack Conlon and Lou Gioffre also are showing up well. Gene Murphy, Walter Walsh, Willie Riley, Pete Masi and Buckley also are in the running. So far only Flanagan, of last year's club, and Ed Cosker, up from the freshmen, have reported for the catching assignment. Both, however, have pleased the coaches.

NEWS, NOTES OF TRAINING CAMPS

games are scheduled, one tomorrow and one on Sunday. The game on Sunday will start early, as they are going to put on a bullfight for the players at Nuevo Laredo, which is the Mexican town on the other side of the bridge.

McGraw is beginning to worry about his regulars getting into condition too quickly and going stale before the season is over. The weather here has been ideal for baseball and nearly all of the players are in good physical condition. The veterans of the pitching staff are taking it easy and in the last two practice games McGraw has used only his youngsters on the mound.

McGraw puts his men through a strenuous workout in the morning and then again in the afternoon with the practice game between the rookies and the regulars as the climax.

Meeker Reports to Reds With Hurt Ligament in Arm.

Miami, Fla., March 8 (U.P.).—Roy Meeker, Cincinnati Reds' southpaw pitcher, met the Reds on their arrival here today from Orlando and informed Manager Jack Hendricks that Dr. Cecil Ferguson had found a misplaced ligament in his pitching shoulder. The ligament has been replaced and Meeker expects to resume pitching soon.

Recruits Johnson, Ash and Kemner will hurl for the Reds against the Athletics tomorrow.

Friberg at Phillies' Camp; O'Doul's Absence Mystery.

Winter Haven, Fla., March 8 (U.P.). With almost all regulars in camp for the first time, the Phillies today went through a long batting practice followed by an extended defensive drill.

Bernie Friberg checked in today. Frank O'Doul and Phil McGraw are the only players still unreported. McGraw is a holdout, but Manager Burt Shotton knew of no reason for O'Doul's delay.

Catholic U. To Risk Boxing Record Today

Catholic University is conceded by critics an even chance of winning its boxing match in New York City today with the New York University Team. An undefeated record supports the Cardinals, while the Violets have lost two out of three matches, their lone victory having been scored at the expense of Georgetown.

Harry Di Giacomo, regular featherweight for Catholic, may not fight owing to recent illness. He was to have reported in New York this morning from his Hartford (Conn.) home if his condition warranted ring activity. If he does not don the gloves his post will be filled by Manager Ralph Ricciardi.

The Catholic line-up, exclusive of the featherweight position, will be Joe Pasquale, bantamweight; Capt. Maguire, lightweight; Blasl, welterweight; Fullam, middleweight; McGrath, light heavyweight, and Malevitch, heavyweight.

JOHNNY NINE FORMS,

Bus Huber was elected manager and Louis Haynes, captain, of the Johnny A. C. at a baseball meeting recently Other officers were: George Coakley, assistant manager; Dory Anderson, secretary, and "Johnny" Augustine, treasurer.

The Johnnys plan to compete in the unlimited class this season and have a formidable array of players to depend upon. For games, phone Hyattsville 1103.

SOUTH ATLANTIC TOURNEY MECCA FOR COURT FANS

Post Sponsors Program at G. W. Gym

6 Games Scheduled on Opening Card Next Monday Night.

Leading Contenders to Clash; Company F Meets Remsens.

THRILL-HUNGRY basket ball fans need only to visit the George Washington gymnasium during the next two weeks for their fill of court action. On Monday, the South Atlantic A. A. U. tournament, sponsored by The Washington Post, is scheduled to start with a program of six games, beginning at 5 o'clock.

With practically every independent team of note included in the record list of 89 entries, this year's tournament is expected to set a new high level for basket ball rivalry in this section. The teams will be competing for the District amateur championships in the seven classes, and the Washington winners will play the Baltimore titleholders for the South Atlantic championships and the A. A. U. gold medals and team trophies emblematic of the honors.

While the unlimited class with its record entry list of 24 clubs probably will hold the majority of interest for District fans, the other classes will bring toghether evenly matched teams capable of playing high class basket ball.

Opening Night Program Is Typical of Close Action.

The opening night's program should be typical of the action expected to mark the tournament. Games are scheduled in each of the five male classes with two contests booked for the unlimited division.

The Company F team, of the Hyattsville National Guard, prominent in independent circles in this section for a number of years and a prominent factor in the 1928 tournament, will be first of a number of popular favorites to take the floor, meeting the Remsens, of Takoma Park, in the first unlimited game.

The Guards are likely to be playing without the services of Vincent, their star center, who injured his foot in a recent game. Although Company F has been picked to win, the Remsens, playing their first year in the unlimited class, have improved as the season has progressed and may insert an upset in the first game.

100-Pound Game Brings Together Unbeaten Aztecs and St. John's.

Potomac Boat Club, composed for the most part of players who in previous years starred with the Clovers, will meet the W. H. West Co. five in the other unlimited game. Both of these teams have been rated high in independent ranks this season.

The 100-pound class game between the unbeaten Y. M. C. A. Aztecs and the St. John's Flashes promises to be a struggle. The Aztecs have been made favorites in their class on a record which includes 21 victories. Last year St. John's went to the District finals in the 100-pound class.

Another of the three Aztec teams entered makes its debut in the 115-pound class game, meeting the Fort Myer Juniors, now tied for the lead in the Boys Club League. In the 130-pound class the Westerners and Mardfeldts clash.

Girls Make Debut Tuesday With Eagles Meeting Capitol A. C.

Two of the leading 145-pound clubs meet in the opening game of that division. Harriman & Co. opposes the Stewart Bros. five. The latter club, known for most of the season as the Stanleys, has a brilliant record. The Harrimans have competed for most of the season with unlimited clubs, but were able to make the weight for the 145-pound division.

Tuesday night's program will mark the first game for girls. The Eagles and Capitol A. C. Sextets will meet in a senior class contest at 8 o'clock.

A feature of the second night's program will be the battle between the Jewish Community Center Five, which has lost only two games this season, and the Company C Team of the District National Guards. The Guards have a majority of the American University players on their eligibility list.

The South Atlantic committee has determined upon a nominal fee of 25 cents, which entitles fans to witness the entire program of five games nightly.

Baseball at Gonzaga To Start Next Friday

Gonzaga will begin its baseball preparations next Friday, it was learned from Coach Orrel Mitchell last night. The team will engage in only light exercise work in the gymnasium at first, taking to the diamond when the weather permits.

Coach Mitchell will have almost a veteran team, with twelve experienced men expected to report. Only the shortstop position is vacant.

Boat Club Fives Clash In Crucial Game Tonight

The Potomac Boat Club Five will meet the Old Dominion Boat Club Tossers tonight in the Congress Heights Gymnasium at 8:30 o'clock in the third game of a three-game series between the two teams. The Potomacs won the initial encounter, 37 to 31, with an extra period attached, while the Old Dominions took the second game, 21 to 19, after another extra session was necessary.

As both teams are out to win the handsome silver trophy to be presented to the winner of the series, a real game is promised tonight. A preliminary game between two teams yet to be named will open the evening's entertainment at 7:30 o'clock.

Peacock, who scored 11 and 13 points, respectively.

Emerson Takes Early Lead in Swamping Princeton Five.

Emerson took the lead over Princeton at the outset, thanks to Buscher's steady aim, and at quarter time was in the van of a 7 to 4 count. Continuing its march, half time found the score standing 17 to 7. Buscher having made the first 10 of the leaders' points. Princeton resorted to long shots in the last quarter and added 8 markers while the winners were adding 10.

BOUTS AT G.U. SHAME PRO BATTLES

Students Swing Lustily for Glory to Delight of Fans.

By JACK ESPEY.

THE fistic frolic among boxing loving Georgetown students goes merrily on at the Hilltop as Coach Jim McNamara chuckles in anticipation of the 1930 competitive season. It was McNamara's main problem this winter to assemble a full team for each successive meet, but next year he will have the pleasant task of selecting the seven best men out of a clamorous squad of 50 who have been swinging lustily at each other for the past three days in intramural bouts.

The current tournament already has borne ripe fruit. Henry Julicher, lightweight, who entered the bouts "just for the fun of it," has shown enough promise to warrant his nomination for the intercollegiate championship tournament to be held March 22 and 23.

Julicher was idle yesterday, after having won his way to the semifinals of the lightweight class by gaining three-round decisions on the two previous days. He will meet Schwartz for the 135-pound school title Monday afternoon, when the tourney will close.

Bordeau Stops His Man in Old-Fashioned Slugging Bee.

In yesterday's bouts, Buddy Bordeau, an 187-pound freshman, pounded out a technical knockout over George Homeak in a rousing slugging bee which climaxed a program crammed from start to finish with steaming action. It was the sixth technical kayo of the afternoon. Decision victories were won in the other two bouts.

Five hundred spectators, their collars wilted and voices hoarse, felt thrill after thrill as the chunky, powerful combatants tore into each other with every blow in the book. The whirlpool of flying fists swept back and forth across the ring, first Bordeau and then Homeak having the best of it.

Then Bordeau ripped a short chop-like right to Homeak's head which sliced a nasty cut over the latter's eye. This all occurred in the first round—a round that saw more action than many a full length professional bout of ten rounds—but when Homeak's seconds could not stop the flow of blood Bordeau was declared winner and the bout halted by order of Director of Athletics Lou Little.

Middleweight Title to Gannon By Decision Over Heaphy.

In another sizzling session of three rounds Joe Gannon, freshman, won the middleweight championship by a decision from Bob Heaphy. Gannon played a tatoo with his left on Heaphy's face throughout and crossed with a right of dynamic force in the final round. The summaries:

118-POUND SEMIFINAL—Schults defeated McDevitt, technical knockout, in second round.

125-POUND SEMIFINAL—Miller defeated Walters, decision.

135-POUND SEMIFINAL — Schwartz defeated Reynolds, technical knockout, in third round.

145-POUND FINAL—Alexander defeated Summers, technical knockout, in third round.

160-POUND FINAL — Gannon defeated Heaphy, decision.

175-POUND SEMIFINAL—Clementi defeated Kennedy, technical knockout, third round.

175-POUND SEMIFINAL—Bordeau defeated Homeak, technical knockout, in first round.

UNLIMITED SEMIFINAL—Monaghan defeated Donaldson, technical knockout, in second round.

G. U. Names 13 Boxers for College Tournament

Georgetown's list of eligibles for the intercollegiate boxing championships which will be held on March 22 and 23 at State College, Pa., will be forwarded today to the authorities of the Intercollegiate Boxing Association.

Billy Barton's Trainer Declares Horse Is Fit

Tenby, Wales, March 8 (A.P.).—Published reports that Howard Bruce's Billy Barton was coughing and would not run in the Grand National were denied by his trainer today. Aubrey Hastings, the trainer, when told of the reports in the London papers, said:

"I never heard such a ridiculous thing. Billy just came back from the sands, where I watched him do a 2-mile gallop. I have been with him some time and he is in splendid condition, giving every satisfaction in gallops.

"We experienced some very trying conditions for training at Wroughton owing to the frost, so I brought him down here with the other horses. The sand is specially harrowed each morning to remove stones and Billy then takes a good gallop. He works well and is very fit."

Asked when the American colt would be taken back to the Hastings Stables, he said that would depend upon the weather and when the frost got thoroughly out of the home grounds.

The Italian sweepstakes will open at Arcadia with about 50 pinmen seeking honors. Second block games will be rolled next week at Convention Hall.

The Bill Wood sweepstakes, for bowlers averaging below 106, will reach the second round at Lucky Strike with Bill Morrissette topping the list. Final sets will be rolled at King Pin No. 1 next Saturday night.

Two special team matches are also slated. Washington and Alexandria Southern Railway teams will clash in the opening block of a home-and-home 10-game match at the Coliseum, starting at 8 o'clock. These teams include the highest average bowlers to be found among Southern Railway employes of the two cities. The second block will be rolled at Recreation Health Center in Alexandria next week.

North Washington Church League and East Washington Church League all-star teams are to meet in the concluding block of their annual interleague duel at Convention Hall at 7:30 o'clock. The Easterners hold a 43 pin lead as the result of a well earned first block victory at King Pin No. 1 last week.

Ladies' District double and District doubles leagues matches are booked for Arcadia and Convention Hall, respectively.

Convention Hall's Bid Checked by Stanford

Philip Heffelinger's appearance in the Stanford Paper Co. line-up last night at Convention Hall prevented Convention Hall's Team from moving into a tie for first place in the District League with King Pin. Heffelinger took Perce Ellett's place in the second game and Stanford won by 5 pins, largely due to Phil's 146 contribution. Convention Hall took the first game, 580 to 527, and dropped the second, 570 to 575. Convention Hall took the last game, 594 to 583. Burtner's 388 set was high.

PIN LEAGUE RECORDS FALL.

Two Business Men's League records were shattered last night by Richard Reed, of the Piggly Wiggly Team, when he amassed 174 in his final game and brought his set total to 402. His big game was produced on spares in the first five boxes, a strike in the sixth, and spares in the seventh, eighth and ninth boxes.

Goode, of Dome Oil Co., held the previous high-game record, 151, and Jack Rosenberg had the previous high set, 389.

HARRISON ROLLS 405.

Paul Harrison went on a pin getting rampage last night at Lucky Strike. His three-game total was 405, including 139, 115 and 151 counts. His team, Curb Cafe, dropped two to Progressive Printers in a District League match.

YOUR BOY AND YOUR GIRL

By ARTHUR DEAN, Sc. D.
The Parent Counselor.

Military Training in the Schools.

I believe in preparing children to fight and fight hard. And every parent who sends his child to school believes exactly as I do, else he wouldn't support, directly or indirectly, public or private education.

Sounds rather militaristic, doesn't it? We must remember that life, from start to finish, is a fight—a fight against disease, ignorance, prejudice, bad heritages, poor environment, laziness and general cussedness.

Our youth is entitled to be armed against the enemy. In thousands of ways the enemy is strong. He has battalions of trillions and quadrillions of germs to assist him. Under the command of Gen. Dumbbell. He has almost overwhelming forces of physical laziness and mental lassitude. Any time he can call upon his reserves of narrow-mindedness, led by Gen. Cantbedone, with diabolical power to crush any advance youth may make.

The enemy has storehouses galore, loaded with the deadliest of ammunition. Poisonous gases of bad inheritance handed down by enemies of a past generation, swift and destructive missiles of atrocious home and civic surroundings, and soul-destroying dirigibles hovering over the welfare of youth and bombing their bodies, minds and souls with filth of words and deeds.

You, life is a never-ending battle.

The enemy from within the gates is a million times stronger than any from without. It is to conquer this enemy that we spend our millions in public and private education and sacrifice our personal incomes that our children may be well-girded for the battle.

The overflowing rivers with their freshets, the bugs which infest our plant life, the drought which ruins our crops—all these are our enemies. That is why we have agricultural colleges and schemes for harnessing the waters and why engineers build dams, and why botanists study soils and plant life.

Upstanding man is not to be knocked down by the enemy. We harness this enemy and make him work for us or we destroy him.

Years ago William James, the great philosopher, wrote an admirable essay in which he advocated that the youth of our lands be trained to fight these persistent enemies. He proposed groups of lads planting forests to prevent floods, building roads for better communication, and therefore making for less ignorance, fighting bugs, disease, criminal tendencies and what-not. He called his plan the "Moral Equivalent of War."

When I see a company of schoolboys marching around with ancient guns and obsolete military tactics in these days of gas, airplanes, dirigibles, machine guns, submarines, I always think of William James and our common enemy within our own gates.

You ask my opinion: Any school that has military (?) training can keep it. Any school system that hasn't it had better let the question be put on the table forever. I say more money, attention and time for vocational training, more public playgrounds, more free psychiatric and social service clinics and more guidance to help youngsters to be bigger, better and wiser.

Let men and women who want war and believe that war is always on the horizon of nations be enrolled in the military establishments. But let the youth of our land be trained to lick their own enemies within our own gates.

War is a man's job; not a kid's affair.

OUR CONVERSATION CORNER.

Why Not?

What do you think about corresponding with strangers? I think it would be great fun if the letters were clean. I wish we had something like this in the paper.

YOUNG GIRL.

Answer—In one sense you already have your wish. You are writing your ideas to me. Often I publish them in the column. You can write something regarding what "Miss Innocence," "High School Junior" or "Grandma" said in this department. And "Grandma," "High School Junior" and "Miss Innocence" will see what you have written and we can fire things back and forth. This column becomes then a human switchboard and I plug in connecting "Sweet Sixteen" with "The Town Sheik" or with "Grandma."

I do not approve corresponding directly with strangers. Occasionally I get a letter from some one who tells me, "I got a wonderful husband this way." Grab-bagging for friends is not, generally speaking, good business.

No Place Like Home.

The children quarrel at meals, then hubby and I quarrel. He leaves the children's training all to me. I swear I will not be cross and impatient, but next day I am as bad as ever. What to do? DISHEARTENED.

Answer—I am sympathetic with the husband who comes home after a hard day's work and gets irritated over something which the children are, or are not, doing. I also sympathize with the woman who irons, cooks, scrubs, mends and finds no one appreciates it and thinks she has troubles just as great as her husband has.

I suppose an ideal home would be one where the man could shake off the business worries, the mother all the household worries, and the children all troubles and quarrels between 6:30 and 9:30 so the whole family could enjoy themselves. But I expect too much.

"A Mother's Code," which I am inclosing in your return envelope, will be helpful to you. It is adapted for fathers as well.

Uncle Ray's Corner

A Little Saturday Talk

THREE young Corner readers have sent me a joint letter asking for copies of How to Make a Corner Scrapbook and also asking questions about a famous planet.

The questions are:

"Could you tell us what the rings around Saturn are made of? If a person was on Saturn, would it be possible to get on the rings?"

The rings of Saturn are of enormous size. If one of them could be fixed so that it formed a solid sheet, it would cover all the oceans of the earth and stand far out around the sides.

The planet itself has hundreds of times the bulk of the earth. Next to Jupiter, it is the largest of the planets.

Saturn has been measured by astronomers, but they do not know for certain what the rings are made of. Some astronomers believe that the rings are composed of billions of small objects not larger than basket balls, perhaps as large as oranges. For some reason the rings keep their places and do not fall to the surface of the planet.

If that belief is true, I should think it would be hard for a person to walk on the rings. Maybe he could do it on the same idea a persons uses in crossing a river by stepping from one block of ice to another.

Another letter runs:

"Dear Uncle Ray: Our teacher cuts out the Corners, and that is how I came to write. Will you please send me a leaflet on Forty Good Riddles with Answers? Yours truly,

"GOLDIE CSUZDI."

The riddle leaflet has been sent to Goldie, and a copy of it will be mailed to you if you will send a stamped envelope addressed to yourself. In fact, you may get two leaflets at the same time, if you will also ask for How to Make a Corner Scrapbook. Address your letter to Uncle Ray, Editor of Uncle Ray's Corner, in care of The Washington Post. Write plainly so as to avoid chance of loss in the mail.

Uncle Ray

BONDS AGAIN REACT; FEW RECOVER LATE

Most Mexican Issues Rise on Reports of Rebel Setbacks at Vera Cruz.

FOREIGN LIST IS WEAK

New York, March 8 (A.P.).—Prices continued their steady march into lower territory in today's bond market, although a handful of speculative convertibles rallied toward the close in sympathy with stocks. Mexican issues, with the exception of the National Railway 4½s, advanced on reports of rebel setbacks at Vera Cruz.

U. S. Government obligations were under pressure, decl ning to a better yield basis than the 4¾ per cent placed on the new $475,000,000 Treasury offering. Treasury 4¼s, 4s and 3¾s touched their lowest prices for the year. Money continued firm.

Activity in the foreign list was chiefly on the selling side, and nearly a dozen issues established new lows for the year, including flat 7s, ex-warrants, which dropped a point to touch 96. The Mexican issues advanced 1 to 2 points on fairly heavy trading.

Kreuger & Toll 5s, sold to the public at 98 in an issue of $50,000,000, were admitted to trading and sold from a fraction to a point premium, $150,000 changing hands.

Anaconda Copper 7s again were the leaders of the convertibles, rallying from 240 to close at 245 for a net gain of 2½ points. American International 5½s, for the first time since their admission to trading about a month ago, slipped below 105, but wound up the day fractionally above yesterday's close. Atchison convertible 4½s and International Telephone 4½s were under pressure.

The decline in the utilities was led by the communication issues, American Telephone 1½s and Postal 5s reaching new lows for the year with fractional declines.

Selling was heaviest in the rails. The traction issues, Brooklyn Manhattan Transfer sinking fund 6s in particular, were under selling pressure. Baltimore & Ohio issues lost ground and the refunding 6s touched a new low at 107¾. International Great Northern 5s C declined 2 points to a new low at 93. This is one of the lines the Missouri Pacific is seeking to take over in its unification plans. National Railway of Mexico 4½s declined a point to 10½.

In the dull industrials, Chile Copper 5s failed to follow the advance in Anaconda and slumped 1½ points to 94.

JOINT COMMITTEE TO START AIRPORT HEARINGS IN APRIL

Senator Bingham Announces Plan After Conference With Zihlman.

DATA ON PROSPECTIVE USE OF FIELD SOUGHT

Survey Vandenberg Launched Expected to Set District-U. S. Cost Ratio.

The joint congressional committee that was appointed to make a study of the local airport situation will open hearings April 1, it was announced yesterday by Senator Hiram Bingham (Republican), of Connecticut.

Senator Bingham, who heads the five senators on the commission, made the announcement just before he left for Florida. Previously he had conferred with Representative Frederick N. Zihlman (Republican), of Maryland, who heads the House group on the commission.

The airport commission was created by a joint resolution, which was introduced by Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, and which was adopted in the closing days of the last Congress. Vandenberg was chairman of a special airport subcommittee of the Senate District committee.

Asks for Data on Airport.

Before he left, Senator Bingham sent a letter to the heads of four Federal departments and to the District Commissioners, asking them to provide information which would help the commission to decide how much the Federal Government should pay toward the airport.

The letter asks the Secretaries of the War, Navy, Postoffice and Commerce Departments to say just what the present and prospective requirements of their departments are with regard to a municipal airport.

It also asks them to make recommendations with regard to the size and location of the airport.

Substitute for Stalker Bill.

Senator Vandenberg introduced his joint resolution after he had come to the conclusion that the Stalker bill had no chance of passing. That bill provided that the municipal airport should be established at Gravelly Point, and should be paid for on a 50-50 basis by the Federal and District governments. In both houses there were members who were ready to protest that this was too much for the Federal Government to pay.

The hearings that are to start next month will determine how much the various Government departments would use the airport.

In the end, it is held possible that the commission will recommend that the Federal Government pay more than half of the cost of the airport.

Disabled Officers Told Not to Employ Counsel

Disabled emergency officers who have claims pending before the U. S. Veterans Bureau have been advised by Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, director of the bureau, that they need not employ an attorney to represent them in their cases, it having been called to his attention that some attorneys are soliciting business of the officers in presenting their claims.

Disabled emergency officers who believe they are entitled to benefits may file their claims without charge at the central office of the U. S. Veterans Bureau, any of its regional offices in various States, or may secure help in filing such claims from the Disabled Emergency Officers Association, American Legion, or other veterans' associations, Director Hines stated.

Presbyterian Attitude Toward Women Hailed

The Council of the National Woman's Party, through Mabel Vernon, national secretary, yesterday sent a telegram to Dr. Hugh K. Walker, moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Philadelphia, expressing appreciation "of the fine action taken by the general council of the church toward removing all discriminations against women in the government of your church."

Miss Vernon, in making public her message, stated that the action of the Presbyterian council reflects the changing attitude toward women and indicates "that the day is not far distant when women will have complete equality with men throughout the United States."

Policeman Dismissed On Desertion Charge

Policeman W. L. Hunt, of the Tenth Precinct, yesterday was ordered dismissed from the force by the District Commissioners. He was found guilty of desertion by a Police Trial Board.

The Commissioners accepted the recommendations of the Trial Board in the cases of three other policemen, all of whom were cleared of charges. Policeman Claude Evans, of the Second Precinct, was found not guilty of a charge of using unnecessary force in entering a building in an attempt to make an arrest. Policeman E. L. Taylor and C. E. Connell, both of the Seventh Precinct, were cleared of the charges, respectively, of being late and of failing to pull a box.

HOOVER TO BE URGED TO APPOINT CLAYTON

Brightwood Citizens Launch Boom to Place Him on Utilities Board.

FEDERATION HELP SOUGHT

The Brightwood Citizens' Association will make an organized effort to have President Herbert Hoover appoint William McK. Clayton to the Public Utilities Commission to fill the vacancy created when the Senate failed to indorse Harrison Brand, jr. for the office.

This developed at a meeting last night of the association in the Brightwood Bank, after the body had unanimously voted for Clayton, who is a member of the association. One member of the association described him as the only logical man for the position.

L. F. Randolph, second vice president of the association and presiding officer last night, was authorized to appoint a committee that will seek to have all the citizens' organizations indorse Clayton. The campaign will be conducted in connection with a city-wide poll that has been proposed.

The members of the committee are Elmer Johnson, chairman; W. L. Luttgen, Fred Kohler, William D. Wilson, C. E. Bogardus, Dr. C. S. Ralph, H. B. Landgraf, A. C. Haight, R. L. Schreiner, Capt. J. B. Green and Randolph. Johnson was given permission to place any other names on the committee that he desired.

The association indorsed John A. Saul for membership on the advisory council.

The residents on Madison street, between Ninth street and Georgia avenue, were given the backing of the association in circulating a petition to have that section of the street paved. The remainder of Madison street is paved, leaving that one block a "mud puddle," it was stated last night.

Divorce Mill Fight Begun in Arlington

Judge Thomas Opposes Plan to Discontinue Residence Investigations.

Opposition to the Arlington County Bar Association's proposal that investigation of legal residence in uncontested divorce cases be discontinued developed yesterday.

Judge Harry R. Thomas, who two years ago was a member of a special committee appointed to look into the great number of divorce actions in the county, last night declared he would not be a member of the bar association's committee to present the body's proposal to Judge Howard W. Smith of the Circuit Court of Arlington County.

Judge Thomas declared the present system of investigating residence was adopted by the committee two years ago, after a careful study, and that he would not be a party to any movement to have the method changed. He also pointed out that at the time Judge Smith was named to the bench he continued the policy of investigating residence on recommendation of the bar association.

Hoyt Holds Texas Hop Proved Plane Mobility

Capt. Rose G. Hoyt, whose flight to Kelly Field, Tex., from Bolling Field and return, in 25 hours 45 minutes, set a record, believes that the 3,100-mile trip has demonstrated the ability of Army planes to reach points on any boundary of the Nation within eighteen hours from central fields.

Particularly pleased over the performance of the plane's motor, Capt. Hoyt pointed out that the engine was never stopped. It consumed an average of 20 gallons of gasoline an hour and gave him a speed, at certain times, of 160 miles an hour. The plane behaved well in the face of a heavy gale on the return flight, he said yesterday.

Elwood Street, director of the Chest, gave a short talk, explaining methods used in other cities to keep the public posted on activities of charitable agencies. Mr. Sharpe was then authorized to name an executive committee to handle this phase of the Chest's activities.

CITIZENS MUST PAY CONDUIT COST SHARE

Commission Tells Terms of Wire Replacement With Underground.

POLES CAUSE COMPLAINT

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday sent letters to the citizens associations in the areas affected by the recent request of the Potomac Electric Power Co. for permission to put in new poles, explaining that should the citizens desire the substitution of underground conduits instead of the poles, they will be asked to pay part of the cost.

The areas in which the company has asked for permission to put in new poles are those along Montello avenue northeast, from Holbrook street to Mount Olivet road; Seventh street northwest, from Varnum to Buchanan street; Eighth street northwest, from Upshur to Webster street; Illinois avenue northwest, from Webster to Buchanan street; Ellison street, from Eighth street to Illinois avenue northwest, and Varnum street northwest, from Seventh to Eighth street.

The citizens in these areas heretofore have made numerous requests that the poles of the power company be removed and the action of the commission yesterday is to inform them that they will be expected to bear part of the cost.

In the letters sent to the various citizen groups, the commission has outlined its estimate of what each householder will be assessed if the underground system is established. The householder will be required to pay half the cost of the conduit from the street or alley to the house. The estimated costs also include the cost of changing the wiring in the house, where it is necessary.

Ired because a group of boys refused to stop sledding in the vicinity of his home on February 23, Selby was accused of breaking one of the sleds into bits and burning the other three. Arrested by Patrolman Anthony Ritchitt, of the Fourth Precinct, Selby was made to post collateral of $115 for his freedom. Failing to appear in court a few days after the incident, his collateral was declared forfeited and an attachment for his arrest was issued.

WOMEN VOTE TO AID HOOVER'S DRY DRIVE

Law Enforcement Committee Promises Support of Twelve Million Members.

10 GROUPS REPRESENTED

In his campaign for law enforcement, with strict emphasis on enforcement of the liquor law, President Herbert Hoover is to have the support of at least 12,000,000 women who are old enough and eligible to vote.

This strength loomed as a certainty yesterday at the conclusion of the "Victory Lunch" of the National Woman's Committee on Law Enforcement at the Washington Hotel, at which ten national women's organizations, affiliated with the committee and having a membership of 12,000,000, were represented.

The committee adopted resolutions pledging support to President Hoover in his drive for law enforcement. Mrs. Herbert Hoover was pointed to as a "fine example" of the way American women can help in enforcing the liquor law by refusing to participate in social functions where the law is broken.

A resolution was also adopted urging educators to include instruction relating to patriotism to respect for law in their school programs. In this connection the organizations represented were urged to use their resources for a campaign of education in law observance.

Among the speakers at the luncheon were: Mrs. John F. Sippel, of Maryland; Mrs. Clem Shaver, of West Virginia; Mrs. Edward Thurman Smith, of Missouri; Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson, of Maryland; Mrs. John F. Sherman, of Colorado; Mrs. William R. Pattangall, of Maine; Mrs. William Tilton, of Massachusetts, and Mrs. William L. Darby, of Washington.

B STREET ROADWAY LINES ESTABLISHED BY PLANNING GROUP

Boulevard Widths Approved From Potomac River to Senate Offices.

STUDY ORDERED FOR REMAINING PORTION

Eight District Acts Passed by Last Congress Considered at the Meeting.

Final plans for B street northwest, future ceremonial boulevard between the Capitol and Arlington National Cemetery, were adopted yesterday by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, which approved an alignment for that roadway from the Potomac River to the Senate Office Building, embodying various details it has discussed for the past two years.

These include the cutting through of the street between Sixth and Third streets, its widening to 80 feet between Virginia and Pennsylvania avenues and to 72 feet west of Virginia avenue to the river and east of Pennsylvania avenue to the Senate Office Building. Distances from the north curb to building lines in the Federal building triangle area fronting B street were fixed at approximately 55 feet. West of the Ellipse, where the present Pan-American Union and National Academy of Sciences Buildings are located at setbacks greater distances than 55 feet, a setback of not less than 55 feet was ordered.

Study Is Ordered.

Members of the commission have also ordered a study of B street southwest from the Potomac to the House Office Building, with uniform widening and building lines in view, as this roadway will be the future south boundary of the Mall and will cut through from east to west similarly as B street northwest when the Mall is extended.

Members of the commission are of the opinion that B street, south of the Mall, from Sixth to Four-and-a-Half street, should have a width much greater than at present, possibly 70 feet. The present roadway varies in width from 30 to 40 feet.

Capt. P. St. John Wilson, S. W. James and W. H. McNary, of the Department of Agriculture, explained the present status of the Mount Vernon boulevard project to members of the commission who visited the "Washington, Past, Present and Future" exhibit during their noon recess. Treatment of the Virginia approaches to Arlington Memorial Bridge was deferred for joint action with the commission of fine arts at its next meeting.

Eight Acts Considered.

Eight acts passed by the last Congress, affecting District planning, were under consideration of the commission, which expressed its appreciation to the District, public buildings and grounds committees, and other interested committees of the Senate and House, for assisting this passage.

They are the Capitol-Plaza improvement, municipal center and bathing pool legislation, as well as that authorizing the commission's acquisition and lease rights in land sought, realignment of Michigan avenue near Trinity College; changing the boundaries of Rock Creek-Potomac parkway, and the new House Office Building erection.

U. S. Art Exhibit Urged by Tydings

Senator Presses His Plan, Embodied in Bill, by Radio Address.

Declaring that the United States has too much of the harshness of a civilization that comes from rapid progress and not enough of things beautiful, Senator Millard E. Tydings, of Maryland, in a radio address last night, renewed his advocacy of the holding by the Federal Government of an annual art exhibition and contest in Washington.

Senator Frederic M. Sackett, of Kentucky, spoke on the problems confronting the Seventy-first Congress, which will meet in special session beginning April 15. The two addresses were broadcast by Station WRC over a special hook-up in the library in Senator Sackett's home at 1529 Eighteenth street northwest.

Unlike the nations of the Old World the United States has neglected the cultivation of the artistic side of its people's life, Senator Tydings said. A bill, introduced by him in the last Congress, calls for the holding annually in Washington of an annual art exhibition and contest which would be open to American painters and sculptors. Five prizes, ranging from $10,000 to $1,000, would be awarded annually to those painters and scultptors whose work was considered of the highest type.

The Capital Traction and the Washington Railway & Electric companies were sued for $25,000 damages yesterday in the District Supreme Court by John X. Phillips, of 510 C street northeast, who charged he was injured in a collision of street cars of the companies.

Phillips, through his counsel, Wilton J. Lambert, Rudolph Yeatman and George D. Horning, jr., declared he boarded a car of the Washington Railway Co. on December 10 last. The car he was on and a car of the Capital Traction Co. passed over a cross section of track on Massachusetts avenue near the Union Station Plaza, he said, and collided. As a result of the collision, which, he charged, was due to negligence on the part of the operators of the cars, he was seriously and permanently injured.

Court Enthralled by Story Of 30-Year-Old Traffic Case

Parking Violator, Arraigned on Auto Charge, Tells Tale of Conviction in Nineties, and Wins Release; Rode Bicycle on Wrong Side of Street, He Says.

Harry Isel, 65 years old, who retired from the locksmith business "so a few others could make some money," was arraigned in Traffic Court yesterday on a parking charge, but, rather than discuss the current charge, he chose to relate of his conviction on a traffic charge 30 years ago.

His narration so interested Judge Gus A. Schuldt and attaches of the court that proceedings were at a standstill for nearly half an hour, while attempts were made to identify characters of his story.

Isel said he was riding a bicycle on the wrong side of the street when accosted by two policemen. He was haled into the old Police Court and taken before a magistrate with a flowing beard, who fined him $1, which "was a lot of money in those days."

The policemen who arrested him were identified as Inspector Albert J. Headley and the late Lieut. James D. McQuade. Although attaches of the court were unable to identify the magistrate, who convicted Isel, it is believed he was the late Judge Ivory G. Kimball.

After his interesting reminiscence, which was filled with descriptions of the old courthouse, Isel's attention was attracted to the current charge. He was accused of parking his automobile in the downtown section so as to obstruct a crosswalk. The retired locksmith explained he had only a few moments to get to a bank to make a payment on a note and in his haste forgot the regulation.

After admitting his guilt, Judge Schuldt smiled and remarked:

"I dislike to send you to jail but you have admitted a previous conviction."

"If you do, my old woman will be down here and get after you" the defendant retorted.

"That will never do. Take his personal bond."

Justice Wendell Holmes, of the United States Supreme Court, America's oldest jurist and one of the two surviving veterans of the Civil War in high official life, celebrated his eighty-eighth birthday yesterday.

Justice Holmes' birthday was characteristic of him. He walked from his unpretentious home on I street, as usual, and after a hard day's work in the Supreme Court, walked back home. Last night he enjoyed a quiet dinner with his wife, to whom he has been married for more than half a century, and listened to the radio for a short while afterward.

Wife Charges Desertion In Petition for Divorce

Harold E. Landgren, a salesman, of the Valois Apartments, who obtained a divorce from his wife, Mrs. Elaine G. Landgren, of Tudor Hall, in Virginia courts on grounds of desertion, was sued yesterday in the District Supreme Court by Mrs. Landgren for maintenance.

They were married June 4, 1921, according to the complaint, and have a child, 6 years old. By mutual consent the child has been given to the custody of a Mrs. Craig, of 1616 Trinidad avenue northeast, since the divorce was obtained. Mrs. Landgren charged her husband has refused to purchase clothing for the child, pay expenses incurred through illness and on February 15 notified her he intended to remarry and would be no longer able to contribute to the child's support. Through her counsel, Foster Woods, she asked the court to compel the defendant to support the child.

Man Held as Perjurer In Slaying Testimony

Ernest E. McCormick, colored, of 5700 East Capitol street, was arrested yesterday and held in the Eleventh Precinct station house on a warrant charging perjury. He is alleged to have erroneously described the construction of a staircase while he was testifying for the Government in the trial of Daniel Lambert, colored, who was charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of William H. Smith, also colored.

Smith was shot on the stairway at 5718 Blaine street northeast, December 5. Lambert was set free by a jury and Chief Justice Walter I. McCoy, of the District Supreme Court, ordered an investigation of the testimony given by McCormick.

Kingsman School Site Costs $93,400

Four-Acre Tract Purchased; Congress Must Provide Building Fund.

The purchase of a four-acre tract of land at Seventeenth place and C street northeast, as the site for the proposed Kingsman Junior High School, was announced yesterday. The purchase price was announced as $93,400.

The tract previously had been the subject of condemnation proceedings and the court set $102,800 as the purchase price, but the owner reconsidered and sold the property to the District for $93,400.

Although no funds are available to school officials for construction of the proposed junior high school, an appropriation for this purpose will be asked of the next Congress. School officers hope to have the proposed building ready for occupancy in two years.

Hearing on Washington Building Set by Court

Hearing of litigation involving the Washington Building, Fifteenth street and New York avenue northwest, was scheduled for April 15 in equity division of the District Supreme Court yesterday by Justice Peyton Gordon, who instructed trustees to continue their search for a purchaser of the building until after the hearing. A public auction of the property, which had been ordered if a purchaser was not found, was deferred by the Court.

Holders of second trusts on the property began the litigation several months ago by seeking foreclosures. A short time later the Shawmut Bank, of Boston, trustee of the property, made a request for a sale but was opposed by lien holders. The court then appointed Harold E. Doyle, Andrew Duvall and Spencer Gordon as trustees and ordered them to find a purchaser for the building and transferred claims on the property to the fund, which would be realized from the sale.

CAPITAL DRY DRIVE UNDER HOOVER EYE VISIONED BY JONES

Author of Drastic Liquor Law Sees Campaign to Make City Model.

RUM TRAFFIC SHOWS EFFECT OF MEASURE

No Arrests Made Under Law in Day, and but Four in Court as Drunks.

While Senator Jones, of Washington, author of the liquor felony law that bears his name, predicted yesterday that President Hoover would take steps to dry up Washington and to make it an example for the Nation, police and court attaches expressed the opinion that the Capital City already is almost dry.

The lull in the whisky traffic since last Saturday, when President Coolidge signed the Jones bill, still was apparent yesterday. There were no arrests reported under the law and Police Court disposed of only four cases of intoxication, the smallest number in the annals of the court.

Senator Jones expressed the opinion that the President could go far toward putting an end to bootlegging here and in the rest of the country by impressing Government officials that they will be held strictly responsible.

Sees Call to Mitchell.

"I have no doubt that the President, if he has not already done so, will call in Attorney General Mitchell and say to him that he expects the Department of Justice to deal effectively with violators of the dry laws," declared the senator. "This would doubtless be passed down the line to every United States attorney throughout the land.

"Here in Washington, the Capital of the Nation and the seat of the Federal Government, it should be possible to enforce the prohibition law effectively and set an example for the rest of the country.

"I have not had the opportunity to talk with the President since his inauguration, but I believe that he, in his inaugural address, made it very clear that the Government would not put up with violations of the dry laws nor weaken them in any way."

Senator Jones stated that in his opinion the District Commissioners, the Metropolitan Police and the United States attorney should be able to deal with the situation in Washington. He is awaiting with interest the appointment by the President of the commission which will investigate violations and the system of enforcement.

Three Men Arraigned.

Three men were arraigned yesterday before Judge Isaac R. Hitt under the Jones law, charges against two others were dismissed and arraignments of three more were postponed until today. The number of cases was the largest filed in the office of Assistant District Attorneys David A. Hart and R. F. Camalier since the new law went into effect.

Charged with sale, transportation, possession and violation of Federal Code, section 19, which prohibits receiving and soliciting liquor orders, Louis Jackson, colored, was bound over to the grand jury in $4,000 bail. Police said he made deliveries of liquor in a pushcart and employed Albert Smallwood, 18, also colored, to aid him. The youth was charged with delinquency in the Juvenile Court, and is reported to have made an affidavit concerning his connection with Jackson.

Spencer Jones, 20 years old, of 805 Massachusetts avenue northwest, pleaded not guilty and demanded a hearing on charges of transporting and possession. He was held in $2,500 bail for a hearing next Friday. The other man arraigned was James C. McElheny, 27 years old, who waived hearing and was bound over to the grand jury in $2,000 bail on transporting and possession charges.

Illegality Ruling Made.

Ruling police had made illegal search and seizures, Hart and Camalier dismissed liquor charges against Walter E. Tipton, who was arrested at 928 fourteenth street northwest. Police said they were seeking another man in Tipton's apartment and discovered a large quantity of liquor. Transporting and possession charges against John Vermillion, a taxicab driver, of 811 Third street northwest, also were dropped. Vermillion's cab was reported missing by his employers and when found police discovered him in the cab with two others drinking alleged beer. It was ruled that the police illegally searched the vehicle.

Those scheduled for arraignments today are Willie Moore, colored, charged with second offense of sale and possession, and Willie Purdy, colored, taxicab driver, and Morris Daly, also colored, who was riding in a cab when police stopped it for a traffic violation and found ten quarts of liquor, according to reports.

Q Street Bridge Fill Is Loosened by Rains

Loosened by recent rains, an old fill north and south of the east abutment of Q Street Bridge in Section 3, Rock Creek-Potomac Park, which has been settling for years, gave way yesterday.

Forces of the parks maintenance division of the office of public buildings and public parks have repaired the washout and will allow the new fill to settle for two weeks, before determining whether a retaining wall is necessary. The bridle path skirting the vicinity will be closed for eight or nine days.

Dr. C. J. Gaddis, of Chicago, editor of the Journal of the American Osteopathic Association and secretary of that organization, was the speaker last night at a dinner meeting for members and their families of the Association of Osteopathic Physicians of the District of Columbia at the City Club.

Following the dinner and the address by the guest of honor, the legislative committee, headed by Dr. C. D. Swope, announced that after 25 years of waiting, it had a favorable report to make. This was to the effect that just before Congress closed its session, a law giving full recognition to doctors of osteopathy had been passed.
